Fireworks Pop as Illinois Assembly Quits

HOUSE LABORS FAR INTO NIGHT; CLOCK STOPPED

Pass Many Bills in Last Minute Rush.

Its 10 Big Deeds

Springfield, Ill., June 30.—(Special.) — The ten most important measures passed by the 61st general assembly were:

Women given right to serve on juries.

Tax preadjudication re-enacted.

The Cook county superhighway safety program.

A 10 per cent increase in workmen's compensation.

Broadening of the unemployment compensation law to include employers of six or more persons, instead of eight.

Increase of maximum old age pensions from $30 to $40, according to need.

Extension of the 3 cent sales tax until July 1, 1941.

Extension of the Illinois emergency relief commission until July 1, 1941.

A series of bills providing that persons in all professions or trades licensed by the state shall be citizens or applicants for naturalization papers.

About 400 obsolete laws repealed.

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., July 1.—[Saturday.]—An utterly fagged legislature adjourned its sixty-first regular session at 3:37 a. m., Chicago time, today. Decision to quit came from the house of representatives which had worked dizzily past the constitutional hour of adjournment trying to cope with a calendar which still contained seventy-five measures yet unacted upon when Representative Robert J. Branson [R., Centralia] moved to stop the groggy procedure.

Lieut. Gov. John Stelle quickly adjourned the senate as soon as word came from the house. The calendar in the upper chamber virtually was swept clean. It had been for hours, but the senate could not throw up the job until the house was ready to go home—and stay home.

Clock Is Stopped.

Fireworks and tomfoolery had their inning about the time that the law commands the session to cease passing bills by bare majorities, which was 12 o'clock, but the hands of the official timepiece had been stopped.

For four hours aftr midnight it still was 6:30 p. m. last night in the house of representatives, according to the clock. The house should have been approving measures by a two-thirds vote; instead simple majorities were declared sufficient for approval.

Pandemonium was given free reign by Speaker Hugh W. Cross for a few minutes, then the presiding officer regained control and work went on. The interlude, however, was rough enough. When it ended the speaker's rostrum looked like a battlefield relic from the effects of fireworks and water.

Keep Chairman Dancing.

The mock session brought Representative Edward G. Hayne [D., Ottawa] to the chair for consideration of a bill regulating the sale of nuts. He was kept dancing by fireworks tossed at his feet, and some of them —of the cannon cracker variety— threatened to bomb him from the rostrum. After Representative Harold D. Kelsey [R., Barrington] had supported the nut bill with buffoonery, the act ended with a tub of water and used paper cups raining down upon the luckless Hayne.

Settling back into the humdrum of business, the fatigued proceeded in their weary enactment of bills from a burdened calendar which still contained several score bills.

Exceeds Budget by 8 Million.

They were met by computations released by James P. Boyle [D., Chicago] on the total appropriations approved by the session. Boyle said they would reach $464,000,000, or about $8,000,000 more than the budget called for.

The more sedate and much smaller

HITLER MAY GO TO DANZIG; BARE NAZI STRATEGY

Seeks to Win City by Peaceful Coup.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, June 30.—Eager to surprise the world with a new fait accompli [accomplished fact], Nazi Germany has thought up a new plan for its fifth conquest—that of the Free City of Danzig and the Polish corridor. The first four conquests were those of Austria, Sudetenland, Czecho-Slovakia and Memel.

The Nazis think Reichsfuehrer Hitler should visit Danzig next month—presumably on July 22—accept declarations of loyalty from the Danzig government and the free city's Nazi population, and then sail away in the warship in which he arrived.

Then his lieutenants—one after another—would visit the free city and help the city fathers eliminate all regulations providing for coöperation with Poland.

Predict No Opposition.

Who in the world, ask the Nazis, would dare prevent a chief of state and his ministers from paying friendly calls to a neighboring city? Their answer is that nobody would dare fight and that Danzig thus gradually and automatically would drop the shackles of the Versailles peace treaty and the league of nations and return completely into the German fold.

German workers and farmers who are being sent to Danzig on "pleasure trips" would reinforce the Danzig population during Hitler's proposed visit and the days preceding it. To judge by the number of Germans who already have arrived in the free city, Americans returning from Danzig declare that it must be assumed that close to 150,000 men of military age will be in Danzig by the latter part of July. Added to the regular forces of Danzig, which the Nazis admit have been increased in recent weeks, they will represent a considerable power and make it difficult for the Poles to do anything about the matter.

Sent In by Steamer.

The men traveling to Danzig on "private joyrides" are going by steamer from small Baltic ports. Only a few of the first batches went by train. The Nazis feared that if too many were sent by train they might be arrested by the Poles, who have become suspicious of the big number of men of military age crossing the Polish corridor at a time when no German of military age is allowed to leave his country.

The Nazis believe that neither France nor England, despite their assistance pacts with Poland, would do anything about Germany's gradual reincorporation of Danzig.

Pointing to the blows England accepted from Japan in the far east without doing more than to ask for a chance to negotiate, the Nazis feel certain the English will not have the gumption to tell Poland to go ahead and fight. They believe the British will not support the Poles.

Spread Rumors About Russia.

To further discourage the Poles, the Nazis are systematically spreading the rumor that they have come to terms with Russia for a division of Poland between Germany and the soviet union.

As matters stand now, the Russian-German negotiations are proceeding smoothly, but they have not reached the point where the two countries would be able to agree on dividing any territory between them. The economic negotiations are emerging from the unofficial stage into the official stage, the German trade attaché in Moscow being formally empowered to close an economic deal with the Russians. E

Two Cases Are Heard Which Might Have Baffled Solomon

Shun Custody	Seek Custody

BY BRUCE DENNIS.

Shirley Boese, a tall, lissome girl who will be 17 years old in August, stood in Judge Rudolph Desort's courtroom yesterday, alone, despite the presence of the judge, clerks, attorneys, spectators, and—her father and her mother.

Shirley stood alone because neither her father nor her mother wanted her. Judge Desort, who has seen hundreds of estranged husbands and wives battle to obtain custody of their children, demanded to know why these parents were different.

Both Parents Remarried.

He was told that Mr. and Mrs. Boese were divorced in 1928. Shirley's mother now is Mrs. Edna Boese Elmstrom, of 8020 Vernon avenue. Her father, Roy Boese, also has remarried and lives at 4477 Elston avenue. The mother was awarded custody of Shirley at the time of the divorce.

Mrs. Elmstrom now wants the father to take the girl. Attorney Frank B. Teed, representing Mrs. Elmstrom, said Shirley was headstrong.

Wants to Study Music.

"All I did was go to shows and parties," said Shirley in the judge's chambers. "Nobody ever told me when I should come home.

"Mother wants me to be a stenographer. But I love music. I can sing. I would study music night and day."

"Apparently the mother doesn't want the responsibility any longer. How about you?" asked Judge Desort turning to Boese.

"I could take the girl, but I would lose my happy home," said Boese, a man in his late 30s. "My present wife would leave me."

Both at Fault, Says Judge.

"I'm happily married too, with two other children," said Mrs. Elmstrom.

"You're both to blame," said Judge Desort. "This girl is not to blame at all. The father could have helped her. The mother could have helped more than she has."

After the conference in chambers ended, Judge Desort ruled that Shirley should be sent to a private school.

Then Shirley, slim and straight, walked out—alone.

Attitudes were tense and voices were strained in the chambers of Judge Rudolph F. Desort yesterday. There were outbursts of weeping. Shouts punctuated the rapid flow of heated argument.

"She's mine!" It was the shrill voice of Mrs. Karolina Macha. "I've got her and I'm going to keep her!"

"Never! She means more to me than anything in the world!" Frank Macha, bent but still husky blacksmith of 67, was speaking.

Married 35 Years.

Judge Desort listened carefully to the testimony in one of the strangest custody disputes that ever got into Superior court. Mrs. Macha, who lives at 1902 West 69th street, was on one side with her attorney, Victor Frohlich. On the other side were Frank Macha and Attorney Anton Zeman.

The Machas had been married 35 years when they separated last May 31. In their 60s, Mrs. Macha was suing her husband for divorce.

"She can have a divorce. I've saved $40,000; give her half of that," said Macha. "But she shall not have In—"

Stolen, Charges Husband.

"You should talk!" interrupted his wife. "Why, I've slaved for her, bathed her, fed her, combed her hair for all the ten years of her life! Then when you left home, you took her!"

"I took her, yes," shouted Macha. "But you stole her back! I saw those two men come and take her away in the dark. You hired them!"

"I did not. She came to me because she loved me!"

The attorneys hovered anxiously. Judge Desort studied the ceiling.

The Judge Relents.

"I'll have to put her in a private home," he announced.

Mrs. Macha burst into uncontrolable sobs. Her grief was too much for the judge.

"All right," he announced. "You get the divorce, and you get custody."

Macha muttered something about an appeal. Mrs. Macha's eyes glowed as triumph mixed with tears. She went home to Injun, the 10 year old black and white terrier that all the wrangle was about.

BUCKNER FOUND GUILTY OF FRAUD

Playboy Promoter Faces 37 Year Sentence.

New York, June 30.—(AP)—William P. Buckner Jr., playboy promoter, and William J. Gillespie, a fellow broker, were convicted late today of fraud in the manipulation of defaulted Philippine railway bonds. The jury found them guilty on seven counts of mail fraud and one of conspiracy.

Two co-defendants—John Stuart Hyde, former British army officer, and C. W. Turner, also a broker—were acquitted. Both were charged with conspiracy and Turner also with mail fraud.

Another defendant, Felipe Buencamino, Philippine legislator, was convicted of conspiracy and acquitted of mail fraud.

Sentencing Date July 6.

Those convicted will be sentenced July 6. The maximum penalty for Buckner and Gillespie would be thirty-seven years' imprisonment and $24,000 in fines. For Buencamino it would be two years and $10,000.

The government's main accusation was twofold:

1. That Buckner, as chairman of a bondholders' protective committee, and Gillespie headed a scheme with the object of stealthily buying bonds in a low market and cashing in through efforts to have the Philippine government redeem them.

2. That the accused conspirators converted to their own use the money put up by others, including several Hollywood notables, for expenses in the redemption campaign.

"Beauty Lobby" Described.

In connection with the latter charge the government offered testimony of show girls that Buckner had taken a "beauty lobby" to Washington in an ostensible effort to get legislation there favorable to the bond redemption.

Buencamino was accused of demanding $50,000 to promote in the Philippines the program Buckner wanted. His defense was that he merely accepted a lawyer's brief and had no intention of using his political influence corruptly.

F. D. R. MONEY RULE KILLED; HOUSE BARS ARMS EXPORT

Amended New Deal Neutrality Bill Is Passed, 200 to 188.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 30.—The frantic and emotional pleas of house Democratic leaders tonight failed to avert a smashing defeat for President Roosevelt in connection with his new neutrality act.

By a roll call vote of 214 to 173, the house adopted an amendment to the administration's bill. The amendment imposes an embargo upon arms shipments to foreign belligerents.

By a margin of two votes, the leaders avoided slaughter of the bill. A motion to recommit, which would have meant an end to action at this session, was defeated by 196 to 194 with Speaker Bankhead casting the decisive vote in the negative. The bill then was passed by a vote of 200 to 188 and sent to the senate.

Act Drafted by Hull.

The act drafted by Secretary of State Cordell Hull with the President's approval had proposed the lifting of the arms embargo in the present law. This would have permitted belligerents with ships and money to buy war materials in the United States, giving a substantial advantage to Great Britain by virtue of its navy.

Speaker William B. Bankhead of Alabama, majority leader Sam Rayburn of Texas, and other Democratic leaders uttered impassioned arguments against the arms embargo. The speaker told of the "spiritual crucifixion" he would suffer if the administration's bill were not approved.

Against these appeals was offered the simple statement of Representative William J. Miller [R., Conn.], a veteran who lost his legs in the world war. Rolled into the well in a wheelchair, Miller said:

"All I hope is that bombs labeled 'made in America' will not be shipped abroad to kill women and children."

Disabled Veteran Cheered.

A roar from both Democratic and Republican sides greeted this remark. Soon thereafter, the Democratic leadership employed desperate strategy in an effort to save the President's bill. They offered a substitute bill discarding the amendment to lift the arms embargo.

"This is an almost unprecedented bit of parliamentary trickery," protested Representative Hamilton Fish [R., N. Y.], "it destroys representative government."

Representative John M. Vorys [R., O.], author of the amendment imposing the arms embargo, was more vehement.

Duck Pond for Democrats.

"This move is a duck pond for Democrats," he told the house. "It provides a place where cowardly members can duck and not take the rap for sending weapons of murder from America to foreign countries."

The embargo approved by the house applies only to the shipment of arms and ammunition, excluding the "implements of war" which are barred in the present law. It will stop the shipment of cannon, shells, bombing airplanes, and similar war equipment, while not prohibiting the shipment of trucks and airplanes not ostensibly fitted for combat.

The main provisions of the act follow:

1. When the President finds that a state of war exists between foreign states, he shall issue a proclamation naming the belligerents involved, and thereafter the shipment of arms and ammunition to the belligerent states shall be unlawful.

2. No citizen of the United States may travel, except at his own risk, on any vessel of the belligerent states unless the President grants him permission.

President Can Stop Shipment.

3. Loans and credits to belligerents are barred, and no materials shall be shipped to belligerents until title shall have been transferred in this country to some foreign government.

4. The President is empowered to stop shipment of arms by requiring bond of the shipper when he suspects arms are for a belligerent nation.

5. The President is given power to prohibit submarines or armed merchant vessels of any foreign state from entering American ports if he believes peace of country will be endangered.

Many of the foregoing regulations are in the existing law.

G. O. P. Fights Plan to Vote on Dollar Act Wednesday.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 1 [Saturday].—President Roosevelt's dictatorial powers over the nation's money and currency died last midnight, the statutory hour of their expiration, when the senate failed to reach a vote on legislation to extend them for two years.

The Roosevelt administration, however, refused to acknowledge defeat. While admitting that the President's powers were dead, administration leaders took the position that they would be resurrected by adoption of the extension legislation at any time.

Senate Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky read to the senate at 1:30 a. m. today a formal opinion prepared for President Roosevelt by Attorney General Frank Murphy holding that passage of the extension legislation would revive the dead powers.

Cries for Dictatorship.

The administration's defiance of the legislative process provoked indignation and charges of dictatorship on the part of many senators, including some who would have voted for the conference agreement extending the President's powers before midnight.

So confident were the Republicans and conservative Democrats that the senate would repudiate the President by voting down the conference agreement that they permitted an adjournment at 1:53 a. m. under a unanimous consent agreement to vote at 5 p. m. Wednesday. The senate will convene at 11 a. m. Wednesday, and no senator may speak for more than 30 minutes pending the vote at 5 o'clock.

At least five senators who were prepared to vote for the conference agreement before midnight announced privately that they would vote against it on Wednesday. On Tuesday the senate voted, 47 to 31, to abolish the President's power to devalue the dollar, but eight of these votes were cast by western silverites in return for Republican support of a 77.97 mandatory price for domestic silver.

Greater Defeat Predicted.

At least two of the silverites now are prepared to vote against the conference agreement, while three other senators who voted to continue the devaluation power said they would vote against it.

Thus it appears that the administration will be defeated on a straight senate vote on the conference report, which will constitute an even greater repudiation of the President than the killing of his extraordinary monetary powers tonight.

The President's attempt to regain his powers by means of a legalistic subterfuge, likened by some to Adolph Hitler's coup d'etat by means of a loophole in the constitution of the former German republic, raises one of the greatest constitutional issues in the history of the United States.

Doubt Any Court Action.

While opposition senators doubted that the question would ever reach the courts because of their confidence that the senate would vote down the conference agreement, they nevertheless prepared a record in the journal of the senate for any possible controversy in the courts.

Senator Warren R. Austin [R., Vt.], acting minority leader, stated the position of the opposition as follows:

"In fairness to all my colleagues, it should be stated that they will not decide the legal question. They will decide only the great question of principle and policy involved."

That was a solemn declaration that the conference agreement would be voted down.

Repudiates Own Position.

In producing the opinion from Attorney General Murphy, the defeated ex-governor of Michigan, the Roosevelt administration repudiated its own previous position. Only Thursday Majority Leader Barkley declared in the senate that the President's powers would expire at midnight June 30 without passage of the extension legislation, and that if they should expire they could not be revived without legislation ab initio [from the beginning]. That is, the original legislation would have to be reintroduced and put through the various parliamentary stages.

Only yesterday morning, at his press conference, President Roosevelt stated that parliamentarians in congress had advised that the pending legislation was drawn to extend existing law. If the law should expire, he said, it could not be extended, and new legislation would be required. But Attorney General Murphy advised the President:

"It is my opinion that the bill, if enacted after midnight, June 30, 1939, will confer upon you the powers enumerated until June 30, 1941."

The legislation which the bill sought to extend contained this phrase:

Tydings In at Actual Kill.

Senator Millard E. Tydings [D., Md.], a survivor of the New Deal purge misadventure, was speaking when the zero hour arrived. The Maryland Democrat had requested the honor of going in for the actual kill in order that Mr. Roosevelt would not have the consolation of blaming his defeat on a Republican filibuster.

Senator Tydings ridiculed President Roosevelt's prophecies of disaster if the senate's action abolishing his monetary powers should stand. He predicted that the sun would rise and that the world would not come to an end if the hour of midnight arrived without action on the pending legislation.

Laughter resounded from the galleries when Senator Tydings looked up at the clock and said: "I note that it is Saturday morning. It is one minute after midnight."

Republicans continued to hold the floor after Senator Tydings concluded at 12:30, with Senator Robert A. Taft [R., Ohio] taking over. They waited to make certain what the administration's next move would be.

Hundreds Fill Galleries.

The President's extraordinary monetary powers died in the most dramatic parliamentary situation since the recommitment and burial of his scheme to pack the United States Supreme court in July, 1937. The galleries were filled and hundreds of persons stood in line waiting in vain to witness the momentous scene in the senate.

It was the first victory and the first determined effort on the part of congress, or at least the senate, to repossess the powers vested in congress by the constitution, but surrendered to the chief executive in the so-called emergency days of 1933 and 1934.

Fails to Reach Vote.

When the conference agreement on the bill to extend the President's powers failed to reach a vote by midnight, the President lost:

1. His power to devalue the dollar from 59.06 down to 50 per cent of its former value at any time.
2. His power to maintain the 2 billion dollar stabilization fund; his power to pay any subsidy above the world price for domestic silver.
3. His power to issue silver certificates at $1.29 an ounce against such metal.
4. His power to fix the ratio of gold to silver at any point, thus putting the country on a bi-metallic standard.
5. His power to order the unlimited coinage of silver and gold.
6. His power to debase the silver dollar and subsidiary coins.
7. His power to inflate the currency by exercising a combination of these powers, to an estimable degree.

Vandenberg Leads G. O. P.

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg [R., Mich.], a recognized presidential prospect, delivered the major Republican speech in opposition to the monetary measure. He began by challenging the New Deal leaders to bring in a simple resolution extending the stabilization fund, which both the senate and the house approved, and predicted that it would pass unanimously.

"If they miss their stabilization fund on the morning of July 1, as they inevitably will, they can blame it to their own laxity in refusing or failing to realize that a continuing resolution in respect to the stabilization fund would pass in five minutes," said Senator Vandenberg.

Senator Vandenberg quoted from the writings of Adam Smith, the great classic economist, to support his assertion that money debasement was not discovered by Mr. Roosevelt, but was a device that had been resorted to by dictators since the dawn of history.

Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau's assertion that the farmers, the business men, and the laborers had better start worrying about the dollar if the devaluation power should lapse, was assailed by Vandenberg.

"They have done nothing else but worry," Vandenberg said, "and why should they not have worried, when there was a floating power resident in the hands of the President of the United States to be exercised solely and exclusively by him, a power in the hands of one man to affect the value of the money of 130,000,000 people, and thus to affect their destiny?

"When the secretary of the treasury has the temerity to say that when that insecurity is ended, when that speculation is terminated, when pursuant to the mandate of the constitution of the United States, congress, representing the elective will of the American people, instead of one autocrat down Pennsylvania avenue, shall control the value of the dollar—when the secretary says that that invites a doubt as to the value of our currency, he just simply does not make sense."

Strikes at Roosevelt.

Taking up what he called President Roosevelt's voluble and petulant animadversions on the senate's vote to abolish the monetary powers, Senator Vandenberg declared:

"He said that if this power and authority is not left in the exclusive hands of the chief executive, commencing at midnight, the national defense will be impaired. Well, Mr. President, there is a relationship between money and national defense, and a terribly important one. But of all the factors essential to a successful national defense a sound and solvent public credit represents exhibit A., and you cannot have a sound and solvent public credit rotating around a floating control of the value of your money at the mercy and the whim and the will of one single individual speaking the destiny of 130 million people.

"The President said that if you do not extend these devaluation powers of his that at midnight tonight the control of American money will pass back to Wall street. I wonder if our distinguished executive realized precisely what he was saying, because there is no escape from the conclusion that he was saying, wittingly or otherwise, that when congress—531 elected representatives of the American people—controled the value of money pursuant to the mandate of the constitution—that when congress controls money, Wall street controls it.

Welcome to Surrender.

"Mr. President, if congress wants to submit and surrender to any such implied contemplation as that they are welcome!"

Before the Republican bombardment began, two senate Democrats vehemently condemned the action of the conference committee, dominated by New Deal yes-men, in betraying the action of the senate without forcing the house conferees to go back to their body for roll call votes on the specific senate amendments abolishing dollar devaluation and terminating the administration's foreign silver purchase program.

Senator D. Worth Clark [D., Idaho] said the action of the conferees was "unreasonable."

Senator Alva B. Adams [D., Colo.], a member of the conference committee who refused to sign the report, although he represents a silver state and the agreement fixes a mandatory price of 71 cents an ounce for domestic silver, said the conferees "capitulated practically without firing a shot."

"It was a surrender to the house; it was like the surrender at Appomatox—we were without our side arms," he said.

"The conferees were not adamant, however, against the domestic purchase of silver. Now, why did they do that?"

This was an allusion to the administration's surrender to the western silverites in order to break up their combination with the Republicans and conservative Democrats on the question of devaluation.

Bill Delayed in House.

The conference agreement on the monetary powers bill reached the senate at 5 p. m. yesterday, having been delayed in the house for more than four hours by a Republican strategy which forced five roll calls and included a one hour speech on a point of personal privilege by Representative Clare E. Hoffman [R., Mich.]. The house approved it by a vote of 229 to 160.

After a speech by Senator Rush D. Holt [D., W. V.] in opposition to the relief bill the senate approved that measure.

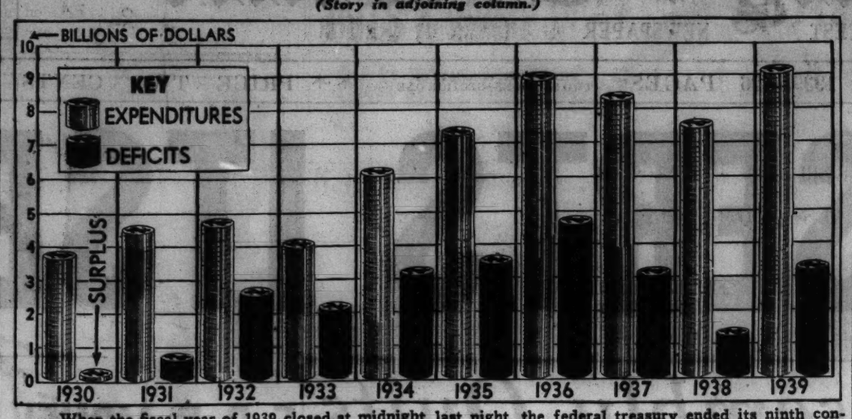
Then Senator Robert F. Wagner [D., N. Y.], manager of the monetary powers legislation, called it up for consideration. He spoke at length defending the bill and defended the conferees in throwing out the senate amendments.

The administration's monetary policies were repudiated first when the senate deleted everything from the extension legislation except the 2 billion dollar exchange stabilization fund, which is used in a tripartite agreement with England and France to stabilize the dollar, the pound, and the franc.

This victory was made possible by a deal between the Republicans and the western silverites. The Republicans backed a fixed price of 77.57 cents an ounce for newly mined silver. In return, the silverites supported the proposal to abolish the President's power to devalue the dollar from 59.06 down to 50 per cent of its former value. Another feature of the deal was termination of all foreign silver purchases.

Nation Closes Ninth Year with Deficit

(Story in adjoining column.)



When the fiscal year of 1939 closed at midnight last night, the federal treasury ended its ninth consecutive year of expenditures exceeding incomes. The graph shows the expenditures for each of the last ten years, the small surplus of the first of those years, and the deficits of the remaining nine.

THIS WILL BE RESULT OF PRESIDENT'S LOSS OF RULE OVER MONEY

Washington, D. C., June 30 [Saturday].—(AP)—Here's what officials say will happen because of the failure of the senate to pass the monetary bill by midnight last night:

SILVER—Because of a holiday for government workers until after July 4, no silver of any kind will be bought until at least Wednesday. Meanwhile the presidential proclamation under which 64.64 cents per ounce has been paid for newly mined domestic silver will expire, and the only silver buying authority left to the treasury will lie in the silver purchase act of 1934. Heretofore this act was used only to buy foreign silver at much lower prices. Yesterday's offer was 38 cents per ounce.

GOLD—The President's power to change the gold value of the dollar, under which in 1934 he devalued the dollar from a parity of $20.76 an ounce to $35 per ounce of gold, will expire. Gold will stay legally at $35 per ounce.

STABILIZATION FUND—The sum of slightly more than 2 billion dollars in the fund will lapse into the general fund of the treasury, at least temporarily suspending the fund's operations. This means that the fund will have to stop buying and selling dollars and gold in the foreign exchange markets of the world. While the fund is inactive, the value of the dollar, in terms of the English pound, for instance, will be established by private transactions in the foreign exchange markets. There money prices are determined in much the same way that grain prices are on the Chicago Board of Trade.

LABOR BOARD INQUIRY GIVEN APPROVAL BY COMMITTEE OF HOUSE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 30.—The house rules committee today reported favorably on a resolution to investigate the administration of the Wagner labor act. Representative Eugene E. Cox [D., Ga.], ranking member of the committee, predicted that the investigating resolution would be adopted overwhelmingly by the house when it comes up for consideration next week.

E. E. Cox.

"The labor board will be made to know that this is America," said Cox, "and that congress proposes to protect it against such misrepresentation as has been carried on by the board."

The resolution, sponsored by Representative Howard W. Smith [D., Va.], calls for the appointment of a committee of five representatives to investigate the labor board and its administration of the labor relations act.

The committee is empowered in the resolution to inquire into the conduct and decisions of the labor board and its dealing with labor organizations, employers, and employés. It is also called upon to decide what amendments are desirable in order to bring about better relations between labor unions and between employers and employés.

An investigation of the personnel of the board, which is said to be communistic in its inclinations, will also be conducted by the committee.

NATION'S DEFICIT 3½ BILLION; 6TH UNDER ROOSEVELT

Third Highest in Peace Time History.

Washington, D. C., June 30.—(AP)—Fiscal new year's eve found the treasury's income $3,580,000,000 short of costs tonight, and the gross national debt roughly $40,378,000,000.

The deficit was the third highest in peace-time history and the debt the largest in history. The deficit is the sixth under Roosevelt.

The federal bookkeepers turned the ledger pages to the next fiscal year, which is expected to show higher expenditures and a larger deficit. Not counting the $3,860,000,000 extra-budgetary lending program suggested by the President, the next year's expenditures, on the basis of pending appropriations, are expected by officials to exceed revenues by roughly $3,700,000,000.

Double Previous Year.

This year's deficit, though $492,000,000 under what was officially predicted six months ago, was more than double the $1,449,625,000 of the previous year. It was outranked in peacetime only by the $4,952,928,000 of fiscal year 1936, when the soldiers' bonus was paid, and the $3,782,966,000 of the fiscal year 1935, when New Deal public works and relief expenditures first began to bulk large.

The smaller than expected deficit was due to expenses falling behind and revenues rising above the estimates. The expenditure total of $9,250,000,000 was $342,329,000 less than indicated by President Roosevelt's budget message to congress last January although it was the highest peacetime total. WPA, PWA, and a host of other agencies failed to spend as much as expected. WPA, however, fell below the estimate mostly because congress sliced $50,000,000 off the last WPA appropriation.

Business Upturn Shown.

Business last year turned out to be somewhat more profitable than calculated, and higher income and other taxes pushed the year's treasury revenue total to $5,670,000,000, which was $150,000,000 more than the President expected.

Although lagging behind the $6,241,661,226 revenue total of the previous year, the receipts were the second best since the depression began.

The deficit marked down today was the ninth in a row. Of these, six were under Roosevelt, two under Hoover and the ninth, for the fiscal year 1933, spread over the end of the Hoover and the beginning of the Roosevelt term.

Four gunmen who have specialized in holding up outlying business offices, added two more to their list of victims yesterday. They first appeared in the office of the Paradise Ice Cream company, 4501 Lake street, menaced Sol Brandwein, the owner, and several employés, and stole $54. Soon afterward they entered the office of the Liberty Bottling company, 4413 Cermak road, held up Joseph Brody, the owner, and a group of employés, and got $200.

ROOSEVELT SIGNS BILLION DOLLAR FARM MEASURE

Washington, D. C., June 30.—(AP)—President Roosevelt signed tonight a $1,194,498,633 agriculture appropriation bill, but took occasion to remind congress that it should provide additional funds to meet expenses not covered by the budget. Mr. Roosevelt pointed out that if he withheld his approval the agriculture department and the farm credit administration would stop functioning tomorrow. Mr. Roosevelt referred to the fact that congress had added $225,000,000 to the bill but made no provision for raising the additional revenue.

MILK HEARING IS HYPOCRISY, SAYS SUMNER

Denounces Two Policies of Government.

Steve Sumner, secretary of the milk wagon drivers' union, who will be 90 years old Tuesday, charged yesterday that if the government is sincere in its efforts to clear up chaotic conditions in the Chicago milk market, it should eliminate racketeering and not harass members of the industry with an anti-trust indictment.

Steve Sumner.

Sumner was the last witness at the hearing in the Stevens hotel on Secretary of Agriculture Wallace's third attempt to force a price dictatorship on the Chicago milk market. His appearance was a surprise. His booming voice, belying his years, transferred what had been a sedate session into almost an uproar.

Indicted in Trust Case.

Sumner is one of the defendants among sixty-three individuals and thirty-four corporations who have been indicted by the federal grand jury under the Sherman anti-trust law on charges of conspiracy to control milk and ice cream prices. The defendants contend that Secretary Wallace's proposal aims at exactly what is condemned in the indictment.

Ascending the stand yesterday, Sumner faced Paul Miller, the government's chief economist at the hearing, and directed his remarks to him.

"Old man Sherman is dead," Steve roared, "and his anti-trust act ought to be dead, too. When the milk producers, the distributors and myself and other representatives of labor sit down to work out a plan, what happens? The government socks us with an anti-trust indictment.

Assails Cheap, Inferior Milk.

"If the government wants to be honest about this—get that, Mr. Miller—and cut out racketeering and bootlegging of cheap, inferior milk, everything will be O. K. But until the government gives us—the represenatives of labor — the privilege of sitting in to determine proper handling of milk, why, we'll have to fight for the union drivers alone.

"I don't believe the price of milk should be lowered, and the government ought to push out any one who tries to undersell. I want a square deal for the farmer, the distributor, and for labor."

Much of Sumner's ire was directed against the independent dairies, which undersell the large companies and do not employ union drivers.

Charges Gang Methods Used.

"Al Capone and his men tried to circle the city and levy tribute on milk and other foods," the militant Sumner shouted. "We don't want him back here. They started another company with $50,000 I had to turn over to redeem a man who had been kidnaped."

Sumner did not explain who "they" were. It was recalled, however, that last January at a federal hearing involving the government's income tax claims against Murray Humphreys, former public enemy, Sumner declared he had seen Humphreys collect a $50,000 kidnaping ransom in 1931.

The man kidnaped was Robert G. Fitchie, president of the Milk Wagon Drivers' union, who is also under indictment in the alleged milk conspiracy. Sumner delivered the money for Fitchie's release and asserted that Humphreys picked up the package of currency. Humphreys was once Capone's chief lieutenant.

An earlier witness yesterday was Arthur H. Lauterbach, manager of the Pure Milk association, a cooperative representing many of the dairy farmers in the Chicago area. The association requested the present hearing on the marketing proposal which would fix minimum and maximum prices to milk producers and would provide for an administrator to enforce the regulations.

Fears "Slum Farm Area."

Lauterbach asserted that regulation of the market is necessary to prevent dealers from going beyond a seventy mile zone in the Chicago area and purchasing milk at lower prices.

"If the nearby producer isn't protected," Lauterbach said, "The zone around Chicago will become a slum farm area."

Glen J. Gifford, representing the department of agriculture and the United States solicitor's office, presided at the hearing. In closing it late yesterday he announced that attorneys for the Pure Milk association and the milk dealers would have until July 22 to file argument briefs. It is not expected that Secretary Wallace will take any action on the proposed agreement for several months. If he does enter an order in accord with the agreement the order must be put to a referendum vote of producers before it can be put into effect.

Twenty-five Witnesses Heard.

The hearing, which began last Monday, was called by Secretary Wallace. Notices were sent to interested parties, including producers, distributors, and processors, and representatives of labor and consumers' organizations.

More than twenty-five witnesses testified.

Chief proponents of the marketing order were officials of the Pure Milk association and the Milk Producers counsel. They declared such an order is needed to stabilize the industry to assure farmers a fair return.

Opponents of the plan included officials of the processing and distributing companies and leaders of consumers' organizations. These said the order would add to the chaos in the milk situation, would force the consumer to pay more for milk, and thus would result in decreasing consumption.

Dancer Dies in Plunge

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

EILEEN O'CONNOR.

New York, June 30.—(AP)—Eluding the grasp of a man who said he had rejected her pleas of marriage, a 19 year old café dancer plunged nine stories to her death today from the window of the Van Cortlandt hotel.

She was Eileen O'Connor of Clifton, N. J., known professionally as Blai Buchard. Alexander Bukocsik, 25, who vainly sought to save her, told the police the girl came here about ten days ago after finishing a dancing engagement in Baltimore.

The girl, he said, sought to renew her acquaintance with him. Last night, he related, they visited several restaurants and then went to his room, where she implored him to marry her. He said he was unemployed and could not assume the responsibility.

Thereupon, Bukocsik said, the young woman made a dash for the window. He managed to grab her, he said, but she broke free.

NEW DEAL LOBBY PUTS A CRIMP IN BAN ON POLITICS

Hatch Measure Weakened in Committee.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 30.—The house judiciary committee today acceded to the demands of White House lobbyists and drastically amended the Hatch bill which seeks to restrain government employés from political activities. The committee then reported the measure to the house.

As passed by the senate recently, the bill, sponsored by Senator Carl A. Hatch [D., N. M.], prohibited all administrative employés of the government from taking an active part in political management or in political campaigns. This provision was stricken out by the house committee. It retained only the stipulation that such employés should not use their official authority or influence for the purpose of interfering with an election or of affecting the results thereof.

Would Have Restricted Delegates.

President Roosevelt and his advisers had objected to the senate version of the measure. The bill would have prevented government administrative employés from acting as delegates to the 1940 Democratic national convention at which Mr. Roosevelt is expected to make his bid for a nomination for a third term. A majority of the delegates usually are such employés and the President could expect to secure the nomination with ease. Passage of the Hatch bill in its original form would have made the nomination more difficult.

Removal of the senate restriction by the house committee was credited to Charles Michelson, publicity representative of the Democratic national committee, who has spent weeks lobbying against the measure.

Informed of the house action, Senator Hatch took the senate floor to condemn the committee's action.

Decision Called a Challenge.

"The committee's action kills and destroys that vital part of the bill which seeks to ban pernicious political activity of federal employés," he asserted. "It has destroyed the substance of the entire bill with relation to the political activities of federal employés generally.

"Shall federal employés continue to control and dominate conventions? That is the issue. It is definitly drawn. The challenge must be met. Let it be met openly. If the objectives are to be killed let them die honorably."

As reported to the house the bill restrains administrative employés of the government [which includes postmasters] from using their official authority to interfere with or affect the election of any candidate for the office of President, Vice President, presidential elector, member of the senate or house of representatives. A proviso was added that this should not affect the right of such persons to state their preferences with respect to any such candidates or to participate in the activities of a political party, the last phrase having been added by the house committee.

The bill provides that it shall be unlawful for any person to intimidate, threaten, or coerce any other person for the purpose of interfering with the right of such other person to vote as he may choose.

After hearing two witnesses testify that Miss Negri had suffered much moral damage over the weekly's allegation, the court adjourned to deliberate. It will give its decision next week.

NORTH DAKOTA'S MEDICAL UTOPIA ENDS IN FAILURE

Bismarck, N. D., June 30.—[Special.]—The New Deal's attempt to socialize medicine in North Dakota ended at midnight tonight after an eight months' trial that doomed it a failure.

Those in charge of the experimental program said it broke down because doctors and physicians involved were dissatisfied with financial returns. The Farm Security administration, which launched the plan last fall, insisted at that time it would not hurt the medical profession.

The project was carried on among FSA clients by the Farmers Mutual Aid corporation. It was based on a health insurance system of pooling small monthly contributions from clients. Under the plan each eligible FSA client who was head of a family contributed $2 a month to cover medical and surgical needs of his family. If the client couldn't pay, the FSA lent him the necessary amount. The government also provided general supervision.

BROTHER-IN-LAW OF ALD. ROWAN IS SHOT IN BAR ROW

Two men, one the brother-in-law of Ald. William Rowan [10th], were wounded early today following a brawl in the tavern at 8822½ Stony Island avenue.

They were John Dunne, 37 years old, 8819 Harper avenue, a city truck driver and kin of the alderman, and Marion S. Conlin, 39, of 13336 Avenue O, an accountant. Dunne was shot in the abdomen and is in a serious condition in the Little Company of Mary hospital. Conlin was grazed on the abdomen by a bullet, and was taken to the South Chicago hospital.

According to police Dunne got into a fist fight with a third man in the tavern, and bested him. The man, said to be a handbook employé, left, but returned and fired four shots at close range at Dunne and Conlin. He is being sought. The tavern which is owned by Fulton Trowbridge, was bombed in March, 1937.

CONGRESS VOTES RELIEF OUTLAY OF 1¾ BILLIONS

Compromise Bill Is Hailed as New Deal Rebuke.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 30.—The house and senate joined tonight in approval of a compromise agreement appropriating one billion 755 millions of dollars for the WPA and other agencies designed to deal with the unemployment and relief problems.

President Roosevelt signed the bill a short time later, commenting as he did so that the measure contained several provisions "which will work definite hardship and inequality on more than 2,000,000 citizens." He said the bill had reached him at 10 p. m., and "obviously I cannot withhold my signature and stop work relief for the needy unemployed." If he had not signed the bill by midnight all agencies concerned would have been left without funds.

The house vote of approval was overwhelming, 321 to 23. A record vote was not taken in the senate, and only about twenty senators were on the floor for the final action.

PWA Is No More.

The $125,000,000 fund earmarked for the Public Works administration was eliminated in the compromise agreement. This means that the PWA goes out of existence tomorrow, although attempts will be made to revive it later in the session.

Hailed by Representative John Taber [R., N. Y.], ranking minority member of the appropriations committee, as the first step taken by congress toward promoting efficiency in the administration of relief, the compromise contains many restrictions on New Deal relief spending.

The main victory won by President Roosevelt, at the insistence of senate conferees, was the abolition of a provision for a three man board to administer the WPA. Under the compromise a single administrator, as at present, will preside.

There remained in the measure, as it reached the White House, a number of provisions distasteful to the chief executive and widely interpreted as a rebuke to past extravagance and waste in the administration of the WPA.

The total appropriation of $1,755,600,000 in the bill represented a compromise between the house appropriation of $1,735,000,000 and the senate figure of $1,803,300,000.

Senate conferees accepted the house figure of $100,000,000 for the National Youth administration instead of the senate allowance of $123,000,000. The farm tenant loans fund, which the house passed at $123,000,000 and the senate raised to $163,000,000, was set by the conferees at $143,000,000. A $10,000,000 fund for refinancing farm tenant mortgages was eliminated.

Theater Project Thrown Out.

Of the total fund $1,477,000,000 will go to the WPA, the new name for which is the Work Projects administration.

Over the protests of the senate conferees the house members insisted upon junking of the federal theater project. The other arts projects are allowed to continue if local communities put up at least 25 per cent of their cost. These include the music, writing, and artists' projects.

"Leaving these other art projects in the measure on a sponsorship basis is perhaps a blunder," Representative Clinton A. Woodrum [D., Va.], head of the house conferees, told the house, "but a compromise had to be reached."

The WPA appropriation represents a reduction of $773,000,000 from the amount spent by the agency in the fiscal year ending tonight. It is designed to provide jobs for approximately 2,000,000 persons compared to 3,000,000 this year.

The government may not spend more than $52,000 on any WPA project under the compromise bill. The house had set a ceiling of $40,000 and the senate had fixed one of $75,000 for the federal contribution to projects.

This limitation was one particularly in disfavor with the President, inasmuch as it puts an end to the starting of most of the grandiose projects conceived by the administration under the guise of work relief.

WPA workers who have been on relief rolls eighteen months must take a thirty day layoff under the agreement between the two houses. Workers who are certified as still in need after thirty days must take their place with other applicants for places on the WPA rolls.

WORK TO BE INTERRUPTED.

Charles E. Miner, Illinois WPA administrator, announced yesterday that all projects in the state except those operating in institutions for the care of the sick will be inoperative until July 5 pending local reorganization under the new law. Since today, tomorrow, and Tuesday would have been holidays anyway, this will mean that relief workers will be laid off only on Monday.

M'NUTT GREETED IN INDIANAPOLIS AS 1940 FAVORITE

Indianapolis, Ind., June 30.—(AP)—Indianapolis Democrats acclaimed Paul V. McNutt as their favorite son for the 1940 presidential nomination in a festive homecoming celebration today. The occasion was McNutt's return from his post as high commissioner to the Philippine Islands.

A cheering crowd, estimated by reception officials at 15,000, stood for two hours under a blazing sun in historic Monument circle to welcome the former governor and hear him voice a plea for world peace.

McNutt reiterated his belief that a realistic reëxamination should be made of the question of Philippine independence. He described the Philippines as the only sure outpost for Americanism in the orient. He did not mention his presidential candidacy.

First Aid Suggestions for Fireworks Burns Are Given by Doctor

Don't allow your children to play with fireworks this year. But if you do, read the advice of Dr. Irving S. Cutter, dean of the Northwestern university medical school, who issued the following first aid suggestions yesterday:

Don't try to treat eye injuries, no matter if they appear trivial. Tiny powder grains may cause ulcers. Take the injured person to a doctor.

Don't use antiseptics, such as iodine, on burns or cuts. If the skin is broken, use plain soap and water in a good scrubbing of the wound, even if the cleansing is painful.

Oil or an oily salve may be used on a burn that does not break through the surface of the skin.

A burn that goes through the surface of the skin should be thoroughly cleaned. The great danger from such a burn is the possibility of lockjaw.

Don't use oil, an oily salve, cotton or anything else that will keep air away from a deep burn. Exposure to the air helps kill tetanus [lockjaw] germs.

A 5 per cent tannic acid solution is helpful on deep burns. [Two teaspoons full of acid to 25 of water.] Spray, daub, or drop it on the wound until a thick crust is formed.

Washington, D. C., June 30.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today nominated Brig. Gen. George C. Marshall to the permanent rank of major general. Marshall is succeeding Gen. Andrews, until last February head of the general headquarters air force, to be a brigadier general.

MR. YOCUM DIGS UP EVERYTHING BUT HIS MEMORY

Mystified Neighbors Learn Deep Secret at Last.

BY ROBERT CROMIE.

Ray Yocum leaned on a shovel in the side yard of his home in De Kalb yesterday. For several hours Yocum had been tossing shovelfuls of dirt into a trench that ran for fifty feet along the wire fence. Somewhere buried within a few feet of where he stood there should have been a fruit jar crammed with $2,300 in bills. But after six weeks of digging for it Yocum was giving up.

"I don't believe in fortune tellers," he said, "but six different soothsayers have told me the money's still here. In Belvidere one fortune teller even told me the amount, and what it was buried in, and the whole darn business." He grinned. "Maybe I'll take another crack at it some day when I feel hard up."

Neighbors Learn Secret.

Yocum, 41 years old, has lived in a little stucco house on highway 330 at the east end of De Kalb for forty years. For the last eighteen years he has run a garage at the rear of his home.

About six weeks ago his neighbors saw Yocum digging in his side yard. After a couple of hours he stopped, but two garage helpers, Henry Boddy and Jack Murray, kept on working at odd hours day after day. To questioners the three explained they were digging for gold, moving a tree, or whatever else they thought of.

Finally the story came out.

Yocum said he had loaned his uncle the $2,300 and the uncle repaid the loan one evening last November. It was past banking hours, so Yocum says he buried the money in a fruit jar. For some reason he did not look for it until recently when he wanted to pay for some remodeling in his home.

Friends Pitch in and Help.

Since then all his friends, including the chief of police of De Kalb, have taken a crack at looking for it without success. They suspect some one saw Yocum bury the money and dug right after him.

His wife came out yesterday to watch the vain search. Yocum looked at her and laughed.

"She married me for my money," he said, "but she sure got fooled."

"Just so we have our health," Mrs. Yocum nodded, regarding her husband with what actually seemed to be an approving glance.

They began talking about other things then. They talked of their son, Kenneth, 12, who joined the Boy Scouts last February and already is a second class scout; his skill with an accordion; their hopes of sending him through college.

Still Has Soldier's Bonus.

They mentioned Yocum's soldier's bonus of $1,500. "Where is it, honey?" Yocum asked. "You know I've never cashed it." And they talked of the twenty sheep gamboling in their adjoining field.

"You know," Yocum said sadly, "I used to have a ball diamond down at the end of the pasture there and the boys would come out from town and play. But this year the sheep didn't keep it cut and the grass is too long."

Then he resumed shoveling dirt in the trench where the fruit jar with $2,300 wasn't anymore.

Boy Killed, 4 Pals Injured in Pre-Fourth of July Blast

Worcester, Mass., June 30.—(AP)—Stanley Singleton, 14 years old, was killed and four of his buddies were injured tonight when a bottle of gunpowder they had saved from last year's Fourth of July celebration exploded. Police said one of the boys threw a match into the bottle. A splinter of glass pierced Stanley's jugular vein.

MEXICAN DOUBTS FEED ANIMOSITY FOR FOREIGNERS

Good Neighbor Policy Held in Mistrust.

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, June 30.—A deep rooted animosity toward foreigners, Americans in particular, exists in Mexico today.

History and climate and the psychological makeup of the Mexican have an important bearing on the fact, but much of the present animosity is traceable to recent acts of the Mexican government under its six year plan, skepticism of the American good neighbor policy, and the acts of American visitors to Mexico.

There was a demonstration against an American school recently after the Mexican air ace, Francisco Sarabia, was killed in a crash near Washington, D. C., when he started home from his record flight from Mexico City to New York. Many Mexicans believed the unfortunate accident was due to sabotage.

Recall Old Scores.

The publisher of one of Mexico City's leading papers ridiculed the idea of American sabotage, but pointed out that there were many other offenses of which our country might be guilty.

Mexicans recall that Taylor and Scott overran their country in the middle of the 19th century. They recall that Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, and California once belonged to them. The attack on Vera Cruz in 1914 could not be interpreted as a good will mission. More recent acts of the American military in different Central American countries have kept Mexico reminded of the many guns across the border to the north.

Policies carried out under the present Mexican administration's six year plan—the nationalization of railroads and turning them over to worker control, the breaking up of big haciendas and parcelling of land to peasants, and the expropriation of foreign owned oil properties—have heightened the nationalistic feeling among the Mexican masses and stimulated hate against America.

Fear Silver Maneuvers.

Fear and doubts about Washington, D. C.'s silver policy—which has a direct bearing on the Mexican peso and Mexico's prosperity from the sale of silver—has heightened mistrust concerning the sincerity of the American good neighbor policy.

Foreign propaganda and influence have added their fuel to the smoldering flame of animosity. One Mexican worker was heard to say:

"If God is with us, Hitler will give us back our southwestern United States."

Americans themselves contribute constantly to the irritation. Tourists, most of whom are on their first trip beyond their own borders, assume an attitude of superiority, saying and doing things they would not think of at home.

Practically everything that has been done down here—in large scale construction, the development of railroad, mining and oil properties, and the introduction of automobiles, modern living appliances, modern clothes and manufactured products—has been done or directed by foreigners in Mexico.

Delegate Energy to Others.

The Mexican masses envy the Americans their accomplishments, but feel that their own freedom to be dull and lifeless, unpractical and philosophical is threatened the moment a foreigner and particularly an American is among them.

Eighty per cent of Mexico's population is Indian, of closely related stock. Generations of living in a hot and tropical climate with practically no difference between seasons has produced a race that is content with far lower standards than those demanded by Americans.

A visit to an out of the way inland town convinces an observer that the Mexicans, much like the many persons in our own deep south sections, do not want to be industrious, do not want to be efficient, and do not want higher standards at the expense of energy.

There is a saying in Mexico that if you can't get it for nothing, why do you want it?

Eight Perfect Days

June was the warmest month on the average of any June in the last five years, Forecaster H. A. Downs announced yesterday. The mean temperature for the month was 70.8, against the normal mean of 67.1 degrees. The highest was 92 on June 16 and the lowest 49 two days before.

There were only two days when the mercury went to 90 or above. There were eight clear days in the month, fourteen partly cloudy, and eight cloudy. There was 69 per cent of the possible sunshine, compared with the normal of 70.

Precipitation during the month totaled 5.12 inches. The normal is 3.22 inches, leaving an excess of 1.90. The excess since Jan. 1 thus was increased to 3 inches. There were fourteen days on which precipitation was enough to record. Prevailing wind was from the southwest, and reached its highest velocity of 27 miles per hour on June 16.

The forecast for today is partly cloudy and somewhat warmer, with cloudy and cooler weather expected tomorrow.

Liquor Licenses Expire; 833 Issued on Last Day

City Collector Louis Rixmann said last night that 833 liquor licenses had been issued during the day. This brought the total of new and renewed license applications to 3,002. There were 9,330 tavern licenses issued for the first half of the year. These licenses expired yesterday. Officials indicated tavern owners would be given further time to get new licenses.

SLAYER SHOWS POLICE HOW HE KILLED MOTHER

Hollywood, Cal., June 30.—(AP)—Campbell McDonald re-enacted for police today the manner in which officers charge he beat to death his mother, Margaret Campbell, a former actress and recently a WPA dramatics teacher.

Taken to the Hollywood rooming house where he and his mother occupied a single room, McDonald, who is 25 years old and a student, stood over a blood-stained bed and swung a hammer with which he admitted attacking his mother early last Monday.

"My mother came home around 1 o'clock Monday morning," he said. "She went to bed. I was lying there and I recall falling asleep and everything seemed like a dream. I got up and the moon was shining through the window and on the bed where my mother was asleep. I picked up the hammer and I struck her several times."

McDonald said he washed his hands and left the apartment. After wandering around Hollywood and nearby towns he hailed a patrol car at Santa Monica last night. He told police that his mother had threatened to put him in an institution.

GUNMAN KILLED IN POLICE BATTLE ST. CHARLES GRAD

A former St. Charles parolee, who boasted that he would shoot the first policeman who tried to arrest him, was in the county morgue last night with several police bullets in his body. He was shot earlier in the day when he attempted to carry out his threat.

Steve Melish.

The former parolee is Steve Melish, 21 years old, 220 West 109th street. He was killed when he fired at four policemen who tried to arrest him as a prowler in front of 9538 Bell avenue. The slain parolee's brother, Edward, believed to have been with him, was arrested by police early today.

The parolee's boast was told by his father, Andrew Melish. The slain gunman was sent to St. Charles in 1933, for burglary and was paroled in 1934.

New York, June 30.—[Special.]—Two children and two men who made an heroic effort to rescue them were drowned tonight in an East Rutherford, N. J., storm sewer which filled and overflowed within a few minutes after a downpour. The dead are: Sophie Kostophilis, 11 years old; Robert Unger, 7; William Steigelman, 50, and Louis Henry Pfeiff, 37. The children had been playing at the foot of a railroad right-of-way and were swept into the storm sewer as the water rose.

3 GET TEN YEAR SENTENCES FOR HIGHWAY THEFT

Three Chicago Negroes got ten year sentences in Valparaiso, Ind., yesterday on their pleas of guilty to highway thievery. They are Edward Satchel, 21 years old; Robert Carlton, 22, and George Mitchell, 47. They were captured near Chesterton, Ind., June 3, after a forty-five mile chase by Indiana state police in which one of their pals, Ted Harris, 22, a parolee, was killed by police bullets. In court yesterday Satchel, Mitchell, and Carlton admitted stealing from an interstate truck. Judge Mark Rockwell sentenced Satchel and Carlton to the Pendleton reformatory, and Mitchell to the Michigan City penitentiary.

Dime's Worth of Evidence Convicts Youth as Burglar

But when Shealey testified the money contained an 1835 dime, subsequently found in Neeley's possession, the youth was convicted.

ENGLISH ENVOYS RUSH HOME WITH DANZIG REPORTS

Ambassador to Poland Is First to Arrive.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 30.—British envoys from key capitals of Europe are being called to London to report to the cabinet on the latest developments in the Danzig situation, it was revealed tonight.

Sir Howard Kennard, ambassador to Warsaw, was the first arrival. He flew here from Poland today. Ambassador Sir Nevile Henderson is reported coming back from Berlin next week to be followed by Sir Reginald Hoare, minister to Bucharest, Rumania.

Nominally, the diplomats are returning on leave, but it was disclosed they will confer directly with Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax.

Suspicious of Deal.

Ambassador Kennard's sudden return revived suspicions in opposition quarters that the Chamberlain government is seeking to induce the Poles to deal with Reichsfuehrer Hitler over Danzig.

The suggestion that a new Munich may be brewing coincided with the report published here tonight that Baron Edouard Geyr, in behalf of Joachim von Ribbentrop, German foreign minister, visited London last week to urge the British government to advise the Poles to hand over Danzig to the reich without hostilities.

Delay in Action on Danzig.

In return for the British government's good offices, von Ribbentrop is said to have proposed that the Germans do nothing about Danzig until the British parliament has adjourned for the summer vacation beginning in August.

Viscount Halifax's speech last night warning that Britain would not tolerate further aggression in Europe and at the same time appealing for German coöperation in a new bid for European unity and economic reconstruction is believed to have been framed as an answer to Berlin's proposals.

MOTHER TO KEEP ORRS' CHILDREN, COURT DECIDES

The fight between Willard J. Orr, Chicago real estate dealer, and his former wife, Mrs. Florence Allen, over custody of their children, Willard Jr., 10 years old, and Priscilla, 9, was carried to Los Angeles yesterday and apparently ended there. Judge Benjamin J. Scheinman denied Orr's petition that the children be taken from his wife.

The judge ruled in effect that Los Angeles was now their home. Orr and his ex-wife, who is now the wife of Nolen Allen, Los Angeles planning commission head, fought many rounds of their battle in the Chicago courts with conflicting success.

STEAL PURSES OF 5 WOMEN AT DINNER PARTY

A sneak thief last night stole the purses of five women guests at a dinner party at the home of Dr. Herman M. Sondel, 3006 Logan boulevard. The thief climbed through a bedroom window and took the purses from a bed. The victims, who were at the party with their husbands, were Mrs. Max Cable, 5335 Magnolia avenue; Mrs. Albert Maling, 503 Briar place; Mrs. James Olshan, 534 Cornelia avenue; Mrs. Nathan Kruger, 5130 Greenwood avenue, and Mrs. J. Zucker, 6419 Newgard avenue. They lost sums ranging from $5 to $16. Mrs. Cable also lost a diamond brooch valued at $700.

Princess Weds Today

Princess Irene.

FLORENCE, Italy, June 30.—(AP)—The Duke of Spoleto and Princess Irene of Greece, who will be married tomorrow, were honored tonight at a dinner in historic Pitti palace attended only by royalty.

Among the fifty-eight diners the lowest title was that of duke.

Guests included the king and queen of Italy, King George of Greece, Queen Ioanna of Bulgaria, former King Alfonso of Spain and former Queen Helen of Rumania.

The Duke and Duchess of Kent flew from London. The duchess is a cousin of the bride-to-be.

The Duke of Spoleto is 39 and Princess Irene is 35.

DALADIER HEARS POLISH TERMS IN DANZIG DISPUTE

Hint of Negotiations with Nazis.

PARIS, June 30.—(AP)—Premier Edouard Daladier was understood tonight by French diplomatic circles to have received Poland's conditions for negotiating with Germany toward a peaceful solution of the Danzig issue.

A special report on the German-Polish quarrel over Danzig was brought from Warsaw by French Ambassador Leon Noel, who conferred with Daladier as did the British ambassador to Paris, Sir Eric Phipps. But what conditions were made was not known.

[Official sources in Warsaw said that no concrete proposals had been advanced and that no direct negotiations were under way with Germany. Poles said their nation would not acquiesce to "another Munich."]

Report Talks Have Started.

Some diplomats said they understood tentative discussions already had been started between Poland and Germany, but there was no confirmation of this report.

New emphasis on French-Polish friendship was given tonight by the presence of President Albert Lebrun at a celebration of the 20th anniversary of the Friends of Poland society.

Speakers, including members of the French government and high army officers, stressed the long history of friendship between the two nations.

The French government, meanwhile, decided to put on sale an unlimited bond issue to obtain funds for armaments. The two year issue, to be known as armament bonds, will bear 3½ per cent interest.

Foreigners May Enlist.

Sale of two year national defense bonds was suspended and the interest rate on eighteen month national defense bonds was cut from 3½ to 3 per cent to stimulate sales of the new issues.

France opened the enlistment rolls of her armed forces today to foreigners resident in this country who want to pledge that they will fight for the duration of war if one comes.

DANZIG GUARDED BY NAZIS; POLISH INVASION FEARED

Germany Sends Troops to East Prussia.

FREE CITY OF DANZIG, June 30.—(AP)—"Guard against surprise," was the admonition which went out tonight to Danzig's reinforced police force.

Railway bridges were guarded and strategic highways patroled, Nazi authorities said, against the possibility of a putsch or invasion from Poland.

The precautions were taken after demonstrations yesterday in Poland, where crowds paraded and shouted: "We want Danzig!" and "We will take Danzig!" Nazi officials here expressed concern over the possibility that the Poles might be aroused into some positive action in the quarrel which has made this city and Pomorze [the Polish corridor] a point of contention.

Troops Sent to East Prussia.

At the same time it was disclosed in Berlin that German troops were being sent to East Prussia as a precaution against Polish chauvinists who, it was said, are proclaiming the necessity for Poland to seize that province. Nazi officials in Berlin admitted that the East Prussian garrison was being strengthened.

"Any country capable of doing so would do likewise if a neighbor had designs on its territory," they said.

Nazi officials in Danzig denied knowledge of any German action in the free city. Max Buhle of the senate's press department, declared: "It is absolutely untrue that there are any German soldiers on duty in Danzig, either in uniform or in civilian clothes. Nor are we forming a free corps or irregular forces under any other name."

Poles Make Charges.

Warsaw newspapers had reported the formation of a free corps in Danzig and said military preparations were being carried on almost openly. The reports said there was feverish building of new bridges to East Prussia and barracks and fortification of hills bordering Poland.

Polish newspapers also alleged that anti-aircraft guns were smuggled into the free city Wednesday night and were being established on Bischofsberg, the highest hill near Danzig, which was said to be closed to civilians.

There was no sign of such military activity in the city or the adjoining countryside. Danzig calmly went about its affairs.

BEATEN TO DEATH BY TRIO; WOMAN TELLS OF KILLING

A man believed to be Alfred M. Rosansky, about 52 years old, was beaten to death by three men in front of 2014 North Halsted street early today. The slayers fled through a gangway.

More than $40 was left untouched in the victim's pockets, indicating, Hudson avenue police said, that the killers were not robbers. There were no clews to their identities. There was only one witness, a neighborhood woman, who, looking out her apartment window, saw the trio attack the man and run. She said all four men had been walking together before the attack.

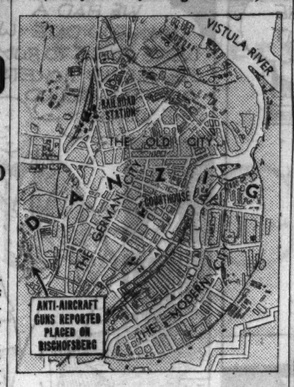
Receipts in the victim's pockets showed that he had stayed at the Sprague hotel in Minneapolis, Minn., in May. Another receipt showed that he had sent a telegraphic money order for $3.25 to the same hotel only yesterday. The telegraph office records gave the victim's name as Rozansky and his Chicago address as 1968 Fremont street. There is no such address.

SHOPIERE MAN DIES IN BELOIT.

Shopiere, Wis., June 30.—[Special.]—Michael Schollmeyer, 76 years old, a resident here forty years, died yesterday in a Beloit hospital. He leaves three daughters.

Prize of Baltic

(Story in adjoining column.)



Free City of Danzig, whose reinforced police force has been warned to be on guard against a possible Polish putsch. German officials admit that the East Prussian garrison is being strengthened.

Almost seven Danzigs could be laid out in the state of Connecticut, third smallest of the United States, yet this Baltic area now has the capitals of the world on edge.

SEX MORON SLAIN BY POLICEWOMAN IN A WASHROOM

Mrs. Sarah Allen, 122 East 42d street, colored park district policewoman, killed a colored sex moron who sprang at her yesterday in the women's washroom near 58th street and the west drive in Washington park.

The man was identified as John S. Jackson, 35 years old, 5731 Prairie avenue. Mrs. Allen had been stationed in the washroom for two days because of complaints from women that they had been molested.

Policewoman Sarah Allen.

When she asked Jackson what he was doing there, she said, he struck her in the mouth. As he moved toward her again she fired one shot, which killed him.

Mrs. Allen said it was the first time she had fired at any one in her fourteen years on the force.

ATTORNEY GOES BEFORE JURY IN ANNENBERG QUIZ

Attorney Weymouth Kirkland, member of the law firm of Kirkland, Fleming, Green, Martin, and Ellis, yesterday appeared before the federal grand jury investigating the income tax case of Moses L. Annenberg, Philadelphia newspaper publisher and critic of the New Deal. Kirkland's firm represents Annenberg. Kirkland had no comment when he came from the juryroom, other than to remind questioners that proceedings before a grand jury are secret. The grand jury has been occupied with the Annenberg investigation since June 5.

SCHNACKENBERG BOOM BEGUN FOR GOVERNOR POST

Springfield, Ill., June 30.—[Special.]—Two Republican political booms accompanied the closing hours of the legislative session tonight. Different groups of representatives got behind Representative Elmer J. Schnackenberg of Chicago for governor, and Arnold L. Lund, Riverside, for secretary of state. Neither man made any accouncement of candidacy.

"I haven't anything to say, except that I hope to have an opportunity to canvass the situation soon and make a decision," Schnackenberg said after the meeting in his behalf.

Attendance at the Lund meeting totaled twenty-four, according to Representative Andrew A. Torrence, Chicago.

PRE-CHICAGO FOOTPRINTS (2)

By CALEB

IN THE latter seventeenth century, French exploratory operations had for their object the acquisition of the entire American continent to the rule of Louis XIV. This in particular embraced the great middle and south areas of the New World—a territory in which the Illinois country was destined to play many major dramatic roles of the future.

Turning back History's pages to those dimly recorded days brings us to two such scenes that challenge interest. One was the great meeting of chiefs from the Sacs, Winnebagos, and Menominees which gathered about Daumont de Saint-Lusson, on May 5, 1671, at Sault Ste. Marie, to hear him proclaim the Middle West's annexation by France. The other was the advent into local annals, about that same time, of a man whose name and deeds still figure in the Chicago nomenclature of today—Jacques Marquette. . . .

Born in 1637, Marquette was six years older than La Salle, and for some twenty-two years had lived in the Upper Lakes region, as a zealous Jesuit missionary among the Ojibways, Hurons, Pottawatomies, Foxes, Iroquois, Sioux and Illinois Indians. It was at the St. Esprit mission, near the western end of Lake Superor, that he met Louis Joliet in 1661—sent out by Governor Frontenac of Canada to locate the Mississippi River. With Marquette as his companion, he set forth from Lake Superior in 1673, and sailing west along the north shores of Lake Michigan—they reached the Menominee River, later Green Bay, and saw the Mississippi at Prairie du Chien.

Down the "Father of Waters" they paddled for weeks, passing the site of St. Louis, the mouth of the Ohio, and finally arriving at the Arkansas River. There Joliet left Marquette worn out, and retraced his own steps to Quebec to announce discovery of the Mississippi.

Marquette arrived again at Green Bay in 1674, and ill though he was, determined to found an Illinois mission. For a month, in the stormy autumn of that year, his party in their ten canoes traversed Lake Michigan, and finally ascended the first six miles of the Chicagou River. Desperately sick in his cabin there, at the foot of what is now Damen Avenue, Marquette went on in 1675, and reached the Indian town he called Kaskaskia (near Utica). His end was near, however, and less than two months later he died, and was buried on the spot where Ludington, Michigan, now stands . . .

A hundred and sixty-two years later, Chicago was incorporated; and in its contemporary preservation of his memory are still traceable the ghostly footprints of Jacques Marquette.

HEAD OF L. S. U. AND 4 INDICTED IN EMBEZZLING

3 Members of His Family and Broker Named.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Baton Rouge, La., June 30.—Indictments were returned tonight by the East Baton Rouge parish grand jury against Dr. James Monroe Smith, fugitive former president of Louisiana State university; three members of his family, and J. M. Brown, New Orleans broker who handled Smith's transactions in the wheat and stock markets. Bench warants for those indicted were issued at once by Judge Charles Holcombe.

Dr. Smith, who resigned his presidency and fled last Sunday night following disclosure that university funds were missing, was indicted on a charge of embezzling $100,000 from the school. The embezzlement, the indictment charges, was through a check drawn on the Hibernian National Bank of New Orleans.

Brown, the intermediary broker, is charged with aiding and abetting Dr. Smith in the embezzlement.

Others Named as Aids.

Mrs. Thelma Ford Smith, wife of the fleeing educator, who is believed to be traveling with him; Owen W. Ware, son-in-law of the Smiths, and J. Emory Adams, nephew of Mrs. Smith, are the others indicted. They are charged with harboring and aiding Dr. Smith. Adams had admitted driving Dr. and Mrs. Smith to Memphis Sunday night, shortly after the educator resigned the post he had held for nine years.

Broker Brown was arrested as he emerged from the grand jury room, where he was a witness. Judge Holcombe fixed his bond at $15,000, which Brown could not provide.

Ware and Adams also were arrested tonight and their bonds were set at $7,500 each. Adams, already on bond as a material witness, arranged the additional bail and was released. Ware was unable to supply bond immediately.

After returning the indictments the grand jury recessed over the Fourth of July and will meet again Wednesday morning. Indications are that its investigation may continue for several weeks.

Flight Raises Question.

A declaration earlier today by former Gov. Richard W. Leche that irregularities at Louisiana State university were suspected several months ago raised the question of how Dr. Smith managed to make his getaway. Meanwhile search for the missing man and his wife continued in Canada and various parts of the United States.

According to Leche, Smith submitted his resignation to Leche, then governor, Sunday evening between 6:30 and 7 o'clock, and at the time Attorney General David M. Ellison and W. A. Cooper, collector of revenue, were at the governor's mansion. Gen. L. F. Guerre, head of the state police, said he was summoned to the mansion at 6:30 Sunday evening and at 8:30 was directed to take Dr. Smith into custody. Meantime Smith and his wife had fled.

Leche's Explanation Given.

Leche, now at his Covington home, is quoted today in a press telephone talk as explaining that Smith was not arrested when he submitted his resignation because there was no evidence on which to hold him. "I didn't think Smith would leave town," the former governor is quoted as saying.

As far back as January, Leche is quoted as remarking, the auditing system at the university was found to be antiquated and so full of holes that "anybody could pocket money that wanted to."

Meanwhile political interest here was split between the investigation of Smith's ventures into high finance and the federal grand jury which met in New Orleans this morning to investigate charges of misuse of WPA materials and labor at Louisiana State university and at private homes of some politicians.

At the state house it was disclosed today that a day or two before he fled Dr. Smith sought to draw his monthly salary in advance. He left before it came. It was for $1,221. Some officials said it was the first time they knew the size of his salary. It appears that Smith was clothed with such powers that he was able to raise his own salary from $12,000 to $15,000, and in addition give bonuses to himself, which raised his income to $18,000 a year.

Report Smith in Canada.

TORONTO, Ont., June 30.—[Canadian Press.]—Ontario provincial police said tonight they had been informed that two persons believed to be Dr. James Monroe Smith, missing former president of Louisiana State university, and his wife, passed through Belleville, 100 miles east of here, yesterday.

Employés of an automobile service station said they were in an automobile corresponding in make and color to the one in which the Smiths previously had been reported riding. They said it bore Michigan license plates.

George Nokus, an employé of the station, said the woman identified herself as "Mrs. T. M. Smith" and that both said they were driving to Montreal.

Police said they had been unable to trace the car beyond Belleville.

Totes a Musket of 1812; Judge Suspends $5 Fine

Mitchell Poloine, colored, 41 West 29th street, a WPA laborer, was taken before Judge Joseph B. Hermes yesterday to explain why he was walking down the street Thursday carrying a musket that was modern during the war of 1812. Poloine said the gun had been given to him by a friend who had used it during the civil war. He was about to pawn it, he said. Judge Hermes fined him $5, Union money, but suspended the fine.

WARN MOTORISTS: WATCH FOR SPEED TRAP IN INDIANA

Justice Holds Court in Hot Dog Stand.

Complaints by motorists of an Indiana speed trap where a woman motorist was taken before a Negro justice who held court in the darkened back room of a hot dog stand brought warnings yesterday from the Chicago Motor club. Fourth of July tourists especially were warned.

Arrow points to alleged speed trap.

The alleged trap is the intersection of U. S. Highways 12 and 212 about eight miles northeast of Michigan City. A stop sign is on Highway 12 for northeast bound trafic. But motorists complain that the sign is not visible until it is too late to stop.

Hold Court in Lunch Stand.

Mrs. Roy E. Bailey, 611 Judson avenue, Evanston, yesterday told of her experiences at the intersection. She was half way across before she could stop, she said. Constable James Muckway took her before Magistrate Tenola E. Graves, colored, in the room behind the lunch stand. A few minutes later another motorist, a young man, was arrested at the same intersection. Their cases were heard together, Mrs. Bailey said.

"The room was dark and the furniture dusty," Mrs. Bailey reported. "But the justice was courteous and a bit sympathetic. Nevertheless he fined each of us $5 and $1.50 costs. As we left the 'courtroom,' Magistrate Graves said to the constable:

"'Well, now let's go and get some breakfast'."

In Indiana the justice of the peace and the constable divide the fine. The costs go to the state and township. Experiences similar to Mrs. Bailey's were told by John R. Diggs and E. J. Rolain of the Mosinee Paper Mills, Chicago.

Ousted Policeman Back.

Ray DeGroot, an Evergreen Park policeman who was ousted three weeks ago on charges of accepting money from motorists, was back on the job yesterday. He has been back since June 23, it was revealed.

DeGroot's case arose when a motorist complained that he had given a $25 "bond" to DeGroot when he was arrested for speeding. The motorist was out of the city when the case was due and had a friend call for a continuance. Justice of the Peace Frank Ozinga looked on the records and couldn't find the case.

DeGroot was called in and admitted accepting the bond, but said his pocket was picked of the money. He admitted also he turned in no ticket.

100,000 WATCH OGDEN AVENUE VIADUCT FETE

Nearly 100,000 men, women, and children last night watched a mile long parade and ceremonies celebrating the formal dedication and opening of the Ogden avenue viaduct at Cicero avenue.

The parade included twenty-five American Legion units and many suburban civic organizations. It was sponsored by the west area council of the Chicago Motor club. Principal speakers at the dedication were F. Lynden Smith, state director of public works; George Stedronsky, town president of Cicero, and Charles M. Hayes, president of the motor club.

The viaduct, 1,800 feet long, cost $800,000. Funds were supplied by the state and the federal government. The overpass, which has four lanes and is illuminated by fifty-one amber lights, crosses five railroad tracks and eliminates one of the Chicago area's most perilous bottlenecks.

FALL FROM AUTO FATAL TO CRETE HIGH SCHOOL GIRL

Topples Off Bumper to Grab for Hat.

Marion Adams, 17 years old, 82 West 1st street, Crete, died yesterday in St. James hospital, Chicago Heights, from injuries suffered early in the day when she fell from the rear bumper of a car just outside Crete, in Will county.

The girl was one of six Crete High school students riding in the car of Leonard Steiber. As the machine entered Exchange avenue, on the outskirts of Crete, Miss Adams climbed from the rumble seat to the bumper. A hat blew from the car and she attempted to catch it. She lost her hold and fell backwards, her head striking the pavement.

Lewis Poetzinger, 49, Cedar Rapids, Ia., was killed yesterday when his automobile was struck by a Monon railroad freight train on U. S. Highway 2, about thirty-five miles east of Gary.

Joseph Mazurek, 18, of 2306 Janssen avenue, was injured critically yesterday when he was struck by an automobile while riding his bicycle. He suffered a possible skull fracture, and was taken to the Columbus hospital.

DESERT RATS PETITION TO USE AGE PENSION FOR LAST GRUBSTAKE

Tucson, Ariz., June 30.—(AP)—Desert rats [prospectors] petitioned the federal government today to permit them to use their old age pension checks as grubstakes for one more try in the hills. Present regulations of the Social Security board decree that if the oldtimers leave town to dig for gold they are removed from the pension rolls automatically. Living in town cramps their style, the prospectors complained.

The accident occurred in North Beach drive, near Belden avenue, in Lincoln park.

The driver was Arthur Olsen, 43, of 830 Greenleaf avenue, Glencoe, an advertising man. Olsen told police trafic was heavy at the time, and that Mazurek cut from in front of another car in front of him. The accident, he said, was unavoidable. Olsen took the youth to the hospital. Police did not hold him.

Archie McNaughton, 68, of 1500 Madison street, died in Henrotin hospital yesterday of a skull fracture sustained June 23 when he was struck by a motorcycle at Franklin and Madison streets. The driver, Henry Moulders, 33, of 3919 Joliet avenue, Lyons, was charged with reckless driving.

There were five more deaths from automobile accidents in Cook county during the first six months of 1939 than in a similar period in 1938, the coroner's office reported yesterday. The toll to date this year is 402, compared with 397 last year. The totals by months for the two periods follow: For 1938, January, 102; February, 50; March, 57; April, 73; May, 57, and June, 58. For 1939: January, 94; February, 41; March, 86; April, 78; May, 45, and June, 58.

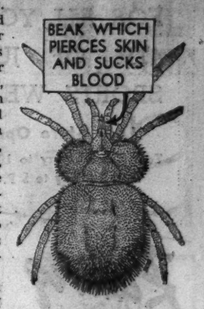
Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 311 persons had been killed by automobiles in Chicago since Jan. 1, and 10,177 persons had been injured during the six month period.

Car Puts Woman in Hospital 13 Wks.; 30 Days for Driver

Otto Luptak, 3028 North Kilpatrick avenue, whose car struck and injured Miss Tracy Glon in front of 1961 Milwaukee avenue last Jan. 30, was sentenced yesterday to thirty days in the Bridewell by Judge Thomas Green in Safety court. He was convicted of reckless driving. Luptak's driver's license was impounded for a year. Miss Glon, who livs at 2009 North Leavitt street, was confined to a hospital for thirteen weeks.

MR. TROMBICULA IRRITANS READY, FOR HOLIDAYERS

Trombicula irritans, the younger, will meet some interesting people this weekend. He's around in greater numbers than ever this year, lurking in the tall grass on golf courses, in parks, and in the forest preserves, just waiting to run across happy holidayers.



A Chigger.

You won't see him, of course. He's the size of a neat period and has the complexion of a sun-tanned arm. And by the time you get around to saying "Chiggers!" he'll have gone. You'll remember him, though. Within twelve hours after his visit, you'll be scratching angrily at a red patch on your legs, at your waistline where your belt was fastened, and even around your garters. A chigger is just a mite. He loves a tight spot.

First aid is simple, but necessary. A hot salt bath, followed with carbolised vaseline, alcohol, or sulphur ointment will, do the trick. And no scratching. It might cause infection.

Paroled Bike Thief Leaves Town, but Returns to Stay

Kansas City, Kas., June 30.—(AP)—County officers agreed to parole Frank Casella, 30 years old, from the last half of his one year sentence for bicycle theft if he would leave town. Casella left—on a stolen bicycle. Today he pleaded guilty and the judge said, "five years."

FIREWORKS POP AS LEGISLATURE CLOSES SESSION

Many Bills Approved in Last Minute Rush.

senate was ready to adjourn sine die whenever the house finished work. It cannot leave until the other chamber decides to quit.

One of the final house actions was passage of three of the four bills affecting the St. Charles School for Boys, which came under legislative scrutiny because of continued escapes and depredations by inmates.

Approved were bills calling for a $250,000 appropriation to construct a new addition to the school which would have safety features not included in the present institution. The measures also provide that all juveniles shall be committed to the department of public welfare, which would have the right to send them either to the new or the old school.

The senate made an important contribution to the record of the session by giving final approval to tax preadjudication. The senate also defeated a house measure to repeal the three day notice of intention to wed [see senate story on page 9].

Bar Double Movie Features.

The house late in the evening concurred in senate amendments to a bill outlawing double movie features. This was accomplished by limiting the showing of films to two hours and fifteen minutes. Representative Elroy C. Sandquist [R., Chicago] sponsored the bill as a health measure, complaining that sustained attendance in the theaters was harming children's eyes.

A defeat was administered in the house, to the bill backed by the Chicago Teachers' union raising the board of education's pegged levy from 48 to 52 millions in order to restore teachers' salaries.

Headed by John Fewkes, president of the union, a teachers' lobby worked hard for passage of the measure for weeks, in the face of opposition from the Civic Federation and Bureau of Public Efficiency. Today their measure finally came to a roll call. It received only 55 of the 77 votes necessary for passage.

The house passed a senate measure permitting the sale of beer on Navy pier in Chicago.

The house passed two bills, previously approved by the senate, designed to improve the quality of milk produced by Illinois farmers for human consumption. A bill to regulate prices, which would have increased retail prices, was buried in a committee recently.

One of the milk bills passed imposes upon the farmers sanitary requirements similar to those of the Chicago health department in the production of milk to be labeled class A. The other modernizes the legal definition of pasteurization, in light of medical advancements, and provides a penalty for labeling milk as pasteurized which does not meet the new definition.

Relief Bill Signed.

Gov. Horner, it was announced tonight, signed the $72,000,000 biennial relief appropriation, which will be expended at a rate of not more than $4,000,000 a month. He also approved the $52,000,000 old age pension appropriation, and a measure extending the life of the Illinois emergency relief commission for two years. The extension of the 3 cent sales tax was signed yesterday.

This was reflected in statements by presiding officers and party leaders. Speaker Hugh Cross, who headed the first Republican controled house since 1931, said the house did a major service to the taxpayers by killing appropriation bills totaling $32,000,000 while they reposed in committee. These appropriations called for expenditures outside the state budget. Cross said the Republican record promises victory in 1940.

MANY BILLS KILLED

Springfield, Ill., June 30.—[Special.]—The sixty-first general assembly was notable for the important measures defeated. Among the bills it killed were those for reform of the parole laws and liberalization of the separate maintenance statutes.

Milk price control was voted down after a commission investigated results of such laws in the east and reported control meant an increase in retail prices. The Lantz employment peace bill was killed in the senate, as was a move to put the state in the utility business through two little TVA bills.

More Judges Refused.

Two attempts were made to give Chicago more judges, six in the Circuit and eight in the Superior court. Both were defeated.

One senate bill that died in the house would have released the Chicago city council from changing the name of a street upon application of 70 per cent of the property owners. This bill was presented in an attempt to stop efforts to change the name of Pulaski road to its original designation, Crawford avenue.

The Republican economy investigation of waste in state government was slaughtered, at the instigation of the Democrats, after several witnesses had been examined and scores of topics for inquiry selected.

Other Proposals Blocked.

Among other proposals blocked by the legislature were these:

Investigation of the Illinois Commerce commission under the chairmanship of James M. Slattery, now United States senator; licensing of painters, abolishing of the Illinois racing commission, inquiries into operations at the Chicago stock yards, [illegible] machines, and into vice at the town of Champaign; resolutions calling for a constitutional convention for submission of the so-called gateway amendment, and approval of the sale of beer in more than 700 local option dry districts.

BILL TO FIX TAX LEGALITY WINS; GOES TO HORNER

House Yields; Jarecki Is Banned from Setup.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., June 30.—The senate tonight sent the tax preadjudication bill to Gov. Henry Horner, after Chicago city hall Democrats won a battle against the house to keep County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki of Cook county out of the proposed new setup.

The bill is designed to benefit small property owners. At present they rarely share in tax refunds won by expensive litigation against illegal portions of tax levies. Circuit court judges will pass upon the legality of levies before taxes are collected under the new plan.

House Finally Surrenders.

Senator Richard J. Daley [D., Chicago] introduced the measure in its present form. In the house it was amended to give Judge Jarecki, who is not always on friendly terms with the city hall, the duties of the Circuit court. The senate refused to concur. Approaching the end of the session tonight, the house finally surrendered to save the bill.

Final passage of the bill is a major accomplishment of the session, inasmuch as the plan has been discussed for years. Technical flaws found by the Illinois Supreme court in a law of similar purpose two years ago have been corrected, the sponsors say.

In the welter of eleventh hour actions by the senate tonight, the next most outstanding was the defeat of a bill to repeal a law requiring three days' notice of intention to marry. Conceded good chances of passage, it was blocked mainly through the efforts of Senator William J. Connors [D., Chicago].

Measure Gets 23 Votes.

The vote was 23 for the measure and 13 against. Twenty-six votes are required for passage.

Connors later obtained passage of amendments to the pre-marital examination law to permit issuance of marriage licenses in cases of noninfectious syphilis.

Senator George M. Maypole [D., Chicago] charged tonight that one of his bills had been beaten in the house because of the opposition of Joseph F. Grossman, first assistant corporation counsel of Chicago. The bill pertained to rebates of taxes paid on gasoline used in motor launches.

"If Mr. Grossman, who had been accorded every courtesy of the senate, appears on the floor or in senate offices again I will request the sergeant at arms to eject him," Maypole said.

Later he extended the scope of his feud to include some fifty house members who had voted against his bill.

Lobbies Against Bills.

Maypole delayed senate procedure in handling bills sponsored by any of these representatives. He insisted upon full roll calls on each of their measures and lobbied among his senate friends to help defeat them. As far as could be ascertained he was responsible for the killing of several house bills.

Among bills completing their legislative journey was one authorizing the Chicago park district to convey land at Kedzie and North avenues in Humboldt park for the proposed largest National Guard armory in the state. Citizens in that district had protested against giving up the park space.

A bill providing for a commission to investigate un-American activities and propaganda was defeated. It lacked three votes of the required number. The measure had been passed by the house, where it was introduced by Representative Dennis J. Collins [R., De Kalb].

Report Absolves Administration.

Labor's Nonpartisan league, which was organized by John L. Lewis, C. I. O. leader, urged defeat of the bill in messages stating that the inquiry would encounter partisan difficulties.

Democrats on the joint senate-house committee to investigate state spending submitted a majority report today in which they defended the 900 per cent increase in expenditures since 1917. They ridiculed charges of waste made by Republicans in a minority report.

Senator Nicholas L. Hubbard [D., Mt. Pulaski], prepared the majority report. Analyzing finances by different methods than were used by the Republicans he absolved the state administration of any blame regarding the spending increase.

Twin bills to prevent resumption of the gasoline price cutting war were passed, but the so-called loss leader bill to prohibit sale of any article at less than cost was badly beaten.

A house measure designed to halt the influx of indigents into Illinois received concurrence. It requires three years' residence to obtain relief from any local government unit.

HALTS STRANGER PICKETING AT 3D PLACE IN COUNTY

Circuit Judge John Prystalski issued a temporary injunction yesterday prohibiting stranger picketing of Anton Szumny's furniture frame and accessory factory at 2130 Fulton street by the Furniture Woodworkers and Finishers union. The union is an American Federation of Labor affiliate.

It was the third injunction issued in Cook county against picketing by non-employés since the Illinois Supreme court held on June 19 that the practice is illegal.

Attorney Harry U. Berstein, representing the union, said there were union employés in the factory and charged they were being coerced by the owner. He asked a restraining order.

"File a proper counter claim containing those charges and I'll grant you an injunction," Judge Prystalski said. "But remember—no stranger picketing. If there is picketing, it must be by union employés only."

Charged with Fraud

Two men from Oklahoma City, Okla., were arrested yesterday by the state's attorney's police on allegations that they had sold securities not listed with the secretary of state. They are Dudley W. Emerick, 35 years old, and Louis Travelier, 40.

Assistant State's Attorney Nathan Kinnally and his chief investigator, Eugene O'Connor, said two women had reported turning over more than $6,000 to the Oklahomans. One said she had sold a farm to get $5,700 and that they agreed to pay her $67 a month to be derived from oil royalties. The other woman said she had invested $400. The names of the complainants were not disclosed.

Travelier was arrested in the Polk street station when he went there to meet Mrs. Emerick, coming in from Oklahoma City. He disclosed that Emerick was at 4108 Kenmore avenue, and he was seized there. Both men were held at the detective bureau last night.

PLAN TO MAKE CITY RELIEFERS EARN THEIR KEEP

Oscar E. Hewitt, city commissioner of public works, yesterday proposed to Relief Commissioner Leo M. Lyons that able bodied reliefers should work out some of their relief checks in city parks, recreation centers, and beaches. Lyons said he thought Hewitt's plan a fine idea.

The Chicago Relief administration rolls show more than 50,000 cases labeled as employables. Hewitt suggested that 50 cents an hour would be a good rate at which to compute the pay of the reliefers. Lyons said details of the plan will be worked out between his staff and Hewitt's. The relief commissioner said no reliefer would be allowed to earn more than the total of his present relief check.

State law provides that reliefers may be forced to work in the public interest in return for their relief payments. Many downstate relief administering units force their reliefers to work on county or township roads. Hewitt once suggested the use of reliefers in keeping Chicago's streets and alleys clean, but the labor unions blocked this plan.

SUPERHIGHWAYS BILLS AWAITING O. K. BY HORNER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., June 30.—Chicago's $60,000,000 superhighway bills await the signature of Governor Henry Horner. The senate today concurred in house amendments, the final act of the assembly in advancing the life-saving measures, which were introduced on March 7. The vote was 49 to 0.

The bills authorize the issuance of $60,000,000 in notes to be retired from Chicago and Cook county gas tax revenues during the next twenty years, all of the money to be spent on superhighways. A house amendment prevents the state treasurer from buying any of the notes; they must be sold to private buyers.

Before the bills reach the governor's desk they will doubtless be submitted to Attorney General John Cassidy for an opinion as to their constitutionality. After they reach the chief executive he can sign or veto the bills or let them become law without his signature at the end of ten days.

FINAL CURTAIN FALLS ON WPA DRAMA PROJECT

The WPA federal theater project went out of existence in Illinois and the rest of the nation at midnight last night. The project was killed in the new Work Projects administration appropriation passed yesterday by congress.

The theater project cost $3,599,906 in Illinois up to closing time last night, Charles E. Miner, state WPA administrator, disclosed. The receipts earned by the project were $361,867. The only show which met its own expenses was the swing version of "The Mikado."

Miner said 667 persons on the project were affected by the closing order. Purchasers of tickets to "As You Like It" at the Blackstone and "Street Scene" at the Great Northern theater will be given refunds, he said.

PAINTERS' UNION HEAD WINS BOND ON GUN CHARGE

George Henneman, head of the painters' union, was booked yesterday at the detective bureau on charges of carrying concealed weapons and disorderly conduct. He was released on a real estate bond of $1,000 supplied by George Uckbreiter of 28 North Waller avenue. He will appear July 6 in State street court. Henneman was arrested Tuesday when a pistol was found in his pocket and a revolver, a blackjack, a pair of rubber gloves, and a roll of adhesive tape were found in his automobile. He assumed power in the painters' union last year after the ambush murder of James Dungan, former business agent of the union.

WPA TO DISMISS 22,000 WORKERS ON CITY PROJECTS

Fourth on Rolls Will Lose Jobs During Week-End.

Harold K. Seltzer, Chicago WPA director, has notified Oscar E. Hewitt, commissioner of public works, that 22,000 WPA workers on city sponsored projects are to be discharged this week-end, Hewitt disclosed yesterday. This would mean that one-fourth of all of the WPA workers in the city would lose their jobs.

Last night Seltzer, who could not be reached in person, issued a statement saying that 7,000 persons had been fired, effective yesterday. These, the statement said, were in addition to the 6,500 persons fired in Chicago during the last week because they are eligible for unemployment insurance.

Most of the men fired yesterday will have at least two weeks' pay due them. Those who do not get back on WPA and who do not find other jobs will have to meet eligibility requirements in order to obtain relief.

Unable to Satisfy WPA.

"The important thing is to provide work for men who need it, and we are making every effort to do that," said Hewitt. "The Works Progress administration desires certain conditions on the projects if employment of needy men on them is to be continued."

Hewitt said that the basic reason for the layoffs is the city's inability to provide what WPA officials demand in the way of sponsors' contributions toward the cost of projects. The city has been operating on a shoestring in sponsoring WPA projects for the last three years.

Seltzer's statement said that yesterday's discharges affected workers on the airport, demolition, macadam streets, and asphalt streets projects. The statement did not say how many men had been dismissed from each type of project.

Col. C. F. Harrington, national WPA administrator, issued orders weeks ago that sponsors be required, where possible, to provide at least 20 per cent of the cost of each project. It has been reliably reported that Seltzer has been in hot water with Washington WPA offices because he was not strict enough in enforcing this rule.

25 Per Cent Share Provided.

Mayor Kelly and other city officials have said that on this basis it would be virtually impossible for the city to sponsor enough projects to give major aid in decreasing the relief rolls. The new WPA appropriation bill, passed yesterday by congress, requires that sponsors provide 25 per cent of the cost of projects after Jan. 1, 1940.

Hewitt said that city crews which lay asphalt pavement will continue to work on streets that WPA crews have prepared for repaving. It could not be learned last night whether the other projects mentioned by Seltzer were restricted or closed.

The city's budget does not provide special appropriations to be used in sponsoring WPA projects. City contributions toward this type of work are made, in the main, to hire skilled labor and for the purchase of materials.

Hewitt has kept the WPA projects operating in Chicago by spreading the relatively small amount of money he could obtain from city departments in a way to provide the maximum number of jobs. This has forced the WPA to pay more than it wished for nonlabor costs.

HALVE BOND ISSUE ON RELIEF IN LAKE COUNTY, INDIANA

Less than half of the proposed $1,250,000 issue for relief purposes was allowed yesterday by the Lake county council at an extraordinary session at Crown Point, Ind. The county council is the appropriating body of the county.

One of the reasons for its action, board members said, was the desire to await the outcome of the grand jury's investigation into relief administration in the county. The old grand jury was ended yesterday and a new one sworn in for six months. The old jury recommended a continued investigation of relief affairs. Questions asked prospective jurors yesterday indicated that the new jury will so continue.

Instead of the amount asked by the township trustees who oversee relief activities in Indiana, the council approved an issue of $600,000. This sum, together with taxes, will provide relief funds until Sept. 1.

SEEKS TO UNSEAT DU PAGE BUILDING UNION OFFICIAL

Disagreements among the officers of the Du Page Building Trades council broke out yesterday.

J. W. Jones of Berwyn, president of the organization, appeared at the council's headquarters, 116 North Main street, Wheaton. With him was Robert Frega of Elmhurst, who was defeated three weeks ago for election as business agent. Jones told Secretary Earl H. Rieck, who has held the job for thirteen years, to get out, that Frega was the new secretary.

Rieck refused to go. He said he had been properly reelected on June 5 for three years. Jones told him that Frega had been elected at a special poll Wednesday night. Rieck insisted that such an election is illegal because he, the secretary, didn't call it, and because a majority of the membership was not present. Jones and Frega then went to the city police, the sheriff, and the state's attorney.

FARMER SHOT TO DEATH.

Robert Suydam, 56 years old, a farmer, was found shot to death last night, apparently a suicide, in the hayloft of his farm at Milwaukee avenue and Central road, Maine township, four miles northeast of Des Plaines.

THE SILVER SCANDAL.

Silver has become a base metal in American politics and the more the government raises the price the baser the metal becomes. It mocks the common sense of the country; it has given open-faced, unashamed treasury raiders the control of congress, and Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Morgenthau knuckle under to a subsidy scheme which cries its iniquities for everybody to hear. The silver raiders will sell out anything to gain their point, and Mr. Roosevelt was willing to give them public money in return for retaining his own controls over the currency.

In the course of this silver scandal the United States has paid 925 million dollars for foreign silver, 200 million dollars for newly mined American silver, and 57 million dollars for silver nationalized by the proclamation of August, 1934. It has paid a variety of prices, starting with 50 cents when it took over the national stock of metal and going as high as 77.57 cents an ounce for newly mined silver.

All in all, the government now has 2¾ billion ounces of the metal, supposed to have a statutory value of $1.29 an ounce, which would give the treasury a theoretical silver reserve of 3 billion 547 million dollars. The actual price of the metal could be determined only by a repeal of the silver purchase act and the restoration of the free market. The treasury has been lowering the price of foreign silver day by day, the Friday quotation being 38 cents.

Most economists agree that there never will be any good use for this accumulation of metal. It has been buried in holes, chiefly at West Point. The price paid for the newly mined domestic silver is at least double the artificial world price and that is a direct subsidy to the silver mining corporations. The country probably will be in luck if the miners are not permitted to treat the buried metal as a newly discovered lode, dig it up, and sell it again.

The purchase of foreign metal had a demoralizing effect upon the Chinese monetary system, destroying the silver argument that the results would be helpful. The purchase of Mexican silver made it possible for the Mexican government to confiscate the American oil properties. The profit from the silver sales carried the Mexican government over the loss of revenue which had been derived from the oil companies. The United States treasury pretended to stop the Mexican purchases, but has continued to receive the silver through brokers. An actual stopping of the buying might force the Mexican government to restore the oil properties in order to recover the revenue from them.

No arguments for this silver policy have been able to stand up. The government has no use for the metal in the quantities it has been acquired and never will have any. If it could be released for commercial purposes it would be at a price which would represent a staggering loss to the treasury and commercial uses could not absorb anything like the quantity which has been buried.

The silver scandal has been one of the strangest episodes in American history. Apparently it has been easy for the few silver senators to get what they wanted, although even the profligate Roosevelt administration might have balked at such outrageous squandering of the people's money. The people generally have been unable fully to comprehend the insanity and injustice of this treasury raid. The indignation which it should have aroused has not made itself felt. Many people are no doubt completely mystified and think that some great public benefits must be concealed in the scheme or the promoters would not have the audacity to do what they have done.

Over a billion dollars has been sunk in these holes, literally buried in them, and there is not even a pretense of a monetary or economic advantage. The treasury is supposed to keep on buying until one-third of the metal reserves is silver, but the gold has been coming in at such a rate—to go into the Fort Knox hole in the ground—that the treasury purchases have been unable to reach the ratio. The silver promoters were so bold and successful that they could give the domestic purchase price a hoist to 70 or even 77.57 cents. Their political morality was well enough illustrated by the fact that they double-crossed Mr. Roosevelt to gain Republican support and then were willing to double-cross the Republicans and give Mr. Roosevelt everything he wanted in order to keep their access to the treasury open.

UNIQUE INVESTIGATION.

Widespread interest has been shown in the report on industrial profit sharing plans by a special subcommittee of the senate. The committee has found, after a broad study of industry, that top results from the standpoint of industrial peace and labor efficiency were found where profit sharing plans had been in force for some time.

The indorsement of profit sharing by the subcommittee, in whose hearings Senator Vandenberg took the leading part, will no doubt lead some concerns to modify their employment relation plans. For general application, however, profit sharing has the limitation of the recipe for rabbit stew—first catch your profits. Profits are not so general that any considerable percentage of workers would find any to share. Even in 1936, the only fairly prosperous year in nearly a decade, 276,000 corporations operated at a loss. That was more than a majority.

The subcommittee and its staf are entitled to commendation, not only for the valuable information which has been developed but for the manner in which hearings were conducted. The investigation was a model of fairness and courtesy, which should be followed by all other committees. It stands out in marked contrast with the plug-ugly committees, which have been the rule in recent congresses, under the direction of such men as Senators Black, La Follette, and Minton. The subcommittee was also unique in that it sought to find a method of improving economic conditions while others have been concerned with breaking them down.

KING WORSHIP.

On the death of Albert, prince consort, in 1861, Queen Victoria retired, in her grief, to Windsor and immured herself for ten years. Her subjects didn't see her; she made no public appearances, and, although she was doing the work required of her, she took the royal establishment with her almost into oblivion. It was then proved that royalty must be seen if it is to have the worship of the subjects and that its appearances must be guarded and arranged to promote devotion. During Victoria's retirement as an inconsolable widow republican sentiment grew in England and criticisms of the monarchical institution, and of the queen herself, which would shock the present day Englishman appeared in publications and were freely uttered in public speaking.

The queen was criticized and the prince of Wales was held up to scorn for his gay life and his liking of French resorts. The cost of the royal establishment was denounced and comparisons were made of the half million pounds upkeep of the queen and what her most savage opponents called her litter with the $50,000 salary then paid the President of the United States. Is she worth it? some of the Englishmen were asking. They traced their most disagreeable social attitudes to the absurdity of monarchy in what professed to be a democracy.

Victoria came out of retirement just in time to stop the republican movement, and fortunately for monarchy she and the prince of Wales were taken seriously ill. That created a warmer sympathy and turned the sentiment against the Englishmen who thought they were about to throw off the monarchical burden and take their place among the really democratic peoples. Victoria also became empress of India and the royal family regained all the ground it had lost. A kindlier opinion soon prevailed toward Edward VII. and he was helped a great deal by the likable qualities of Queen Alexandra. But the monarchy did not attain the position the monarchists desired of it until George V. and Queen Mary set a standard which middle class Englishmen could regard as their own ideal.

Then began the present era of extraordinary and almost inexplicable worship which the governing class has stimulated for their own protection. It has no justification in English history but it is required if the crown is to be carried safely through all the inconsistencies which beset it. Edward VIII. offended against this hero worship and has been banished. Some observers are convinced he never will be allowed to return to embarrass the cult of adoration now centered upon George VI. and Queen Elizabeth.

Nobody worshiped the four Georges who, even when they began to speak English, had the German guttural tongue. It was complained of Edward VII. that he had it and it was said of George V. that he was the first of the German-English kings who talked like an Englishman. The English didn't like the four Georges' personal habits, with good cause except in the case of George III., and his political conduct cost him America. King worship is a new and not an old dodge in English government. The older English kings were regarded as necessary; but it wasn't necessary to adore them.

The cult of worship which has been insisted upon is usually designed by persons who profit from the monarchical institution and want to keep the wearer of the crown as far away from the crowd as possible. For that reason he is hedged with such a divinity as the Japanese emperor and the British monarch. When the Carolingians were mayors of the place and the Merovingians were kings, the monarch was supposed to be so sacred that he could not do anything without being sullied. He was virtually in a monastery and the Merovingians ran the kingdom until they took over in their own name.

"REASONING" WITH THE QUINTS.

[Morning World-Herald, Omaha.]

Dr. Dafoe was not entirely accurate when, describing the discipline of the quints, he said the nurses "use reason and not force."

What the doctor meant to emphasize was that the quints' hospital-home belongs to the anti-spanking wing of modern parental thought. With an air of braggadocio and superior virtue common to all parents who agree with him, Dr. Dafoe announced that nobody spanks the quints and he wants to hear of nobody trying it.

That is all very well. The doctor is entitled to his own views on spanking. But in the quints' nursery, it develops, the substitute for spanking is isolation. When one of the five gets out of line she must, like Baby Dumpling, go sit in a corner. What Dr. Dafoe needs to realize is that this is the application of force, not of reason. As such, it differs in degree, rather than in kind, from spanking.

Every reasonable man is all in favor of reason when dealing with children. On the other hand, hard experience teaches that times will arise when sweet reasonableness won't work—when its result is simply domestic anarchy. On such occasions the situation demands an imposition of somebody's will on somebody else. If this can be achieved by isolation, so much the better. But let no smug anti-spanker call it reason.

MR. ROOSEVELT'S ANGER.

[New York Sun.]

It is regrettable that President Roosevelt did not put his indignant remarks in the form of direct quotation. On at least one other occasion he deliberately used the direct method to express his anger. That is the better way; it forestalls possible misunderstanding. But the tenor of his views on the action of the senate in revoking his power to revalue the dollar is fairly well expressed by the industrious correspondents who took voluminous notes. He fears the weakening of our foreign trade, an apprehension not complimentary to Secretary Hull and his reciprocal agreements with other governments. He sees "private bankers" battening on the new situation. He sees "international speculators" playing with the dollar, and that remark naturally sends the public memory back to 1922, when United European Investors, Ltd., with Franklin D. Roosevelt as its president, played with German marks.

The Man Who Couldn't Resist Making a Gag.

A true story, both tragic and humorous, told by Harlan Ware, short story and script writer in town on his way from Hollywood to Minnesota to go fishing, has to do with a famous German comedian, a kind of German Will Rogers much beloved by his countrymen. He—we'll call him Schepper, but that is not his real name—could not resist a gag, and when Hitler came to power he was warned by his friends to be tactful. He promised to keep all political references out of his comments.

At the first evening's performance after he had made this decision he came before the footlights and said:

"Ladies and gentlemen, I have altered my lines a little. A new man is running this country now—Herr . . . Now what is that fellow's name?"

The audience screamed with laughter, but when Schepper returned to his dressing room two men came and took him away.

* * *

Six months later Schepper was back, pale and thin, and very discreet as to his comments. The audience yelled for his old stuff.

"Ladies and gentlemen," he said, "did you ever see a concentration camp? There are some huts where you live, surrounded by a barbed wire fence, charged with electricity to kill you if you try to escape. Beyond the fence there is a concrete wall ten feet high, and every twenty feet along the wall a man with a machine gun is waiting to kill you. And beyond the wall is a thirty foot moat filled with water to drown you in, and beyond that a mine laden field that will blow you up if you try to cross it.

"Do you know something, ladies and gentlemen?" Schepper concluded, his old inability to resist a gag getting the better of him, "I can get in one of those any time I want to!"

The audience screamed with laughter, and two men came and took him away.

* * *

Schepper was gone a year, and when he returned, still more pale and thin, he said nothing could get him behind the footlights again. However, he did go to the theater, where he sat in a box with a friend. The audience recognized him and called for him so long and loud that his friend said he would have to take a bow. Schepper, a pale shadow of a man, finally went down front and bowed without saying a word. The audience, suddenly realizing why he dare not speak, burst into riotous laughter. Two men came and took Schepper away.

* * *

The beloved German comedian was in a concentration camp a year and a half. When he came out, he found a job in a beer garden. The first night he appeared he told the audience he was not going to say anything funny and not to expect it.

"I don't want to hurt any one's feelings," he said.

Goebbels was in the audience and he sought out the comedian.

"Schepper," he said, "we want laughter in the third reich. Tell your stories; do your stuff. We of the third reich have a sense of humor."

"Herr Goebbels," said Schepper, "that is funnier than anything I have ever said."

And Schepper is again locked up in a concentration camp.

Sorry that space makes it impossible to print the names of all the persons who correctly solved Dr. Webster Byrne's word puzzle, but there were hundreds. The first correct answer arrived by telegraph shortly after the Trib was on the street. It read:

AUSTRALIA NATIONALISM STIRS

BY W. A. O'CARROLL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SYDNEY, Australia.—A recent speech by Prime Minister Robert Gordon Menzies, breathing more of the spirit of Australian nationalism, has had the effect of reassuring many who had been disposed previously to consider the federal government as a puppet to London in matters of foreign policy. Menzies evidently sensed the national stirring against the alleged surrender to Great Britain's dictation, as was reflected in the passive policy of the late Prime Minister Joseph A. Lyons, and he was quick to apply a corrective.

Australia must accept her responsibilities and risks as a Pacific ocean power instead of resting quietly in a corner hoping that none will notice her, Menzies said. "The task of the people is not to sit mum in their own corner of the world, but to have an intelligent view and express it, and to make their own contribution to the world's peace," he said. "That is why I propose to expand diplomatic contact with other Pacific powers. I believe that Australia has an immense opportunity today in relation to the United States, Japan, China, The Netherlands, East Indies, and her sister dominion of New Zealand to consolidate feelings of friendship and establish mutual understanding which will bring about a condition of lasting peace. The commonwealth government has a great task in doing everything honorable within its power to keep Australia out of war."

A PUZZLING GLAND: THE THYMUS.

At fairly frequent intervals correspondents inquire about the thymus gland. Where is it? What is its size? What is its function?

Located in the upper front portion of the chest bordering the neck, it extends downward, incompletely surrounding a segment of the trachea—the tube carrying air to the lungs. We can realize that should it expand, pressure may be exerted on this channel both from the front and the sides—thus interfering with breathing. It is made up of two unequal lobes or divisions. Somewhat flattened, it is about two inches in length and one and a half in breadth at the widest part.

At birth it weighs from one-third to one ounce and increases slowly until at about age 13 or 14 years it is approximately double its initial bulk. Normally it will shrink to a mere rudiment some time after puberty. It may be present in adults, but this rarely happens if all the other organs of internal secretion are working properly.

We may look upon the structure, then, as one which has a positive rôle to play in childhood, particularly in relation to development. Recent studies by Rowntree have demonstrated that if it is removed from hens they will lay shelliess eggs. In addition, if a bone fracture occurs in one of these fowls, a prolonged healing period will be required. The inference, therefore, is clear. Without it lime salts are not available when and as needed.

To describe the condition characterized by a thymus grossly enlarged, the term status lymphaticus is employed. Now and then it points to the overgrowth of lymph tissue throughout the body. As many as three out of four of the offspring in certain families may exhibit this tendency with huge tonsils, obstructing adenoids and thickening of the lymph nodes wherever they may lie. In some instances the back of the throat will be covered, at least partially, with collections of these special cells.

Occasionally physicians are unable to understand the sudden death of a little one, especially when it takes place during the administration of an anesthetic. In some quarters it is thought that a massive thymus—because of coughing or choking—may so compress the trachea that suffocation will ensue and there seems to be no other reasonable explanation.

Medical men and lay persons alike are alert to this possibility and it is always well—before subjecting a youngster to an operative procedure—to make certain that the gland is not overly large—capable of constricting the airways. As a rule, an X-ray film will disclose the true situation. It may show that the windpipe is pushed to the right or the left, is narrowed where it enters the chest, or has become kinked because of some force exerted at a special point. A treatment or two with Roentgen rays—shrinking the mass—will place the little patient in a safe position to face surgery.

But fatalities which come "out of the blue" and which cannot be interpreted clearly may be accounted for on many other grounds. It is little short of criminal to expose a high strung boy or girl to any ordeal that will throw an undue strain upon resistance. Unless the tot is at ease emotionally, quiet and free from apprehension, it is far wiser to postpone all surgery unless we are confronting an emergency. Severe nervous tension may result in failure of the adrenal glands and such a circumstance may be followed by collapse. In other instances the thyroid may be placed deeply within the thorax and thus be in a position to exert pressure.

When confronted with abrupt cessation of breathing life may be saved by placing the mouth directly over that of the child, holding the patient's nose, and forcing air past the obstacle. As a rule it is the inlet that is blocked—not the exit—and the method must be that of blowing in as well as sucking out. This is necessary because artificial resuscitation is not powerful enough to permit air to pass the barrier. Later carbon dioxide and oxygen may be used—as soon as respiration is resumed.

Far more research is required on the workings of this unique chemical laboratory. Growth stimulating as are its products, it may become a mechanical menace should it swell.

SWOLLEN LIPS.

J. C. writes: During the last two months I have had swollen lips on arising, sometimes the upper, sometimes the lower, and at other times both. My teeth were all extracted more than two years ago and were replaced by full sets. Otherwise I am very well for my age—67. Can you advise me as to the probable cause of the swelling?

REPLY.

Your description is typical of angioneurotic edema. A search for the offending food or substance to which you are sensitive should be made. Probably something you have eaten the evening before. If your dental plates cause undue pressure and irritation there may be some interference with the return flow of circulation, resulting in swelling.

CAUSES OF ADHESIONS.

E. J. writes: What are adhesions? Do they come only after an operation?

REPLY.

After inflammation or following an injury or surgical operation, scar tissue may form. This may bind muscles together so that they cannot function smoothly. Whenever the abdomen is opened surgically the peritoneum—a thin lining and covering membrane—may become glued to near-by structures. Although some stretching may ensue, bands of this material [adhesions] may constrict a loop of bowel. Occasionally a second operation is needed to free the parts. As a precaution, X-rays are frequently employed and massage is helpful.

AVOID NERVOUS TENSION.

L. R. writes: Is there any special way of strengthening the central nervous system other than building the general health?

REPLY.

By avoiding nervous tension, undue mental strain, worry, fatigue, etc.—by keeping up the general resistance and practicing good hygiene one can usually keep the efficiency of the nervous system at par.

IT SPEEDS EVAPORATION.

A. H. M. writes: Will a fan help to cool the body when the temperature of the air is above that of the body?

REPLY.

Only by increasing evaporation from the skin surface.

8 CENT CAR FARE.

Chicago, June 30.—I have read reports about the proposed 8 cent car fare and this morning Mayor Kelly is reported as saying: "So far the companies have not shown us why an 8 cent street car fare is needed." Ald. Quinn says: "I am convinced the unified system can operate successfully with a 7 cent street car fare."

I own no stock or bonds of either system. I suggest that Mayor Kelly head a list of subscribers to buy generous blocks of the securities of the transportation system and ask every advocate who is convinced that the unified system can operate successfully on a 7 cent fare to do the same. To prove their faith by their investments they should be willing to sign a contract when purchasing the stock or bonds that they will hold them for not less than twenty-five years. That will give the present holders of these stocks and bonds a chance to unload. LINDY LOU.

CULTURE A PERSONAL MATTER.

Chicago, June 28.—One of your readers protests against the proposed abolition of the WPA cultural projects.

The WPA idea is originally connected with relief ideas. The creation and re-creation of cultural values such as plays, concerts, paintings, etc., and the individual's devotion to such activities result from personal likes.

Government should not be concerned with schemes providing for cultural consumption [and at a loss]. Artistic ability and the creative urge, be it of idealistic, abstract and dreamland type, may be delayed by dire circumstances such as ditchdigging or having no funds; but these human peculiarities cannot be crushed by anybody or anything.

The cultural side of life will take care of itself as long as government, or others, protect individual life.

DOG THEFTS A REAL EVIL.

Chicago, June 22.—I was interested in the radio broadcast that dog stealing in the United States amounted to several million dollars a year.

As one unprotected dog owner, I'd like to call attention to the situation in Chicago. A few years ago the state's attorney dealt effectively with automobile thefts. Can he not deal with the theft of dogs which, although not representing as great a monetary value, yet represent a greater sentimental value?

One simple step in this direction would be to require the pet shops which sell grown, trained dogs to passing motorists, to show the source of supply of their dogs, just as an automobile dealer is required to show a record of where and how he acquired the cars he sells.

As it is now, tracing a lost dog in Chicago is a pathetic farce.

DOG OWNER.

TAXERS AND TAX EATERS.

Chicago, June 26.—Years ago I heard it said of any politician who was not liked that he would tax the very food that we eat.

Along comes Horner and does just that. For what? For relief?

Very little for relief and while paying the tax on everything we buy we read that some bright legislator has introduced a state income tax with exemptions so low that makes it laughable.

Where does all that money go? If we keep that bunch in Springfield much longer they will tax us for walking and for breathing. A. F.

PROTEST 8-CENT FARES.

Chicago, June 28.—We see that the surface lines want to raise carfare to 8 cents. They certainly have their nerve.

Every one, we believe, has received some sort of a cut in wages while all through this depression street car fare has been 7 cents when even in New York it is 5 cents.

We move that all people who have to ride street cars write in protest or else let us all go on a walking strike for a couple of days and show them what they will actually lose.

Please, TRIBUNE, won't you start something to help stop this raise?

TEN DISGUSTED CAR RIDERS.

ANOTHER FOE OF THE PIGEON.

Chicago, June 27.—Like Marion Smith, I have a grievance. Just having left the beauty parlor I had occasion to go into the First National bank, when suddenly I felt something land in my hair. I went to brush it away, and O, my! Imagine my brushing all of that pigeon refuse into my hair. I became sick and had to telephone to my employer that I had to go home. I, too, wish that the aldermen would do something that will eliminate the pigeon nuisance in the loop.

JOSEPHINE ROBERTS.

WAGES AND HOURS IN THE SOUTH.

Villa Park, Ill., June 28.—Referring to the letter from Ned Alvord who writes from Charlotte, N. C., about a notice on coffee shop door of Brown-Proctor hotel, I would like to note:

[1] The wages and hours act does not apply to restaurant and hotel employes.

[2] Any institution which cannot meet a minimum wage requirement of 25 cents an hour might just as well be closed.

It seems to me that any position which was abolished because it did not justify a wage of $2 a day must have been of scant importance and will scarcely be missed. LOUIS T. BRUCKS.

BUT HE'S A NEW DEAL AID.

Cedar Rapids, Ia., June 26.—The solicitor general of the United States is reported to have declared that the President has been maneuvered out of what might have been called his first term of office by the Supreme court, etc., etc. That statement is about as inane as could have been from any source. A statement that Herbert Hoover did not serve one term as President because of the monkey business of an obstinate congress aided and abetted by "New Deal" brand of Democrats, would have been just as reasonable. PROBATE OF ESTATE.

Chicago, June 30.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. What are attorney's fees for probating a will where only one beneficiary is named—a daughter? She is also named executrix without bond. Estate consists of 40 shares of stock worth $4,000.

2. Would there be inheritance tax on this amount?

3. About how much court costs are assessed?

4. Can this stock be transferred to beneficiary without probating will?

5. Would personal tax be figured on principal or income received?

6. If will be probated now can letter of administration be received immediately?

7. If I must have an attorney, whom do you recommend as reasonable?

8. Is there a penalty if will is not probated in thirty days? H. A.

1. The Illinois statute fixes the administrator's fee at not over 6 per cent of the personal property. In our opinion the attorney's fee ought to come out of this.

2. No.

3. Probably less than $50.

4. Depends on whether you can persuade the transfer officers to waive probate.

5. The personal property tax would be figured on the principal sum value. There would be no exemption.

6. It is not clear what you mean by probated. If you mean admitted to probate then clearly the answer is yes. If you mean the filing of a petition then a delay would depend on the location of the heirs and witnesses and on other facts that are not before us.

7. In order to guard against the suspicion that the Tribune law department is conducted to secure business and fees for favored attorneys we have been forced to adopt a rule of never supplying the names of attorneys.

8. No, but there is a penalty for secreting a will; in other words, for failing to file it where filing is appropriate.

Frances Bell to Wear Bridal Gown of 1882

BY JUDITH CASS.

ALL of "Bootie" Bell's and "Gil" Osgood's friends who have put off their holiday travels until after the wedding of these two popular young people this afternoon will feel more than rewarded for spending an extra day in the city when they see the bride in her charming and becoming wedding gown of 1882.

The gown was made for Miss Bell's grandmother, Mrs. Frederic S. Bell of Winona, Minn., who, to the regret of her whole family, is unable to be present at the ceremony.

The gown is of white brocade, with elbow length sleeves and old rose-point lace at the neck. Completely in keeping with that period is the silver bouquet holder which an old Winona friend of Mrs. Bell's has loaned to the bride.

The wedding will take place in the Christ church chapel, Winnetka, which is not in the church on Sheridan road, but in another building on Oak street. The Rev. E. Ashley Gerhard will read the service at 4:30 o'clock in the presence of the families and a few intimate friends. A larger reception will follow in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Laird Bell, in Tower road, Winnetka. If the afternoon is pleasant the bride, who was christened Frances Laird, and her bridegroom and their parents will receive in the garden.

Sister from London to Be Matron of Honor.

Mrs. Geoffrey de Freitas of London, the former Miss Helen Bell, will be her sister's matron of honor, and Miss Margaret Bell will be the maid of honor. The fourth of the Bells' daughters, Miss Nathalie, and the former Virginia Hobart, who is married to the bride's cousin, Benjamin Ayer Fairbank; Miss Margaret Wilder, and Miss Lucy Trumbull will be bridesmaids.

Gilbert Hudson Osgood is one of the four sons of Mr. and Mrs. Roy C. Osgood of Kenilworth. A younger brother, Alfred, who is a student at the Harvard law school, will be the best man. Robert Osgood of Marblehead, Mass.; Clifton Osgood, John P. Wilson Jr., Wells Sinclair, and Kenneth Montgomery will be the ushers.

Mr. Osgood and his bride will make their home in Chicago in the fall. After a wedding trip, they probably will spend the remainder of the summer on the north shore in the Bell or Osgood homes. The Osgoods have a summer home near Camden, Me. The Bells usually spend their summers at the Huron Mountain club, in Michigan, but their house there burned recently, so Mr. and Mrs. Bell haven't made any plans for the present season.

Mrs. Fairbank's sister, Miss Barbara Hobart, is among the many who will be dashing from the wedding reception to a train. She will be among the week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ayres Boal in their Charlevoix, Mich., home.

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Boal [Susan Ballard], the junior Philip W. Moores [Henrietta Boal], and Henry Meers are others who will catch a train for Charlevoix tonight. Miss Jane Wilson and Cheves Walling are motoring to the Boals' today.

Miss Isabelle Tennant Will Be Bride Today.

Miss Isabelle Tennant, daughter of Mrs. Lufkin Tennant of Highland Park, will become the bride of Robert Ainsworth Morris this afternoon. The ceremony will take place at 4:30 o'clock in the garden of the Tennant home with the Rev. Frank Fitt of Grosse Pointe, Mich., officiating.

The bride will wear a mousseline de soie dress with a veil of the same material trimmed with Valenciennes lace. Her sisters, Miss Barbara and Miss Jean, will be her only attendants.

Arthur Bamford Jr. will be best man for Mr. Morris, who is the son of Mrs. George Huckins Morris of Evanston. Ushering will be Eugene Husting, Owen Fairweather, Thomas Buchanan, and Arthur Emerson Jr.

After a week's motor trip through Canada, Mr. Morris and his bride will make their home in Evanston.

Yachts Leave for Week-End Cruises.

The Mizpah left the Chicago harbor at noon yesterday for a five day cruise to Mackinac Island. It will stop at Harbor Springs and perhaps one or two other places en route. Among Commander and Mrs. Eugene McDonald's guests this week-end are the junior Byron Harveys and the George Senseneys. On July 20 the McDonalds will leave for their annual six week cruise to Georgian bay.

The Kenkora, the Kenneth G. Smiths' yacht, left for a long week-end cruise yesterday, too, but there were no guests aboard, only Mr. and Mrs. Smith. The Smiths take a number of guests to Harbor Point almost every week-end, but this time they planned a quiet, restful cruise, with Fish Creek on Green bay their destination. The Kenkora will be cruising to Georgian bay in August.

John B. Berryman and several men guests are leaving this morning in his new Colleen to fish in Georgian bay for several weeks.

Interesting News of Holiday Visits.

Mrs. George H. Shields III. of Glencoe and her parents, the John S. Cosgraves of Princeton, N. J., drove to Wequetonsing yesterday to visit the Cosgraves' other daughter, Mrs. Edward C. Roe of Florida, who has taken a cottage at that resort. Not far away, at Burt Lake, will be the Frank Smiths of Winnetka, who are spending the long holiday with friends.

Absent from the Lake Forest scene this summer is Mrs. Frank P. Hixon. She has gone a little farther north, to La Crosse, Wis., where she is occupying the old Hixon home.

Will Be Bride of Late Summer

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Mrs. Jane Midgley Beggs will be married late in August to Edward Z. Lewis Jr., son of Edward Z. Lewis of Evanston. Mrs. Beggs, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Midgley Jr. of Worthington, O., lives at the Homestead in Evanston, and is a member of the Evanston Junior league. She attended Mount Holyoke college. Mr. Lewis attended Williams college and is engaged in business in Chicago.

Sweater Styled in Openwork Is Cool for Summer

BY JEAN MACDONALD.

Since coolness and ventilation are the main topics of conversation these days, hand knitted sweaters containing these attributes are in first favor. This lightweight sweater is knitted in a simple openwork design throughout the body, with a narrow yoke of ribbing across the shoulder. The small turn-over collar adds the correct finishing touch. It is available in 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measurement.

For directions in knitting the openwork sweater with the ribbed yoke, No. X-293, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Dinner-Dance to Open Debut Season Today

The 1939 debutante whirl starts today with the first formal debut party of the year, a dinner-dance that Mr. and Mrs. De Forest Hulburd are giving at home in Lake Bluff to introduce their daughter, Miss Marie Louise. The party will be an outdoor one, weather permitting, with dancing on a platform in the garden. The bud and her parents probably will receive out-of-doors.

Miss Hulburd's aunt, Mrs. Taylor Strawn, is giving a luncheon today for her niece and her house guests, Miss Pegy Rutherford of Minneapolis and Miss Marguerite Hillman of Pittsburgh, and for a group of young men who are visiting the Hulburds and their neighbor, Mrs. Kersey Coates Reed, and in other Lake Forest homes. Most of them were Yale classmates of Charles Henry Hulburd II. and of John Shedd Reed.

Mrs. Reed is giving a supper tomorrow night for the group and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Blake Dick Jr., who have a debutante daughter, Miss Helen, will give a luncheon on Monday. Mrs. D. Mark Cummings is entertaining at a luncheon at home tomorrow for Miss Marion Munson, the debutante daughter of her son-in-law, Curtis B. Munson. Miss Munson and her elder sister, Miss Frances Munson, are visiting Mrs. Cummings.

The season's second debut party will be a dinner-dance on Monday night at the Shoreacres club which Mr. and Mrs. George W. Blossom Jr. are giving for their younger daughter, Miss Barbara.

The Blossoms' elder daughter, Miss Louise, has an attractive house guest at the moment, a young English officer, Lieut. Cuthbert Brooke-Smith, whom she met in Bermuda last winter while visiting the Milton Morses. Lieut. Brooke-Smith is sailing for Bermuda, so will miss Miss Barbara's debut.

Use Baby Ribbon in Dainty New Dress Sweaters

BY RHEA SEEGER.

They've been fussing with sweaters until the average clothes collector scarcely believes the new wonders. Using such typically feminine stuff as a trick new baby ribbon, they've knitted some clever finds in dainty pastel colors that are grand buys for that necessary festive summer look. They are extremely short sleeved affairs that look like a fancy job of crocheting despite the voice of authority behind the counter that firmly says they're knitted.

Tiny filagree buttons in silver keep them snug over the ribs and around the neat waistline as well as offering a decorative touch down the front. Matching grosgrain ribbon faces them inside to keep them in shape and the colors are luscious, dainty pink, two shades of chartreuse green and a delft blue.

You will wear these glorified sweaters with dress parade dinner clothes, with slinky or full skirted party frocks and with dress parade slacks . . . no apology needed just because they are the casual sweater type toppers!

The pattern is wide, loose, airy and very effective over dark colors. Worn with a chiffon skirt they complete a very different and unusual afternoon outfit, pleasing the most exacting shopper or spectator.

You can also evolve a stunning dinner outfit with a separate long pleated skirt in black crêpe or with any of the gay flowered taffeta skirts made of a romantic blurred flower design silk reminiscent of the pompadour taffetas. Or you can buy one of the separate white or pastel colored jersey skirts and then top it with a sweater and, presto, a most sophisticated new dinner outfit for any summer night.

Both separate skirts and these new ribbonette sweaters have mercifully low price. Don't forget the sweater can also double for an evening jacket, too!

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1939: By Ely Culbertson.]

Yesterday and Thursday I described the woes of a mere man bridge player who, through no fault of his own, had to play in his wife's regular afternoon game. Naturally enough, perhaps, the poor fellow was soundly trounced by the voracious feminine opponents and brutally excoriated by his ditto partner. Then, when he was just about ready for self-destruction, along came the following hand:

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

♠ 10 8 4
♥ J 10 9 5
♦ 9
♣ K 9 8 3

WEST
♠ A J 3
♥ A K 8 3
♦ 5 2
♣ A J 7 2

EAST
♠ K 7 6 2
♥ 6 4
♦ A K J 8 6 3
♣ 4

SOUTH
♠ Q 9 5
♥ Q 7 2
♦ Q 10 7 4
♣ Q 10 6

The downtrodden male sitting East, the bidding proceeded:

South	West	North	East
Pass	1 club	Pass	1 diamond
Pass	1 heart	Pass	3 diamonds
Pass	4 no trump	Pass	6 diamonds
Double	Pass	Pass	Pass

South went into quite a huddle over her opening lead and finally came up with the six of clubs. The declarer [probably shaking with rage over his previous humiliation] really gave this hand a beautiful play. He won with the club ace and promptly ruffed a club, then returned to the heart king and ruffed another club. The next lead was to the heart ace and a low heart was ruffed with the eight of trumps. Now the diamond ace was laid down, after which a low spade was led toward dummy and the jack was successfully finessed. The ace and king of spades, then were cashed and, when South had to follow suit, declarer was "home." He led his fourth spade with the realization that South would have to ruff and return a trump up to the king-jack.

Triumph was in our hero's heart as he gloatingly awaited the dénouement, when, to his unutterable horror, fate dealt him the unkindest blow of all. At this juncture North spoke up: "O, dear, I have only two cards left." Declarer glared at her and said: "You must have played two cards on the last trick."

"How many cards did you have when you started?" asked South.

"Let me see," began North. "I had a singleton diamond, four hearts to the jack-ten, three spades, and—yes, I had only twelve cards because I had only four clubs to the king."

After considerable search it was found that North had been sitting on the five of clubs.

"Misdeal!" cried South, throwing her cards on the table.

"O, no, it isn't!" wailed the about-to-be-gypped declarer. "The hand has to be played out and stands as a good deal."

"Not in this club it doesn't!" snapped South. "We don't play any deals with less than 52 cards. Isn't that right, Alice?"

"Yes, I guess so," conceded declarer's estimable partner.

And that was that! What chance did the lone man have to make the ladies play according to law? None! They always had followed their own rules and if the poor sap did not like it he could play in some other game! Henceforth, he did!

Looking at Hollywood
By Ed Sullivan

Behind the Scenes.

Hollywood, Cal., June 30.—Tourists in Hollywood see many things, orange groves, Catalina, the race tracks, Grauman's Chinese theater and its footprinted forecourt, even perhaps a visit to a studio if they have a letter from somebody sufficiently important.

By the same token they miss a lot of things . . . for instance, the tourists pass by a little building at 5508 Melrose avenue without even giving it a second glance . . . yet out of that building emerges a continuous stream of phonograph records that are shipped to the four corners of the world, shipped to remote places that even the moving pictures do not reach.

Records, Inc., is the name plastered above the doorway, and here at one time or another have come Bing Crosby, Grace Moore, Connie Boswell, Frances Langford, Dick Powell, Guy Lombardo, and Rudy Vallee to seal their talents in wax.

Through plate glass windows of the control room Engineers Lyle Cain and Don Thompson, in charge of the Decca wax recordings, look out into a large, barny studio where the microphones are set up . . . the performers send their voices or instruments through the "mikes" and into the control room where a spinning wax disc is cut into fine circular impressions.

Crosby holds all speed records . . . in an hour and forty minutes, one afternoon, he recorded five songs . . . one of them was "Mexicali Rose," which has soared above the 200,000 mark in sales and promises to outstrip "Sweet Leilani" . . . not many performers work so fast as Bing.

Jack Kapps, the czar of the platters, estimates an hour is the average time for each record. . . . He never permits a performer to record more than three hours at a time, because they start to go "stale" at that point.

The recording process and the completed record goes back to the 18th century, when Lord Galvan invented what is now known as the "Galvanic process." . . . The ancient peer would be quite amazed, and likely most flattered, if he could peer into the interior of 5508 Melrose avenue at Hollywood.

In this same studio, too, are engraved the hundreds of radio auditions which are waxed out here, every week, and air-expressed to advertising agencies all over the country . . . once upon a time radio bought programs sight unseen, but that day has long since departed. Hence if a performer has an idea for a fifteen minute program, or a thirty minute program, he makes a record of it a. 1 then submits it so that the advertising agencies can hear just the way it will sound, commercial announcements and all.

With all of this forethought, in program selection, it may amaze you, as it amazes me, that so many bad programs get on the air. . . . It should be kept in mind, however, that people who don't know how to drive automobiles are granted drivers' licenses daily, and while you can't get out of the path of a speeding car, at least you can turn off the radio.

Tourists never see the most famous seafood restaurant out here, Jack's at Venice, Cal., a thirty minute drive from Hollywood . . . it is the rendezvous of all the picture celebs, and the food really is something to remember.

Jack is a Greek . . . he has been catering to jaded appetites at Venice for the last twenty-three years, and it's a tossup whether his food or his personality has been most responsible for his success.

He refers to all of his regular customers as "partners" and gives them fanciful monthly reports on the gross and net revenues of the place . . . if you order steak, he advises you earnestly to switch your order to fish, as he can make more money on a fish order . . . if you order fish, he swears that there is not enough profit in a fish to pay off an apprentice chef.

He is proud of his movie patronage, lumps them all together as "society Grikks" . . . a "society Grikk" is something extra special, his No. 1 compliment.

Tourists never see the two most celebrated rooms out here, the check room at the Inglewood race track, or the check room at the Santa Anita race track . . . each is located in the turf club, and to these rooms repair the picture stars when they have gone broke and are in need of cash to play a tip in the next race.

I've met the finest people in the industry in these check rooms and the expression on their faces is a mixture of bafflement, perplexity, and deep hurt . . . they had been told that a certain horse would win, and the horse did not win.

Their faces mirror the natural doubt in human nature that has been created by this equine shell game, and the scratching noise that you hear is that of a pen making out a check for fresh dough, long green for the parimutuels.

Tourists never see the room wherein Douglas Shearer, at M.-G.-M., accomplishes miracles of sound-on-film . . . nor the sound roon at Warner's where Maj. Levinson's assistants have indexed files of every noise from the chimes of "Big Ben" to that of the thud of a boxer's glove on a man's face.

They never see Zanuck's Midnight room, one floor below the main floor of the administration building at 20th Century-Fox, where each midnight you can find him cutting his pictures . . . they never see the Hays office, with its cataloged memos on the taboos of films.

It is very lucky for us who report the Hollywood scene that the tourists don't see these things because if they did there would be no necessity for newspapers to cover out here, and a lot of us would have to go back to work driving taxicabs.

Josef Hofmann Reticent Soloist at Ravinia Park

BY EDWARD BARRY.

At Ravinia park last night Josef Hofmann's reticent playing won the respectful applause of an overflowing audience. This gray haired veteran of thousands of encounters with the piano was serving as soloist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra, Sir Adrian Boult conducting, at the second concert of the 1939 Ravinia festival.

It seemed in his performance of the Chopin E Minor concerto as if Mr. Hofmann had developed an actual fear of anything which could possibly be called theatrical. There were no nice soupy legatos in his playing—no exploitation of the opportunities for fainting, wispy romanticism which the concerto offers.

All was a quiet, attractive gray, with only enough inflection to give the music a minimum eloquence. Scrupulously the pianist worked to make the performance conform with his own self-set requirements. If a phrase even threatened to lean toward the sentimental, a matter of fact tonal effect would suddenly bring back the quiet, almost prosaic air which distinguished the performance.

Somewhat of an exception was the slow movement, which became purling and silvery two or three times. If the audience was not overwhelmed it was at least cordial, and clapped for a reasonable length of time at the end of the concerto.

Sir Adrian prefaced the soloist's offerings with a crisp "Bartered Bride" overture and with a poetic but still virile performance of the Schubert "Unfinished" symphony.

Good Morning!

The Chicago theater has something for everybody this week—prize fight pictures, Bob Hope in person—he's FUN!—clowning and singing, and for the feature picture an interesting number with laughs, heart interest, excitement and a lot of nice western scenery which includes cowboys singing, little dogies doging, and yards and yards of wide open spaces.

Maisie is a show girl who finds herself stranded in a little western town whither she's been lured with promise of a job. . . . She is temporarily employed in a shooting concession where she meets Ranch Manager "Slim" Martin—who misses his wallet immediately he has gone away from there, and has the fresh and pretty blonde whose ballyhooing had intrigued him thrown into jail. . . .

Circumstances prove the lady to be not guilty. "Slim" tries to right the wrong he's done her and gets bawled out for the gesture. Finally, thinking himself rid of the fair termagant, he hies himself ranchward, driving a truck in which he believes is ONLY a calf. . . . Ha ha—when the pie is opened—guess what bird begins to sing in high, raucous notes? . . . You're right. Maisie!

Well—to the ranch come nice Mr. Ames, who owns the place, and his slim, two-timing wife . . . Maisie wangles herself a job as maid to the latter and finds herself in on plenty. . . . Much transpires including a suicide, a court trial, an automobile wreck—and the discovery of Mr. "Slim" that a young woman named Maisie is mighty necessary to his happiness. . . .

Ann Sothern and Robert Young are adept and likable as the romantic leads. Ian Hunter practically breaks your heart as the husband of the rag, bone and hank who doesn't appreciate him. How she COULD look at another—even Mr. Young—with Ian around, beats me! . . . Ruth Hussey gives a skillfully drawn portrait of lovely, unscrupulous Mrs. Ames. Nice to see Cliff Edwards again! Splendid cast all the way through.

I certainly recommend a visit to the Chicago this week. [Say, doesn't Joe Louis' second—tall fellow who stays in his corner with him—look just like Boris Karloff in blackface?]

See you tomorrow.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Loathing gadgets and cluttery things as we do, it may be that we're a little prejudiced in our appreciation of a cute but eminently sensible little trick in the way of a manicure case. This is the kind of a case you just grab for when your nail polish needs repair; you can carry it in your week-end case or keep it in your desk.

It's a little tweedlike case, not much bigger than a change purse. It holds a bottle of nail enamel, a bottle of remover, an orange wood stick, and little emery boards. What more do you need for the quick changes?

It's very inexpensive and the polish and remover are tops. You can have your choice of several shades in the polish, all of them extremely fashionable.

The remover is the good, gentle kind that contains no acid; it's a member of the oil family. One of the things we like best about the packaging job this house has done is the fact that there is about twice as much remover as there is enamel. Every woman knows that remover is used up far more quickly than polish and it's not quite fair to give her too little for her money.

Cases are in three colors: Red and white bound in red; beige bound in brown, and nautical blue bound in navy.

With the sandals and open toe shoes, pedicures are more popular than ever this summer. The polish shade should match that on the fingers, but it's important to remember that the skin tone of the feet is often quite different from that of the hands. Use a shade that harmonizes with both. And DO give the toenails the benefit of grooming and shaping.

Good-bye To Vienna

By Olga L. Rosmanith

(Copyright: 1939: By News Syndicate Company, Inc.)

SYNOPSIS.

An American girl and her Viennese sweetheart, Franz Gruenwald, in a café in Vienna, hear a radio announcement of Hitler's entry into Austria. The girl, Marian, has been staying in Frans's home, studying voice. Franz fears for his foster father, Prof. Josef von Plasy, author of a recent anti-Nazi book. He refuses to flee the country and leaves his wife, Gisela, and son Johann, who has the mind of a child. Leopoldine, a pro-Nazi woman surgeon, in love with Frans, warns him to send the American girl home. Her brother, Karl, is a Storm Trooper. Von Plasy is taken off to jail to die from shock. In order to take Gisela's money out of the country to deliver to her friend, Emil Wiedermann, in Riga, Marian invests it in rare stamps. Herr Speyer, the stamp merchant, guesses her purpose, but is sympathetic and asks her to deliver a picture to a friend of his in Riga, a Mme. Lonska. Marian leaves without telling Franz her purpose. Frans loses his job. When Leopoldine secures one for him he accepts it for the sake of his dependents. Marian learns Herr Wiedermann is in love with Gisela and wants to arrange for her and Johann to come to Riga. He takes her to call on Mme. Lonska, who insists that Marian stay with her.

INSTALMENT XVIII.

A SPY.

They were walking back to the house in the dusk along the beach fringed with its endless forest. Mme. Lonska tucked her arm in Marian's. "Now tell me all about Vienna. Is the German army amenable to discipline? Did you talk with any of the officers?"

"Not personally. I did hear from a girl in the Conservatory, who stays with a family in Baden at the week-ends, that some officers visited them—friends of their relatives in Germany—and confided they were very fed up."

"That is good. Did they say if anything were afoot? I mean if an army party is forming for a putsch. If anything is likely to be done?"

"O, they didn't say anything about that." Marian was startled but not suspicious. "After all, if they were plotting such things they wouldn't talk about it, would they?"

"It is very amateur to talk like that. Youth is no excuse for it. Soldiers get drunk easily enough if you manage them. Then they will answer any questions."

Marian felt a queer tingle of alarm run along her veins. She was cold and hot and quivering all at the same time. What was this strange woman after all? And what did she take her visitor for? Marian kept her head.

"I had nothing to do with the German officers. I had no opportunity."

Sayonara patted her hand. "Of course not. I am a fool. You are too young for that. What you did, you did competently. Your work will develop as you show your ability—time moves on—"

What I did—I did competently? But what did I do, thought Marian, distraught.

Then she remembered. The little picture of the Karlskirche fashioned laboriously of foreign stamps. That was no contribution to hang among the Russian woman's critically chosen treasures. That was a secret agent's message. Her nerves calmed down. She would call Herr Weidermann and ask him to take her away tomorrow. In the meantime so long as she did not give herself away she was safe.

Safe from what? She did not even know that. Sayonara knocked at her door that night and came in while she was trying to compose that difficult letter to Franz which would appear innocent and convey to Gisela another meaning. She said, "Marian, what's your number?"

Marian thought faster than she had ever thought in her life. She had just written the date on the notepaper before her, 22d April. She said decisively—"twenty-two A P, but Herr Speyer said he was writing to you."

"Well, his letter went astray. It's madness, clever as he is with them. It's all right for me—here in a neutral country. But he's right in the thick of it. My God, I wish he wouldn't. They're as clever as the devil, that damned Gestapo."

Sayonara halted by the little desk at which Marian sat. "Never overrate your own cleverness, or under-rate that of your enemy. It's certain suicide. I know these things, sitting here and gathering all the threads in. The clever ones go too far and they vanish from the earth or they lead to their sources and destroy a whole system. But the sensible ones go on for years, and in the last addition theirs is the substantial sum of the work. Remember that in future—"

"Yes, I'll remember—"

"One can do very well if one sticks to one's own line and keeps a cool head. I've seen overconfidence and conceit wreck some promising careers, though I don't mind admitting it can be a grim and lonely business. It's when loneliness gets you that the nerves get out of hand."

She tapped Marian's shoulder. "And another hint specially for you, my dear. Try to get a more convincing foreign accent in your German, when you're acting the visiting American. It's too unmistakably Viennese. You may deceive an uncritical audience like Herr Wiedermann, because your mannerisms are pretty good. But not an expert. You didn't deceive me."

"I'll try harder," said Marian humbly. "You seldom hear an American talk German so it's hard to know how."

Sayonara smiled, all anxiety gone from her vivid, arresting face. "You'll do," she said. "You have the right spirit. Don't do any pillow work. That's degradation. You're too good for that. Did Otto fix that American passport?"

"No. It came to me through the mail. I don't know who did it for me."

Sayonara nodded satisfied. "The usual thing, of course. Now do a little favor for me, will you?"

"If I can, I will with pleasure."

"Give Otto a scolding when you get back. No more letter writing. He's not as clever as he thinks he is. He must stick to his stamps. You'll do that, won't you?"

"Of course. I wouldn't like him to be—I mean I wouldn't like anything to happen to him."

"Neither would I," Sayonara moved to the door and paused there. "It's a great game. Endlessly interesting. It's nice to have the money. But I don't need it any more. I do it because I hate Germany and I love Russia. Not Germans, you understand—I've loved a few in my time. But the Nazi system—"

Sayonara yawned mightily, spreading both hands over her stretching jaws.

"We'll resume this talk tomorrow, Marian. I want to know how you began," she said. "I want to know all about you. How clever you really are, and if you're much older than any one would take you for—"

She laughed and yawned again. "You should see some of the messengers that come to me—then you'd realize why I'm so delighted to receive suddenly a cultured, interesting young woman. I know some one who would appreciate you. I've a good mind to take you with me next week when I go over the border—"

Marian managed a carefree smile and a pleasant good-night. Then she turned the key in her door carefully and stood with her back against it. She heard Sayonara's high heels click along the waxed floor of the landing, then the sound of her closing the door.

Certainly while Sayonara was ignorant of the true situation there would be no danger. Nothing could be more childish and theatrical than a flight in the night. She had only to keep her head, call up Herr Weidermann on some pretext, get him to come and take her away tomorrow. But suppose one of Herr Speyer's letters came with the morning mail enlightening Sayonara before she could get away. Would her encouragement of the misunderstanding be forgiven? Would Sayonara trust her? Or would she suspect her of counterespionage.

Perhaps I'd better go while I can, she thought. She leaned over the wooden rail looking for places that would afford a footing. The gravel crunched loudly and the unmistakable fragrance of the butler's special brand of long brown cigarets was wafted up to her. The glowing tip of the cigaret was almost immediately below her in the dark.

. . . . . .

She fell asleep toward daybreak and woke late. Sayonara followed the Lettish maid into the bedroom with the usual appetizing breakfast tray. She had letters in her hand, and an agreeable smile on her face. So the mail had come without bringing the anticipated exposure. "Two letters for you from Vienna readdressed by the hotel—neither from Otto, as I can see."

Requests for menu suggestions dominate the mail these days. Summer breakfasts, luncheons, and suppers, camping food plans, lawn parties, and picnics are being planned right and left, it seems, and the cooking department frequently is asked to help.

From Goshen, Ind., comes a letter requesting a menu for breakfast for 100 summer school pupils ranging from kindergarten through high school years. Here's what we'd like to suggest:

BREAKFAST FOR 100 CHILDREN.

Fruit cup of sliced oranges, bananas, and peaches, with raspberries over the top and orange juice poured over all; creamed sliced hard cooked eggs garnished with watercress or parsley; crisp bacon, pineapple sweet rolls, and milk or cocoa.

The plan is a simple one, easy to execute with a large crowd. The food wouldn't be expensive and is suitable for very young children as well as older ones.

A Berwyn reader who's going to give a fifteenth anniversary supper for fifteen persons may like to use this menu:

ANNIVERSARY BUFFET SUPPER
Baked Ham Slices with Fresh Cherry Sauce
Sweet Potato Croquettes
Salad Bowl Lined with Leaf Lettuce,
Filled with Watercress, Tomato
Wedges, Avocado Slices, Cantaloupe
Slices, French Dressing with Chives
Bowknot Rolls
Raspberry Jam Celery Curls Olives
Fresh Peach Sundaes
Hot or Iced Coffee

A bride-to-be who intends to keep on working after her marriage wants ideas about planning and preparing her evening meals. We'd recommend "When the Business Woman Cooks," a 5 cent mimeographed booklet written just for women in her position. Also "Everyday Adventures in Salads," 5 cents; and the brand new "Ways with Vegetables," 7 cents by mail.

For Your Vacation Journey

WOMAN'S AND MISS' FROCK.

If you're planning any kind of vacation at all, you need a frock that will withstand travel and emerge from a long trip looking just as if it had recently left the nanger. Two-piece dresses are notable Spartans when it comes to keeping that crisp, fresh look through hours of wearing. Our pattern today presents a girlish and feminine version of the two-piece frock. The blouse is semi-fitted and has a snug waistline that vaguely suggests a peplum. Buttons are used down the front closing, and the round neckline is treated to a contrasting collar trimmed with lace or ruffling. The sleeves of the blouse are puffed. The skirt, a comfortable model, is molded at the hipline and flared widely at the hem.

All types of cottons, linens, and heavy wash silks make up well and, as the sketch shows, checked materials are excellent choices, although all plain colors and some soft prints may be used effectively. If you prefer, omit a collar and give the round neckline, short puffed sleeves, front closing, and two triangular pockets the benefit of stitching in contrasting thread as the only finish.

Style No. 2896 is designed for sizes 12, 14, and 16, and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measurement. Size 16 requires 3¼ yards of 39 inch material, with ¼ yard of contrasting.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central station, NEW YORK CITY, inclosing 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

Parents of a Problem Child May Need Aid

GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Are you a born mother? Are you a born father?

Yesterday we admitted some men and some women just seem to take to parenthood like ducks to water. In some lucky families both husband and wife are like this; but often it is just one—either the father or the mother—who seems to be cut out to enjoy children and to handle them wisely and well.

It is true that being physiologically able to have a baby does not mean that one is fitted for motherhood. There are women for whom motherhood is not a career, but an uncongenial responsibility. Their energies, their creative power would find a more welcome outlet in business, in art, or in a fuller social life. They are by nature geared to that way of living, and for them motherhood is not a satisfactory outlet.

There are also a few other women who are not by nature warm and kind, with that capacity for selflessness and patience that motherhood requires. These women, however, if we take the mass of people, are the exception.

Many women love and want children, but just can't get along with them. They write me, themselves, to this effect. If we say that all such mothers are lacking in the native capacity for managing children and so can't succeed, we'd be overstating the facts, and discouraging them utterly. You can learn this "trade" of managing children if you can only find out why you have failed.

Now, perhaps you think I'm going to proceed to give directions as to how to gain obedience, or how to deal with the little baby's "no-no!" or how to cure tantrums. But I'm not. Instead I'm going to suggest, if you're quite a failure with your children, that you look within yourself and see if the trouble isn't there.

Many psychologists of child guidance clinics have stated that, if parents could and would clear up their own emotional difficulties they could often successfully deal with and clear up their children's behavior difficulties. As a simple illustration: haven't you often caught yourself up, after snapping at the children or scolding them for their noise, and then realized and noted mentally, "I ought to be ashamed—I only did that because John and I quarreled this morning," or "because I've gotten edgy over fitting that wretched coat I'm altering"?

There may be inner reasons, more involved, or chronic, or deep-seated than these, which color your attitude toward your children and make you incompetent to deal with them happily and wisely. These may be peculiar to your own individual set of circumstances, so that we couldn't surmise them here.

"Trips for Tired Mothers" is the name of a leaflet sent to you on request. Address Mrs. Gladys Huntington Bevans, the Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill., inclosing a self-addressed stamped envelope.

Low Prices Prevail as Germany Sells Her 'Degenerate Art'

[Copyright: 1939: By the New York Times.]

LUCERNE, Switzerland, June 30.—The much heralded sale of "degenerate art" from German museums was held here today, but most of the 125 paintings were sold at disappointingly low prices. The total derived from the sale was only $135,000, which was slightly more than half of the expected amount.

A portrait by Van Gogh brought the day's highest individual price. It went for $38,000 to Alfred M. Frankfurter, New York editor of Art News. The majority of the paintings was bought by a Belgian syndicate representing museums in Brussels and Antwerp.

BOOKS

Chamberlain's Utterances in Quest of Peace

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"In Search of Peace," by the Rt. Hon. Neville Chamberlain. [Putnam, $3.50.] Published Monday.

"In Search of Peace" is an unusual book in one sense and in that sense only. It places before his contemporaries, without comment, the official speeches of a statesman who is obviously so convinced of his own rectitude that he is willing to assemble for his enemies, as well as for his friends, the ammunition of judgment.

In the book's pages, which consist of the most important and relevant public statements which Neville Chamberlain has made since he became the British prime minister, is black on white evidence of his amazing persistence in the belief in Hitler's protestations that he did not intend to use force even when Hitler's letters [included in the volume] state plainly that he intends to return the Sudeten Germans to the reich no matter what any one says.

Suddenly Mr. Chamberlain sees the war cloud from the other side, and while he still declares for peace he denounces the "claim by any one state to dominate others by force." And in the second week of last March, in a speech broadcast to the empire and to America, he proclaims: "If I was right then, I am still right now." That certainty of rightness is unclouded by the faintest doubt of either his own judgment or the world's approval.

As speeches to read these are commonplace and bear no relation to the great diplomatic literature of English history, and Mr. Chamberlain's "In Search of Peace" seems less reassuring than he thinks.

Hudson River's Life Story

"The Hudson," by Carl Carmer. [Farrar & Rinehart, $2.50.] Published Monday.

The author of two extremely popular regional books, "Stars Fell on Alabama" and "Listen for a Lonesome Drum," is the newest contributor to the very fine "Rivers of America" series and has given the series what will unquestionably be its most popular volume.

Constance Skinner Lindsay, the general editor of the series, died last March. It is a pity she did not live to see this book, for it must fulfill the intent of the series. It makes the Hudson itself as much a part of the human drama that took place upon its banks as were the people who performed in that drama.

By its very nature the Hudson influenced man's life—by its navigability to ocean going craft, its mountains which yield rocks for cements, its silvery shad almost eager for the catching, and its banksoil which makes possible the growing of the world's best violets. And its majestic scenery has inspired artists of brush and pen, and the Hudson river "aestheticism" of landscape gardening, "castles built so that the Hudson would look like the Rhine, and the ruins they built to give the river an antique look."

The Hudson's wild nature made strong men, who for 200 years fought the patroon system. And, incidentally, many of the old Hudson river social dynasties will not be too happy over Mr. Carmer's historical findings.

Whalers live in these pages, too, escaping from the Massachusetts coast and Nantucket and filtering English blood into the Dutch and German of the earlier settlers. Legend and fact make the pages glow with excitement. Almost any one, whether he knows the Hudson or merely knows about it, will be filled with an eagerness to know it better—personally—after reading "Hudson River."

Inquisition in Spain.

"The Spanish Inquisition," by Cecil Roth. [Robert Hale, London, $4.75.]

In the chapter titled "Aftermath" of his volume on the Spanish Inquisition, Cecil Roth declares: "If history has ever a lesson to teach us, it is to warn us against being overawed by the clattering of a bully's sabre. . . . The example of Spain is enough to warn us that it matters not that a nation gain the whole world if it lose its soul." But only in the final chapter is there any application of the past to present. The rest of the long, scholarly, but popular book is a marshaling of facts and an interpretation of their contemporary significance.

Mr. Roth is concerned less with the actual tortures than with their mass significance. Many books exist which describe them in detail. He merely outlines them to light their meaning. The salient feature about the Inquisition, he says, "or indeed the middle ages as a whole," is that "then men really did believe [not merely professed to believe] that they were endowed by God with immortal souls." And it was in the name of saving their own and the souls of others from an eternal damnation that they resorted to autos da fe.

Another misconception of many moderns, Mr. Roth says, is that "the principal object of the existence of the Inquisition was to burn Jews." With Jews as Jews it did not, strictly speaking, concern itself, but with Christianized Jews accused of secretly practicing Judaism, for the Inquisition was directed against heresy WITHIN the Catholic church, and the persecution of Protestants later was as deadly as the persecution of Jews.

The Spaniards of those 200 and more bloody years reckoned the auto da fe as "a great public spectacle, vying in popular appeal with bull fights," Mr. Roth says, and "special celebrations were often arranged in honor of royalty." He points out that brutality has always been an undercurrent in Spanish history. He shows that the strangling fingers of the Inquisition closed about the throat of Spain and eventually brought her low.

Ideal Summer Reading

"The Brandons," by Angela Thirkell. [Knopf, $2.50.] Published Monday. Joint choice of the Book of the Month club for July.

Angela Thirkell has a genius for writing light novels. Inconsequential events are deliciously made consequential. Neither important nor impressive but highly amusing characters people charmingly written pages. And everything and everybody "have nothing to do with the case" of a jittery world.

Miss Thirkell provides perfect relaxation in this gently satirical tale. We used to call them hammock novels, and they were as much a part of the equipment of summer as play suits and a portable radio are now. They were books that fitted the laziness of a swaying hammock in the shade, deliciously accompanied by a distant buzzing of bees and a box of caramels. Just that sort of book is "The Brandons" and the best of its sort.

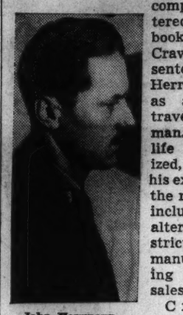
The principal character is Lavinia Brandon, who has all of the feminine wiles and enough intelligence not to seem too smart. She fills every man she meets with the highest and noblest sentiments and her two children with glee at her genius for always saying what she thinks the other person wants said. The older of the children, Francis, frankly ribs his mother about her tactics; the younger, Delia, adores talking about things that are "simply ghastly" like nice gory murders and the charred bodies of the victims of a burned charabanc, but cries for a whole day because she runs over a field mouse with her bicycle. A harridan of an ancient aunt, rolling in money and living in a horribly gloomy house, thinks she is pulling them about like jumping jacks by dangling her fortune before them, but it is sheer good nature, not avarice, that makes them visit her.

There are assorted other characters, among them a nurse and a maid, blood rivals in serving madam, and a vicar and his young pupil who dedicate to Mrs. Brandon the books which they are writing. One of the most delicious flowers in this literary nosegay is the chapter in which Mrs. Brandon manages to escape hearing the vicar's book on John Donne. Those pages are a masterpiece.

Novel About a Traveling Salesman Gives an Honest Picture of His Life

"The Salesman," by John Herrmann. [Simon & Schuster, $2.50.]

Most readers' ideas of the life of a traveling salesman probably will be completely shattered by this book. Robert Crawford is presented in John Herrmann's novel as a typical traveling salesman. His home life is fictionalized, but many of his experiences on the road might be included without alteration in a strictly factual manual concerning a traveling salesman's life.



John Herrmann.

Crawford doesn't spend all his evenings carousing with wild women and strong drink, nor does he sell his goods by taking buyers or purchasing agents on a spree. He works under the rule that the more calls you make the more goods you will sell, and is handicapped in his spending by the knowledge that the boss is going to give his expense account a thorough inspection. The author has done a good job of telling the honest story of the traveling salesman.

A Cowboy and an Indian

"We Pointed Them North," by E. C. Abbott and Helena Huntington Smith. [Farrar & Rinehart, $3.]

"Dezba, Woman of the Desert," by Gladys A. Reichard. [J. J. Augustin, $3.]

"We Pointed Them North" is the sort of book that makes a reviewer long for a literary page as spacious as the Texas range and a vocabulary as colorful as that of the gun toting characters who have contributed such exciting color to American folklore. Teddy Blue, who was formally known as E. C. Abbott, died only recently, but before his death he saw a copy of this book. No record was kept of his reactions to the published version of his biography, but he must have liked it. Teddy Blue was a cowhand who did everything. His story is the story of the west, and the author's ability to capture his alkaline memories has made this a classic of western literature. Ross Santee's drawings are sheer inspiration.

A matriarch of sheer spiritual beauty is Dezba, the Navajo woman who rules her little clan with kindness and quiet faith. Treasuring the old ways, striving always to accept the new, she goes through life a personification of the best traits of the Indian. "Dezba, Woman of the Desert," a beautifully illustrated book, is in reality a series of well drawn sketches, held together by a moving and sympathetic understanding of the Indian character. It is a fresh picture of a part of the west we know too little about.

A Feminine Don Juan

"The Perplexed Heart," by Angela du Maurier. [Doubleday & Doran, $2.50.]

This first novel by the sister of Daphne du Maurier of "Rebecca" fame is the saga of a feminine Don Juan. Verona Harris is a beautiful, clever, intelligent young woman who is made a widow in her early twenties. She is married a second time, although she is still in love with her memories, and when this union fails she starts on a long career of romances, none of which quite rings the bell.

In Venice, in the palace of the Princess Montecatino, she falls in love with Guido, the son and heir. Back in England once more, she goes to live in a seaside cottage in Cornwall and is fascinated by the local vicar. After him come several others, with the scene shifting to a boat en route from Ceylon to London, and to Paris, where Verona becomes a dancer in a smart night club.

Miss du Maurier has the difficult task of making "an amoral not immoral" woman a sympathetic character. And she doesn't quite bring it off. But she does succeed in telling a rapid fire story in an entertaining way. Parts of the book read almost as fluently and engrossingly as W. Somerset Maugham. That's saying a lot for any first novel!

A Group Study of Causes and Effects in War

BY JOSEPH ATOR.

"War in Our Time," by the graduate faculty of the New School for Social Research. Edited by Hans Speier and Alfred Kahler. [Norton, $3.]

This is a series of essays, all with an abstract approach, on the causes of war and the revamping of economic systems which the waging of a modern, totalitarian war demands. There is a strong trend of thought throughout the book that to resist Fascism the democracies will have to go Fascist themselves. Arnold Brecht's contribution, on the disturbing effects of the modern concept of sovereignty, is particularly interesting.

Role for U. S. Suggested

"Blood Is Cheaper Than Water," by Quincy Howe. [Simon & Schuster, $2.]

Quincy Howe, who wrote "England Expects Every American to Do His Duty," on this occasion suggests that in the world conflict that he contends is inevitable it will be better if the United States assumes the rôle of Uncle Shylock rather than that of Uncle Sucker. He suggests that if we are to support the British empire, the least we should demand is outright cession of British Caribbean possessions and extensive spheres of commercial influence in British Pacific possessions.

Sandwiched into his brief for American imperialism is the author's summary of the present war and peace parties in the United States. Mr. Howe is exciting, but a distressing mastery of the nonsequitur and occasionally sloppy use of facts prevents taking him too seriously.

Personal Reactions to War

"War or Peace," edited by Alfred Brant and Frederick Houck Law. [Harpers, $1.75.]

This is a collection, starting with Rabelais and Voltaire and running through Bierce and Stephen Crane to Barbusse and Hemingway, portraying the reaction of the individual to war. The editors, New York high school English instructors, have organized it as a text. If Mr. Roosevelt gets a war and suspends the bill of rights, they may be sure that their little offering will be one of the first to feel the weight of the censor. It would discourage the conscripts.

Conceited Boy Is Jilted by Girl He Loves

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"I write, not to ask advice, but to give it," H. R. begins his communication. And continues:

"I was a popular boy, the kind the girls couldn't resist. That's what I thought. All I had to do was to flick an eyelash and they'd come flying. That's what I thought. They seemed to like whatever treatment they got, for they came back for more of the same kind. I was so filled with the pride and conceit that I considered it an insult if a girl did not respond to my slightest little attention. It may sound incredible—but it's true. But that was I—UNTIL . . .

"This certain girl that has me going now was different from the rest. She did not care for my smooth ways and actually snubbed me. Well, I wasn't going to run after her—then.

"When it was too late, I found out that she did have a feeling for me but she couldn't take my conceit.

"Well, she's engaged to another fellow now, and I realize fully what a sap I was and am. But I am still crazy about her. I can't see any other girl for thinking of her. Would there be any use, do you think, in getting in touch with her now and telling her honestly what a fool I was? Or, do you think I let my one good chance go by forever." H. R.

Better leave the girl alone, H. R. You probably are working up a case of love whose true nature is more likely to be pique. If she cared, she wouldn't have become engaged to another while you were free.

Hard to Sleep on Hot Nights? Try These Aids

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Whatever may be said about the face ruining effects of sleeplessness in cold weather, nothing that we have seen gives quite the ravished look to a face that a restless, sleepless summer night imparts. Swollen, glazed eyes, washed out color, and a spirit dulled beyond any excursion coaxing greets the morn.

Under the most favorable circumstances, bedtime comfort is not as simple in summer, sleep not quite so restful and undisturbed, unless you are the kind of person who dreams on blissfully with the fire engines directly under the window.

A leisurely bath in warmish water before retiring [not the stimulating shower] after which the moisture is "blotted away with a clean towel" is helpful. Friction caused by rubbing vigorously with the towel may nullify the cooling effects of the bath. Crisp, clean sheets and pillow cases have a soporific effect, and night clothes should be loose, porous and changed often. You can go in for the easy to rinse out porous cotton that requires little laundering.

If anything, you need more sleep in summer to restore a nerve balance, to say nothing of sustaining that fresh light in the eye and alertness to your step.

While the month begins on a light note, this month is not a particularly bright one. There is too much tension in the air and a rather nervous restlessness will no doubt prevail throughout the month. On the House

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Most of our kitchens are visible—in fact, we purposely make them highly eye catching because we are proud of them. But here's a type of diminutive kitchen which prides itself on its invisibility. It is, moreover, "portable"; all it needs is an electric wall outlet. One of these models is finished in a baked-on blond enamel tone. Its steel cabinet is only 37 inches wide and 25 inches deep. When it is closed it is just an article of furniture with a table top combination, but when open there's a two burner electric stove and broiler, stainless steel work surfaces, electric refrigeration, spacious side storage cabinets, and shelves for linen, silver, and dry foods. If you have a room or rooms with "housekeeping privileges" you'll find this unit 100 per cent efficient.

112 HIDDEN TAXES PILE UP COST OF A PAIR OF SHOES

Rich and Poor Alike Pay Countless Levies.

Rich man, poor man, beggar man, thief—they all pay taxes.

There are 157 hidden taxes in the cost of a funeral. Your electric light bill includes 49 taxes. There are 112 in the price of a pair of shoes, 72 when you buy a dress, 60 in coffee, 56 in stockings, and 61 in a movie ticket.

A report issued yesterday by the Chicago Association of Commerce, which is fighting to reduce the cost of local government, points out that every person in the United States, even if he is on relief, pays taxes in one form or another.

25% of Rent Is for Tax.

Twenty-five per cent of your rent, the report says, is paid because your landlord has to get his taxes back somehow. Each gallon of gasoline brings in 8 cents for various governmental units. A $4 hat would be 88 cents cheaper without hidden or processing taxes. And even a can of tomatoes, at 10 cents, includes 2½ cents in tax.

The hidden tax, the report says, is the most popular with legislators because the job of absorbing and collecting is given to some one other than governmental units. Such a tax is usually included in the purchase price of an article. If the manufacturer attempted to absorb them all he would be forced out of business, the report says.

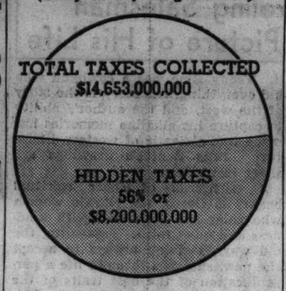
14½ Billions for Government.

The cost of all governments for last year, federal, state, and local, was $14,653,000,000 as represented in taxes collected. Of this amount, the association study shows, 56 per cent, or eight billions 200 millions, were "hidden."

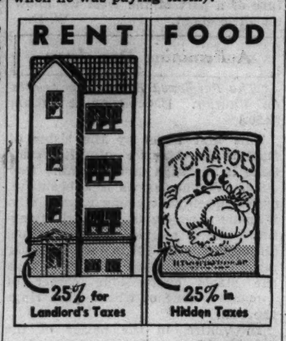
The cost of all government in 1890 was covered by 5 cents out of each wage earner's dollar, the report states. Last year 28 cents of each dollar earned went for taxes. If the governmental divisions had been operated on a cash basis the amount would have risen to 40 cents in taxes out of each earned dollar.

The Taxes You Pay

(Story in adjoining column.)



More than half of the total taxes—federal, state, and local—collected last year were hidden (so levied that the citizen did not know when he was paying them).



One-fourth of the money the tenant pays to the landlord goes for taxes. Also a fourth of the cost of food, exemplified here by a can of tomatoes, pays for government.

THE WAGE EARNER'S DOLLAR

Whereas a nickel of the wage earner's dollar went for taxes in 1890, today governments take 28 cents.

Locusts Sing Farewell.

June 30, 1939.

THE woodland concerts of the cicadas [seventeen year locusts] are just about over in the woods of the Du Page county farm. For several weeks these unusual insects have been a noisy curiosity in many timbered areas throughout Chicagoland.

About ten days ago the invasion of the cicadas into the farm woods was at its height. You could hear them buzzing in many of the woodlots. In the area north of the big pond, where there are black oaks, white oaks, haws, wild crab, and many other species of trees the cicadas were present in countless hundreds.

But this week we could hear only a handful of the insects singing their farewell songs. Although the cicadas are about through for seventeen years, they have left visible reminders of their emergence from the ground into the air and sunshine for a few weeks among the trees.

Many Twigs Drying Up.

When we walked over the farm this week we noticed many small terminal twigs which were drying up and dying as a result of the cicadas' work. The female insects made small slits on these twigs. In these little openings they laid their eggs, which were thrust deep into the soft pithy part of the branch. Branches having these gashes and eggs in them naturally are weakened. Now they're wilting and the leaves on them are turning brown. In a short time all of these terminal twigs will be dead and then one may expect them to break off and drop to the ground.

This is just what the cicada wants. Its eggs must return to the ground in order to be protected and hatch out again in seventeen years. This week we noticed that the elms, red haws, slippery elms, and white, red and burr oaks had numerous withering and dead twigs, all containing cicada eggs.

In the western suburbs the cicadas have left reminders of their visit in many areas. Hundreds of oaks, hickories, and maples in and near the York forest preserve, south of Elmhurst, appear to have suffered.

The oaks seemed to be most seriously affected. We noticed these dead leaves in the forest preserve near the corner of York road and Roosevelt road, and also on York road between Roosevelt road and Hinsdale. Many large trees near Lombard also have been hit by the insects.

Hawthorn twig killed by cicada egg deposits.

Little Permanent Damage.

Chicagoland residents have little to fear from the cicadas, even though the insects have caused many terminal twigs to die, according to N. B. Wysong, assistant chief forester of the Cook county forest preserve district. He believes that the cicadas will cause very little permanent damage. It is true that the trees look badly now, but they will be as healthy as ever next spring. The only serious damage will be the killing of some seedlings.

There is not much doubt about poultry being active enemies of the cicada. We caught a few of the insects in the farm woods and took them to the barnyard to find out if the poultry would eat them. A cicada tossed to the chickens resulted in a nip and tuck battle to decide which of the birds was to have a feast. The same thing happened when a cicada was given to the guinea hens. And we're almost certain that the turkeys which live in the farm woods have reduced the cicada population. These turkeys are a real help in combating grasshoppers and other insects, so it's a sure bet that they have waged war on the cicadas.

DEMPSEY SHOWS IMPROVEMENT; NOT OUT OF DANGER

MUST WAIT 72 HOURS BEFORE CRISIS PASSES

New York, June 30.—[Special.]—The marvelous physique that made Jack Dempsey one of the greatest athletes of sports' golden era in the 20's was responding once again tonight as the former heavyweight boxing champion continued to show improvement after yesterday's emergency appendectomy.

Late tonight, Dr. Alfred Lilienfeld, one of the physicians attending Dempsey in Polyclinic hospital, said the famous patient was holding his own very nicely, but he refused to declare that Dempsey is out of danger. The appendix was removed before bursting and the infection is being drained out.

"We cannot say the danger has passed until after forty-eight to seventy-two hours," Dr. Lilienfeld declared. "However, so far, so good. Every hour that passes is so much to the good." The latest bulletin reported that Dempsey was resting comfortably. His temperature was given as 101.2, his pulse 82 and his respiration 24.

Wife Returns Home.

Intimates of Dempsey said optimistically that he was in no danger and no sicker than any person is after an appendectomy. Earlier in the day there were reports that the former champion had only a 50-50 chance to live, but these were quickly denied by hospital officials.

Further evidence that Dempsey is in no immediate danger was given when his wife, the former Hannah Williams, former Broadway musical comedy star, returned to the Dempsey apartment to be with their two young daughters. Mrs. Dempsey was in good spirits and confident that her husband would recover. He slept most of the afternoon.

The 44 year old former heavyweight champion of the world was taken to the hospital after a friend had insisted last night that he stop playing pinochle in his apartment long enough to submit to an examination by a physician.

Dempsey had complained of feeling bad Wednesday, after eating turtle soup, according to Billy Taub, his partner in a Broadway clothing business. Dempsey did not attend the Louis-Galento fight that night.

Partner Tells of Illness.

Yesterday morning, Taub said, Dempsey called a doctor, who gave him medicine which relieved his pain temporarily. During the pinochle game last night at the Dempsey apartment, in Central Park West, Dempsey obviously was in great pain, Taub said.

Playing with Dempsey were Taub, Brown, and Johnny Wilson, who handles Dempsey's brand of whisky in Syracuse. Max Waxman, who arranges Dempsey's appearances as a referee at wrestling bouts, and Billy Willmark of the United Cigar company, who wanted Dempsey's autograph for an advertising campaign, also were present, but not playing.

Shortly after the game started Taub remarked to Dempsey: "Jack, you don't look well to me. Let me call my doctor."

Taub explained that Dempsey's face was drawn, and that he seemed to be wincing from pain. Dempsey replied:

"I'm O. K., pal. It's just a little stomach trouble. I had the doctor and he said there was nothing wrong with me."

Taub Calls a Doctor.

So they played for a while, and Taub then said:

"Jack, I haven't seen my doctor in a long time. I'm going to call him."

Dempsey replied: "If it will make

MATRON STAKES HEADS ARLINGTON PROGRAM TODAY

Flying Lil Is Favorite in $5,000 Event.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

A fashionable band of mares and older fillies, which rank with the country's fleetest, will match their speed in the $5,000 Matron handicap this afternoon before the first weekend crowd of the Arlington Park meeting.

Charles H. Cleary's Flying Lil, Gustav Ring's Lady Maryland, the Woolford farm's Unerring, and other good performers will try for victory in a stake which has been won in the past by such high class campaigners as Tom Taggart's Marica and Mrs. John Hertz's Valenciennes and Risque.

The overnight entries include fourteen horses and it is generally believed that approximately seven will start. In that case the gross value will be $6,420, of which $4,560 will go to the winner.

Flying Lil Is Favorite.

Flying Lil, winner of the Kentucky Oaks, is expected to go to the post as the favorite at about 3 to 1 odds. Lady Maryland, challenger from the east, will also get considerable backing. She has drawn top weight of 120 pounds. Alms, winner of the Pimlico Oaks, and Manie O'Hara, which captured three stakes at Lincoln Fields, will be among the contenders.

The Woolford farm's Technician will make his first start since the Kentucky Derby in one of the supporting events, the Joliet purse, an allowance event for 3 year olds, which will be run in two divisions as the fourth and sixth races. This will be Technician's tuneup for the $10,000 Stars and Stripes handicap, which will head the Fourth of July program.

Expect Fast Track.

Among Technician's rivals in the first division of the Joliet will be the Calumet farm's Easy Mon, which showed considerable class at Lincoln Fields. Other formidable contenders will be Calexico, Carla, and Lightspur.

If no rain falls before post time the track will be very fast, holding out the prospect of exceptional time in both the Matron at a mile and the Joliet at six furlongs.

Arlington is preparing for a crowd of 20,000 to 25,000. The North Western railroad will run special race trains at frequent intervals between 12:30 and 1:25 p. m., the last one being scheduled to reach the track fifteen minutes before post time for the first race.

Taxes Scores by Nose.

The Calumet farm's Taxes warmed up for his Stars and Stripes engagement by winning the Glen Gowrie purse, a gallop of a mile which headed yesterday's card. He beat American Byrd, a 13 to 1 shot, by a nose, after the two had raced head and head for the last furlong. The 6 to 5 favorite, Joseph E. Widener's Bucking, finished third.

Taxes took the lead from the start with Bucking and Melodist close beside him as they came down the chute. In the back stretch, Warren Wright's colorbearer moved into a lead of a length and a half. American Byrd, running on the inside, moved up fast on the turn and challenged Taxes soon after the stretch run began.

War Beauty Wins.

Jockey Mike Caffarella tried to drive American Byrd through along the rail but found little racing room. In the last sixteenth American Byrd began wearing down the leader but Taxes hung on with determination to win by a nose. A claim of foul was lodged but the stewards rejected it.

Taxes returned $6.20, $4.20, and $2.60 in the mutuels. His time for the mile was 1.37.

War Beauty, a chestnut filly owned by J. O. Keene of Lexington, Ky., began pointing for her engagement in the Lassie stakes by winning the second race on yesterday's program. Her rivals included three other candidates for the rich filly event which will gross $35,000.

In the Wake of the News

BY ARCH WARD.

HERMAN BERG, brother of the illustrious Patty, recently won the Minnesota high school golf championship. . . . The Yankees' thirteen home runs in a double-header, which established a major league record, were exactly half the total the White Sox had made in their first fifty-eight games. . . . Johnny Frederick smashed out six home runs as a pinch hitter for the Dodgers in 1932. . . . Owners of American association clubs are complaining bitterly that they cannot borrow or buy players of AA caliber from major league magnates. . . . The stock answer is, "We are short of players ourselves." . . . Supporters of the Northwestern football team who feel the Wildcats are destined for the Western conference championship can get an argument even at this early date in Minneapolis; there the Gophers are idols of the town. . . . Newspaper men are predicting Coach Bernie Bierman again will have what it takes. . . . Jimmy Dykes expects the White Sox to place Ted Lyons, Mike Kreevich, and possibly Luke Appling on the American league All-Star team in the game in Yankee stadium July 11. . . . South side fans will resent it deeply if Lyons is ignored. . . . Three special trains will take Pittsburgh boosters of Billy Conn to New York for his battle with Mello Bettina in Madison Square Garden July 13. . . . If Los Angeles ever lands a berth in the National Football league the club will be financed by Crooner Bing Crosby. . . . Bing is said to be as interested in pro football as he is in horse racing, which is plenty. . . .

The current major league season is expected to break all records for number of double-headers. . . . The Cincinnati chamber of commerce already is worrying about the possibility of the Reds being in the world series. . . . The American Federation of Labor convention is scheduled in Cincinnati for early October, and the boys are afraid to invite other conventions for the same period because of the heavy demand for hotel rooms. . . . Jigger Statz, 42 years old, has been up among the leading Pacific Coast league batters all season. . . . Receipts from the recent national open golf tournament in Philadelphia were approximately $25,000. . . . Harry Danning of the Giants wears the largest catcher's mitt in the major leagues. . . .

When Things Go Wrong.

When things go wrong, don't be the kind
Who blames the other fellow—
If plans fall through or hopes go flat,
Be strong—but don't be yellow.

Acknowledge when the fault is yours,
Smile and start once more—
Stand up to facts and face them, and Stop acting like a bore.

Stop whining that the breaks don't seem
To ever come your way—
Tighten your belt, stick out your chest
And get into the fray.

Remember that the man who wins
Takes things with a willing heart—
He wins because he's not afraid
To make another start.

John Behr, director of athletics at the Illinois Athletic club and head coach of Chicago Golden Gloves teams, has been reëlected head coach of the United States Olympic boxing team which will compete in Helsingfors, Finland, July 30 to Aug. 4, 1940. Behr was elected in a mail vote of the United States Olympic Boxing committee conducted by Roy E. Davis, chairman. Davis also heads the National A. A. U. Boxing committee.

Behr was in charge of the squad which competed in Berlin in 1936. Associated with Golden Gloves boxing since their inception in Chicago in 1928, Behr has been head coach since 1932. In twelve intercity matches with New York, Chicago has won seven, lost three, and been tied twice. Since the first Golden Gloves international matches in 1931 Chicago has won seven and lost one, losing to the European champions May 12 in the Stadium, 5 bouts to 3.

The final American Olympic boxing trials will be held the second week in June. Detroit and Boston have applied for the sanction to hold the bouts.

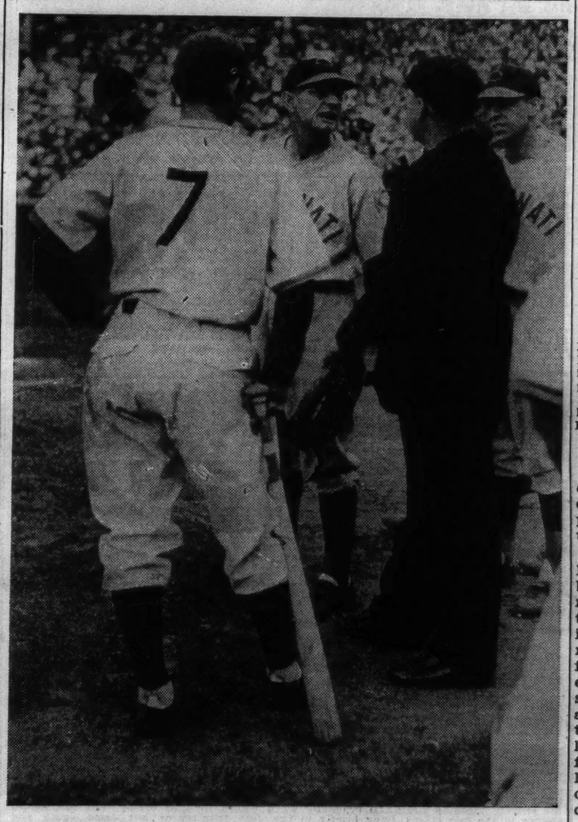
As Usual, the Umpire Won



Ball players never learn that you can't win an argument with an umpire. Johnny Vander Meer, Cincinnati Reds' pitcher, and the league leaders' manager, Bill McKechnie, protest without success to Umpire Ziggy Sears when he gave Billy Herman of the Cubs a base on balls in the second inning. Sears expelled the young pitcher, perhaps sparing McKechnie that duty. Augie Galan (No. 7), who later walked, stands by waiting for the haranguing to end. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Two Runs in First Inning Give Tigers Margin Over Sox

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., June 30.—Buck Newsom, a sort of junior Dizzy Dean, who always has boasted of his greatness, bottled up the White Sox today and prevented their possible reëntry into fourth place. Big Buck, whose luck was far more important than his pitching skill, shaded Johnny Rigney in a mound duel which the Tigers captured by the modest margin of 3 to 1, a count that wedged the Chicagoans just a bit tighter in the second division.

Newsom, who is one of baseball's best strutters while journeying to and from the mound, crimped the Dykes ensemble with eight official hits but there were numerous times when he had reason to tremble over the skill of his supporting cast. None of the members thereof faltered. They even rose to various heights in stabbing line drives or slapping down likely hits, most of these heroics occurring with men on bases and thus foiling the admirable intentions of the visitors to score a few runs for themselves.

John Outpitches Newsom.

Rigney in his eleventh start lingered long enough to complete his second game and actually was superior to the blustery Newsom. Luck made the difference. As it turned out Rigney's chance for his fourth victory was eliminated as early as the first inning in which he allowed two hits. These hits grew into two runs despite the excellent fashion in which the River Forest youth finished the inning. The damage was done by a bad throw from the hand of Catcher Mike Tresh and the messing up of an easy grounder by the usually competent Luke Appling. And the Tigers' third run could have been avoided if Rigney hadn't tried to extend himself as a fielder.

Appling, who figured in a futile second inning with a single and with a pass in the third when the Sox counted their lone run, was absent when the finish was reached. In his fifth inning appearance as a batter he was called out on strikes by Umpire Eddie Rommel. He argued too long and was chased, the act making it necessary to move Eric McNair from third to short and restore Marvin Owen to his old third base spot. Eddie Smith, a noted bench jockey, also was routed for unkind remarks. But Rommel was nice enough not to erase Manager Dykes, his old Athletic pal, who stepped up to the plate and hollered lustily about umpires who get confused about strikes and balls.

That Terrible First.

The part of the Tigers' first inning for which Rigney was responsible was made up of singles to right by

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Charley Root and the Cubs yesterday defeated the league leading Cincinnati Reds, 5 to 1, in a game which probably will be recorded as one of the most unusual in history.

The fact that Root finally had some luck was unusual enough in itself, but the features of the match which made it an all-time novelty came from the fact that the Cubs made two runs in the second inning and left three runners on base without rapping a fair ball of any classification in the entire inning; then in the eighth they scored their third and fourth runs on a strikeout which should have retired the side. Later Gabby Hartnett knocked his second and his team's fourth hit, to drive in Stan Hack, who had fanned, with the fifth run, the only run literally sent home through contact of bat with ball.

Cubs Creeping Up.

The topsy turvy triumph lopped another game off the lead of the Reds over the Cubs, reducing the margin to five games. At noon on June 18 the margin was ten and a half games and the Cubs were in the throes of a four game losing streak. Since that time the Cubs have won ten out of twelve, throwing out a tie. The Cubs now are a game behind the second place Giants and a half game behind the third place Cardinals.

Root, the noble old gent who always is around for heroics when the going gets tough, yielded twice as many hits as the Cubs made. But of the eight he gave up, only one hurt, a homer by Ernie Lombardi, which was the first run of the game. Going on from the hit tabulation, contrast Ol' Chas' record with that of the two Red pitchers, Johnny Vander Meer and Whitey Moore.

Reds' Pitchers Walk Ten.

Root walked no one and hit no one. Vander Meer walked five in one and two-thirds innings before he was chased for denouncing Umpire Ziggy Sears. Moore walked five and hit two batsmen. True, the Red pair struck out eight to three by Root. But since the Cubs' last three runs bloomed from the last strikeout of the day, it is just as well not to mention the numerical strikeout advantage over Root.

While winning none, Root previously had been charged with two tough losses. He was the losing pitcher in a fourteen inning night game in Brooklyn, June 1, and a week ago he held the Phillies to five hits, but the Cubs were shut out, 1 to 0, on a diet of two hits. Until the Cubs' final inning yesterday it appeared Charley was to be supported by two wasted hits in successive games, but in view of what had happened in the second inning the oldster went about his work in a much more cheerful state of mind.

Cubs Threaten in First.

The Cubs developed the first threat of the game in the first inning. It wasn't such a devastating threat, however, though they got three men on bases. None of the three got past second. Hack opened the home offensive with a single to center, but was doubled trying to reach second on Herman's strikeout. Galan walked and stopped at second on Hartnett's single to left. Then Vander Meer fanned Gleeson.

The Reds scored the first run of the game in the second inning and for a few minutes seemed in a fair way to reap a cluster. With one out Lombardi smacked his No. 12 homer, a drive which barely cleared the wall in deep left center. Gamble followed

MOTOR YACHTS TO RACE TODAY TO ST. JOSEPH

Six Boats Are Entered in Cross Lake Test.

Six motor yachts will start from the Oak street gap, north of Navy pier, at 10 o'clock this morning on the first cross lake power boat race held on Lake Michigan in many years. The cruisers will race approximately 62 miles to St. Joseph, Mich.

Eugene Mathis of the Southern Shore Yacht club will defend the trophy with his 38 foot cruiser Demon III. Also competing are Raymond Geist's Madray II., Robert Jelinek's Betsy, Fred G. Maurer's Dean, William Erickson's Eric V., and E. G. Newton's Shebeen. Winner is decided on a basis of consistency in navigational skill, not speed. The 125 foot Coast Guard patrol boat Antietam will come here from Milwaukee to accompany the craft to St. Joseph.

Another fleet of power yachts will start from the Oak street gap shortly after the cruisers. Among these yachts, cruising to St. Joseph on the same course, are the following:

Pearce-Aro, John M. Pearce; Patrician, Dr. L. A. Kerner; Jay Kay, John Knell; Margaret Ann II., Dr. W. R. Cruikshank; Triton, Dr. E. V. J. Young; Maebelle, Ben Lautenslager Jr.; Einelle, Paul Reitz; Ceru, Russel Paulson.

Both racing and cruising yachts will lay over at the St. Joseph and Edgewater Yacht clubs tonight and cruise together to Lake Macatawa, near Holland, Mich., tomorrow morning. From there the cruisers will go up the Michigan shoreline to Spring Lake, then White Lake, Pentwater, and Manistee. From Manistee, where the fleet will be July 9, they will cruise back across Lake Michigan to Sturgeon Bay and Marinette, Wis.

Patty Berg Wins; Meets Marion Miley

Minneapolis, Minn., June 30.—(AP)—Patty Berg of Minneapolis today served notice that any young lady aspiring to her women's trans-Mississippi golf championship is going to have to shoot better than par figures to take it away from her. Miss Berg, women's national champion, has played 53 holes thus far in three strokes over par, her latest conquest being a 6 and 5 decision over Mrs. P. L. Pepper, Dodson, Mo., in one of today's quarter-finals matches.

Other matches today provided plenty of tough competition, with Marion Miley of Lexington, Ky., 1935 and 1936 champion, defeating a former holder of the title, Phyllis Buchanan of Denver, 3 and 2, and thereby qualifying as Miss Berg's semi-finals opponent over the 18 hole route tomorrow.

Helen Hofman Bertagnole of Salt Lake City and Beatrice Barrett of Minneapolis both won by scores of 2 and 1 over Mrs. Hayes Dansingburg of St. Paul and Mrs. Russell Mann of Milwaukee, respectively, and meet in the other semi-final.

MISS INGRAM'S 85 LOW GROSS AT WESTMORELAND

In class B, low gross went to Mrs. F. J. Hoffman of Knollwood with 103. Low net honors went to Mrs. D. MacReynolds of Ridgemoor with 81; second to Mrs. E. L. Potter of Exmoor with 83, and third to Mrs. T. E. Sullivan of Evanston, 86.

Mrs. Jack Knight of Ridgemoor won low gross in class C with 113. Mrs. F. J. Halstead of Exmoor, was low net with 82; Mrs. O. E. Burleen of Exmoor, second with 85, and Mrs. H. L. Bensen of Ridgemoor, third with 88.

Armstrong-Ambers Fight Postponed Until Aug. 22

New York, June 30.—[Special.]—At the request of Henry Armstrong, welterweight and lightweight boxing champion, his bout with Lou Ambers of Herkimer, N. Y., former lightweight champion, has been postponed to Aug. 22. It was originally scheduled for Aug. 9 in the Yankee stadium, but Armstrong asked for more time so his injured left hand might become normal.

AMERICAN BYRD, never a great distance back, and well placed for a half mile, secured room on the inside when moving up on the turn, was in close quarters briefly just before reaching the final eighth and, fighting it out desperately to the end, failed to have enough left to overtake TAXES at the finish. BUCKING, who had been taken back and was hard put to get a hand run, was eased back apparently to escape being carried wide by TAXES on the stretch turn, did not rally when straightened up in the short stretch but held on well to the end.

Time, :23 2-5, :47, 1:13. Two dollar mutuels paid: He Said, $5.40 straight, $4.00 place, $2.80 show; Bucket Head, $13.00 place, $6.00 show; Eye Knocker, $2.80 show. Winner trained by A. G. Tarn. Went to post at 4:46½. At post 4 minutes. Start good, for all but Epidor, from Bahr gate. Won driving, place same.

HE SAID, away fast and hustled along in the early pacemaking, was on the inside after the three-sixteenths, came out slightly at the stretch call, held on well and was lucky to win. BUCKET HEAD, probably best, was rated along under a light hold to the stretch, raced to HE SAID gradually when placed to light urging, was inclined to move in the late stages, hung briefly in the last fifty yards but came again and might have got up in another stride. EYE KNOCKER finished well in good effort.

Time, :24 4-5, :49, 1:14 4-5, 1:42, 2:01 3-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Nessus, $5.00 straight, $3.20 place $2.20 show; Santan, $4.20 place, $2.60 show; Holl image, $2.20 show. Winner trained by G. R. Yeargin. Went to post at 5:16½. At post half minute. Start good, from Bahr gate. Won easily, place driving.

NESSUS, reserved off the early pace under strong restraint, began to move up without need of strong urging when approaching the final half mile, easily disposed of SANTAN, came away in the stretch and had something in reserve. SANTAN, occasionally shaken up in the early stages, took command after five-eighths, could not withstand the winner but held on fairly well. HOLL IMAGE, allowed to retire far out of it made up something on the second turn where he raced wide, could not improve his position thereafter but held on well.

EIGHTH RACE—One mile and an eighth. Purse $800. Net value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25.

Time, :25 :50, 1:15 3-5, 1:43 2-5, 1:57 1-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Tristrap, $4.60 straight, $2.80 place, $2.20 show; Hereward $3.40 place, $2.60 show; Hurry Hawk, $3.20 show. Winner trained by J. E. Copenhaver. Went to post at 5:44½. At post 2 minutes. Start good, from Bahr gate. Won easily, place driving.

TRISTRAP made the early pace under a stout hold, drew away gradually under mild urging the last five-sixteenths and probably had little left. HEREWARD was in hand to the last three-eighths, continued well under driving and stood off HURRY HAWK'S bid. Latter, also steadied along in the early stages, did not respond to punishment after reaching the second turn but closed resolutely.

BERL, D'ANTONI MEET TODAY IN COLLEGE FINAL

Merritt and Hall Beaten in Semi-Finals.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Des Moines, Ia., June 30.—Warren Berl of Stanford university and Vincent D'Antoni of Tulane tomorrow will fight 36 holes for the 42nd national intercollegiate golf championship over the Wakonda Country club course.

Berl, the Stanford sophomore who won't be 19 until August, this afternoon reached his first big time final by defeating Ren Merritt, Yale's captain, 5 and 4, in one of the two 36 hole semi-final matches.

One hour after the tall San Franciscan had accomplished a victory in a match in which he was never worse than even at any of the 32 holes he played, a gallery of nearly 1,500 traipsed up the last fairway in pursuit of D'Antoni and his opponent, Billy Hall of Iowa State.

Comes from Behind.

That gallery had in the last four holes watched the handsome D'Antoni give one of the best demonstrations under pressure in the history of the tournament. A minute later they saw him hole a seven foot putt for a 1 up victory over Hall.

Hall had been the toughest foe in the show. Before today's match, he had taken three straight eighteen hole matches and in yesterday's quarter-final went 20 holes to put Skip Alexander out of the running. Today he made the D'Antoni cause seem a lost one. He was five up on Vince after the first seven holes. At four other points in the match, the 6th, 9th, 15th, and 19th, he enjoyed a four up advantage over the New Orleans boy.

Hall's Putter Cools Off.

Finally D'Antoni was only two down going to the 27th. There the putter which had blazed for Hall for five and a half days cooled off, and he missed a three footer. The chill was still on at the 28th, and the match was even, but Billy holed a grand 30 footer at the 29th. Then the putter played him false again at the 31st, and once more he was even. The chunky Iowan fought back with a fine iron to within a yard of the pin at the 173 yard all carry 32d and holed out for a deuce which sent him one up again.

It seemed that D'Antoni's hopes were definitly doomed. Even a birdie on the long thirty-third could bring no better than a half. Came the thirty-fourth, and the talkative Tulane boy began to play three holes of golf as vivid as his vocabulary. A 15 foot putt birdied the thirty-fourth, and it was even. A 25 footer fell on the 130 yard thirty-fifth and Vince was one up. He was just off the green at the 300 yard thirty-sixth hole, and his chip was seven feet short, but he stepped up and tapped it into the hole as though it were only a foot away.

Takes Only 28 Putts.

D'Antoni, who hasn't been close to par in his matches since he tied for the qualifying lead with a par 72 on Monday, was back in 34, two under par, for a 73 on his amazing home stretch. In the last eighteen holes he require only 28 putts.

The eccentricities of the D'Antoni game recall the intercollegiate meet of two years ago, when Vince was five up after fifteen holes of his semi-final match against Freddie Haas, the ultimate champion, but lost, 5 and 4.

Berl, who was runner-up for the qualifying medal on Tuesday, finished the opening eighteen with best medal card of the morning, a 75, three over par. This left him eight over for the 123 holes he has played. Merritt finished with a 78.

Berl, with a calm far beyond his years, whether he has just holed a 30 foot putt or failed to escape a bunker, is tonight still the most consistent golfer in the field. He has played 137 holes in this tournament in twelve strokes over a par. Had he played out the other seven holes necessary for eight full rounds, he would have a hypothetical round average of 73¼ strokes.

Berl Goes 5 Up.

Berl found himself 4 up in the afternoon, when Merritt sliced a drive and then went far over the pin with his third shot to the 19th. They halved the next two, and Warren went 5 up on the 22d, where Ren was short. The Yale boy got one back on the next hole when Berl put his second shot in a tray and stayed there with his recovery try, settling for a seven. Ren was only 3 down at the 24th, an overshot second costing Berl the hole. Warren then chipped to within a foot of the 26th flag for a bird, and th 27th was halved. Both were short of the 28th and were trapped at the 30th, but Berl remained 4 up until the 31st, where Merritt's second found the rough. They halved the 32d, ending the match.

MISS WILLIAMS WINS, 5 AND 3, IN STATE GOLF FINAL

Freeport, Ill., June 30.—[Special.]—Ellamae Williams of the Medinah Country club, Chicago, defeated Virginia Lindblad of Joliet, 5 and 3, today at the Freeport Country club to win the Illinois women's golf championship.

Miss Williams, 23 years old, a daughter of Eddie Williams, Bryn Mawr [Chicago] professional, shot one over par golf on the final fifteen holes after carding a morning round of 79. The match ended on the 33d green.

The bid of the lithe Miss Williams, who lost to Eleanor Dudley of Chicago in the 1938 final and to Hilda Livengood in the 1935 title match, was not to be denied this year as she posted six rounds of 80 or better over the rolling Freeport course.

Even After Nine Holes.

Ellamae was out in 39 this afternoon, one over par for the first nine, with three birdies aiding in building a 4-up advantage at 27 holes, and had par figures for the last six holes, ending the match with a birdie four on the fifteenth hole.

The first nine holes this morning ended all even as Ellamae birdied No. 7 and 8 to get a 41 after Miss Lindblad had won the first and second holes with pars. Ellamae dropped a 30 foot putt for a birdie on the tenth to take a 1 up advantage, but Miss Lindblad evened the match with a birdie three on the thirteenth. From then on, however, she never was better than one down.

Miss Williams reached the short fourteenth green with her drive and two putted for a par three and a 1 up advantage, then dropped an 18 foot putt for a birdie 3 on the sixteenth to go 2 up. Ellamae was one over par on the 17th but Virginia took a 5 and the Chicagoan led, 3 up. The eighteenth was halved.

Miss Lindblad Cuts Lead.

Miss Lindblad took the first two holes of the afternoon nine to cut Miss Williams' lead to 1 up. Ellamae won the twenty-first, but Virginia took the twenty-second and the twenty-third was halved. Birdies on the twenty-fourth, twenty-fifth, and twenty-seventh then ran Ellamae into a 4 up lead.

The twenty-eighth was halved and Virginia won the twenty-ninth to prolong the match. They halved the thirtieth and also the next, but Miss Williams took the thirty-second and sank a 7 foot putt on the thirty-third to conclude the match and take over the title held last year by Miss Dudley.

Virginia Nilles, Park Ridge, eliminated Virginia Vilas Norton, Golf, Ill., 2 up, this morning to win championship flight consolation honors.

Reds Present Cubs with a 5 to 1 Victory with a single to right and stopped at third on Berger's double to left. Myers tapped to Bartell, playing in, and Gamble was out at the plate on Dick's perfect throw to Hartnett.

Vander Meer Walks Right Out.

There are instances of teams making runs without a hit, but the Cubs' feat of making two runs and letting three runners die on bases in the second inning really was one for the book. Reynolds opened the inning by becoming Vander Meer's third strikeout victim. G. Russell and Bartell walked, then Root fanned. Hack walked, loading the bases, and Herman walked, after a three and two count, forcing G. Russell across with the tieing run.

Vander Meer beat Russell to the plate to register a lusty squawk to Umpire Sears. Ziggy has been hollered at before and knows how to holler back. So there they were, two lefties, Johnny and Ziggy, trying to out holler each other. When the "let got to the insulting stage, the umpire told the pitcher to go let a shower trickle on his heated brow. Moore replaced Vander Meer and walked Galan on five pitches, forcing Bartell across the plate. Gabby Hartnett was so sure Santa Claus was going to stick around a while longer that he had his bat on his shoulder when he was called out on strikes.

Reynolds Fails Again.

The next excitement was when the Cubs staged another hitless rally in the fifth. This one failed of production because of the lack of two more bases on balls from Moore. Galan was hit with a pitched ball and stole second. Hartnett walked and Gleeson sacrificed, putting Galan on third and Hartnett on second, with one out. Reynolds then whiffed for the second time and G. Russell popped to Frey.

From the second to the seventh the Reds made only two hits off Root, an infield single by Goodman in the third and a single to center by McCormick with two out in the sixth. Gamble opened the seventh with his second single and the Reds' sixth hit.

Root pitched out of a hot threat in the eighth. With one down Frey beat out a hit to Herman. Goodman bounced to Herman and Capt. Bill tried for one of his famous tag double plays. Frey, however, anticipated him and backed up toward first. Herman threw to G. Russell, hoping for a reverse double play, but G. Russell threw the ball into left field, Frey dashing to third. McCormick then popped to Herman in short center.

The Cubs Put On a Rally.

The Cubs in the eighth, for the second time in the game, got runners on third and second and this time set the scene for the second scoring miracle of the match. With one down G. Russell was safe on Myers' low throw. Bartell doubled to right, G. Russell stopping at third. The runners held on while Root supplied the second out with a bouncer to Werber. Hack struck out, but the ball went through Lombardi to the screen, G. Russell and Bartell scoring and Hack reaching second.

Lombardi frantically protested that the ball was a foul tip. He was so emphatic that he joined his opening battery mate in the dungeon, at the request of Sears. When play was resumed with Bill Hershberger catching Herman was hit by a pitched ball and Galan walked, loading the bases. Hartnett knocked his second single and the Cubs' fourth and last hit, a drive off Frey's glove. Hack scored, but when Herman tried to follow him home he was out at the plate.

At Fort Wayne, Ind.—Floyd Gibbons stopped Art Franklin [11]; George Barnett knocked out Bud Raymond [3]; Tommy Mako beat Nathan Anderson [6].
At Long Branch, N. J.—Mike Firkin beat Jackie [Kid] Berg [10].

Passeau Faces Reds; Walters May Be His Foe

Claude Passeau is scheduled to pitch for the Cubs this afternoon in the second match of the four game series with the Cincinnati Reds. Manager Bill McKechnie intimated he might use Bucky Walters, although he has a sore finger.

Harry Craft, regular Red center fielder, who has been out with injuries, expects to be able to play before the series ends.

Tomorrow's double-header will be the second of the year in Wrigley field. It is expected the Cubs and Reds will top the Cubs and Dodgers, who drew 37,192 on June 18. Diz Dean, distinguished turnstile bait, probably will pitch one of the games.

The Cubs have allowed the Reds one run, yesterday's homer by Ernie Lombardi, in their last three games with the league leaders. Remember those shutouts, 6 to 0 and 2 to 0, on Memorial day?

Yankees Win, 10 to 2, from Washington

Washington, D. C., June 30.—(AP)—Joe DiMaggio's terrific hitting and the four hit pitching of Oral Hildebrand gave the New York Yankees a 10 to 2 victory over the Washington Senators today in a game which was interrupted for nearly an hour by rain and finally was called because of rain and darkness after the seventh inning. Di Maggio batted in four runs with two doubles and a single in four times at bat. His first two bagger scored Frank Crosetti in the first. In the five run third inning he singled after Red Rolfe and Tommy Henrich had walked, scoring Rolfe. In the fourth Di Maggio doubled, scoring Rolfe and Henrich, but was out trying to stretch his hit to a triple.

Tigers Score 2 in First to Beat Sox, 3-1

McCosky and Fox. In anticipation of a bunt McCosky took a big lead off second and Averill missed the pitch. McCosky apparently was a dead bird but Tresh threw the ball into center field and by the time it was brought back McCosky had scored and Fox had gone to second. Averill sent an ordinary grounder straight at Appling but Luke let the ball slide through his hands, Fox scoring. Rigney set down the next three batters.

Newsom's luck began to operate in the second inning. Walker doubled, Appling singled and with one out Tresh walked to fill the bases. Nothing happened because Rigney fanned and Hayes' liner was flagged by Croucher. The third was a little better for the Sox but not as good as it should have been. Radcliff doubled with two out and scored on Walker's single. Walker stole second and after Appling had walked there was a passed ball which entitled the two runners to an extra base. The inning ended without further profit when McNair flied deep to McCosky.

Rigney Misses One.

The home third, which fetched the Tigers another cut rate run, opened with a single to left by McCosky. Fox popped to Hayes and Averill fouled to McNair. Higgins was awarded a single on a ball which Hayes threw to second too late to force McCosky. Greenberg drew free passage, which loaded the bases. Rigney would have escaped from this jam if he hadn't forgotten that there were infielders present to give him assistance. Kress hit a grounder which Appling could have handled easily, but Rigney made a lunge for the ball and it caromed off his glove tip for a single, McCosky scoring. Croucher fouled to Tresh for the third out.

Newsom continued to enjoy the favors of Lady Luck in the fourth. He walked Rigney and Hayes with one out. Kuhel ripped up a wicked grounder which Greenberg had to stop in self-defense. He picked it up in time to beat Kuhel to the bag. Then Kreevich slashed an equally ferocious bounder at Higgins, who was handcuffed for a moment, but recovered in time to end the inning.

Too Much Fox.

The Sox unloaded a couple more drives in the sixth, but couldn't get a dividend. With Tresh on second as the result of a single and an out, Hayes sailed a low liner into right. Fox speared it. Then Kuhel sent a long fly to right and Fox backed up against the screen to halt its flight.

The Sox's only hit in the last three innings was Radcliff's double to center with one out in the seventh.

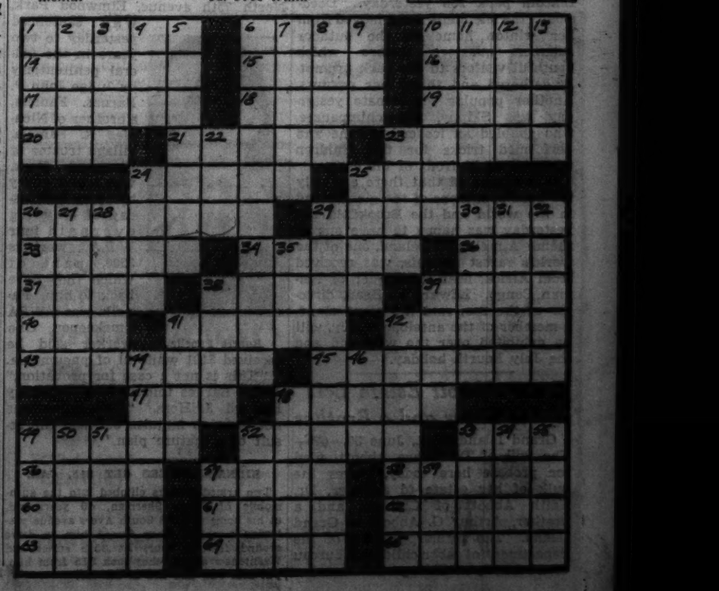
YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED



SCIENTIST POINTS WAY TO A GREAT NEW DISCOVERY

Suggests Path for Work of Physicists.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Dr. Werner Heisenberg of the University of Leipzig, one of the leading theoretical physicists of the world, outlined the direction of a new discovery in fundamental law at the University of Chicago's cosmic ray symposium which ended yesterday.

The cosmic ray problem is closely related to the study of the nucleus of the atom, which is proceeding in many laboratories through methods of artificial radiation. Dr. Heisenberg indicated to the one hundred physicists present, representing the top flight of cosmic ray investigation, that forces acting between the atomic nuclei may offer the clew to the production of mesotrons. The mesotron is the recently discovered hard and penetrating component of cosmic ray showers which bombard us in all directions.

Magnitude of Forces.

The German physicist pointed out the possibility of making cosmic ray measurements which will determine the magnitude of the forces acting between nuclei. This is for the experimental physicists to work out. It leads in the direction of a more practical knowledge and use of atomic power, a major goal of science which now appears to be coming nearer. Man-made atom smashers, or cyclotrons, now turn out neutron bullets, just as the cosmic ray collisions produce elementary particles, such as neutrons and positrons. The search becomes more definite and narrowed. A new element, actino-uranium, has been produced which it is hoped may set up an endless chain of explosive power.

Dr. Heisenberg in 1927 won the Nobel prize for his formulation of the principle of indeterminacy, in which he demonstrated that exact knowledge of both the position and velocity of an electron was beyond determination. The scientist himself enters the picture and changes the result. Upon this has been built a new philosophy of events below the statistical world, touching biology and even mental processes.

Produced 15 Miles Above Earth.

Most mesotrons are produced at a height about 15 miles above the surface of the earth, according to Morris Schein and Volney Wilson, research associates at the University of Chicago. Dr. B. Rossi of the University of Manchester estimated the average life of the mesotron at three one millionths of a second.

Dr. P. Auger of the Faculté des Sciences, Paris, described the intensity of cosmic rays on the Jungfrau and Mt. Blanc. He found showers of high energy particles. They appeared to originate in the high atmosphere, with a single particle striking an atom of air and producing secondary energies which multiply until at the height of mountain tops there are as many as a million particles from the original collision. He estimates the energy of the primary ray producing this shower as high as a million billion electron volts.

MARRIAGES RISE 20% IN 2D YEAR OF HYGIENIC LAW

The second year of the Saltiel hygienic marriage law in Illinois closed yesterday with Cook county's marriage license bureau reporting an increase of more than 20 per cent in number of licenses issued over the total for the first year the law was in effect.

County Clerk Michael J. Flynn announced the 1938-'39 figure as 32,742. This is an increase of 5,934 over the 1937-'38 total of 26,808 couples who took out licenses after passing venereal disease tests as the law requires.

The marriage license total was 51,000 in the year preceding enactment of the Saltiel law and its companion measure requiring a three day wait between the time of application and issuance of the license. Yesterday's figures, said Flynn, indicate the license business is gradually returning to its former level. The 51,000 was an all-time record caused by a June rush of more than 9,000 couples to beat the deadline.

June, as usual, brought the most business to the marriage bureau. There were 4,657 licenses issued in the month ended yesterday.

WIFE, DESERTED ON HONEYMOON, WINS DIVORCE

Mrs. Rae Edelson, 25 years old, charged in Circuit court yesterday that her husband, Arthur, had paid court to a "Madame X." on their wedding night, June 12, 1938. His attentions to Madame X. continued, Mrs. Edelson said, for some time thereafter.

Mrs. Rae Edelson.

"Our honeymoon lasted two weeks and I never saw him except at mealtimes," Mrs. Edelson said. Questioned by her attorney, Harry X. Cole, Mrs. Edelson said her husband struck her when she asked him to give her more of his time.

Judge Philip J. Finnegan gave her a divorce from Edelson, an executive in an automobile supply concern at 707 East 63d street. Edelson's attorney, Norman Becker, said there had been an out of court property settlement. Mrs. Edelson lives at 3407 Sunnyside avenue.

RENEW MUTUAL'S PERMIT TO SEND MUSIC TO CANADA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 30.—The Federal Communications commission today granted the application of the Mutual Broadcasting System, Inc., of Chicago, for renewal of its permit to transmit programs to Canada.

The commission ruled that a grant of the application would serve public interest, convenience, and necessity. It said that the record of proceedings did not disclose sufficient facts to justify the claims of station WJBK, Detroit, that it had been injured by unfair practices through the interchange of American and Canadian programs.

"The programs proposed to be transmitted are of the sustaining and commercial type usually and regularly broadcast within the United States and are of entertaining and cultural value to listeners within the United States," the commission said in its findings.

FOREIGN COPPER TRADE IS HEAVY ON 'WAR BUYING'

Export Price Rises ¼ Cent a Pound.

The heaviest single day's foreign purchases of copper in the memory of veteran copper men were reported yesterday as European nations built up their supplies of war staples.

Sales reported by the copper cartel totaled 23,580 tons. Most of the purchases were negotiated through New York, but the copper came from foreign mines, it was said. The principal buyer was believed to be a foreign government trying to accumulate a reserve of the metal, which is indispensable in war time.

Consumption Sets Record.

The armament race in Europe has raised copper consumption in recent years to record levels. Japan has been one of the heaviest buyers.

The price on yesterday's purchases was 10.30 cents a pound C.I.F. European base ports, or ¼ cent higher than Thursday's quotation. It was understood additional large tonnages will be ordered by foreign buyers soon.

The domestic spot copper market was quiet, producers continuing to quote 10 cents a pound. Phelps Dodge held to its 10½ cent price. Copper futures in New York advanced .04 to .07 cent a pound.

Tin Futures Firm.

Tin futures closed unchanged to .05 cent a pound higher. The July held at the seasonal top. Zinc and lead contracts were unchanged in quiet dealings.

Other commodity futures at New York displayed mixed trends. Rubber, No. 2 silk, and domestic sugar futures were irregular. World sugar futures declined in reflection of weakness at London. Cocoa, coffee, hides, and cottonseed oil also finished on the downside. No. 1 silk futures and wood tops advanced.

STOCKS SHOW LESS WEAKNESS; SELLING WANES

Leading Issues Gain Up to 1 Point.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 30.—The stock market displayed a relatively firm undertone today as "war scare" selling which brought about yesterday's sharp break subsided. Although a majority of issues closed lower on the day, many favorites were among the stocks to work into the plus column. They showed advances ranging from fractions to about a point.

Trading slackened as many operators took the sidelines in view of the coming national holiday and the approach of the week-end, which observers of the European scene fear will be marked by fireworks. Volume was 598,780 shares. The list opened steady, reacted, and then recovered in the final hour.

Await Fate of Danzig.

With the fate of Danzig the main topic of conversation in Wall street developments in Washington were largely obscured, it was asserted. However, the congressional monetary battle made for further confusion in financial quarters.

United States Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet and Tube, Chrysler, General Motors, U. S. Rubber, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Montgomery Ward, and Anaconda were among the industrial stocks which closed higher. They showed gains running to a point or so.

Douglas Aviation was one of the bright features of the day, spurting 2¼ points. Pivotal rail stocks contributed fractional advances. Power and light shares closed mixed in a narrow range.

General Electric in the heavy machinery section was active and higher. Westinghouse spurted 2 points. Du Pont was a firm spot in an otherwise lower chemical group.

The cheap Reo motor and Hupp motor stocks received considerable attention, but both closed unchanged. Loft took volume honors and gained ¼ point.

June Sales Least Since 1921.

Transactions on the New York Stock exchange during June fell to the lowest figure for any month since August, 1921, the exchange announced today. Turnover this month was 11,967,390 shares, against 12,935,210 in May and 24,368,040 in June, last year.

Transactions in bonds involved $126,656,525, face value, compared with $123,104,000 in May and $144,821,000 in June, last year.

During the first six months of the year, stock trading aggregated 108,771,505 shares, compared with 119,186,218 in the first half of 1938 and 230,388,657 in 1937. Transactions during 1938 were the smallest since 1924.

The lowest price at which a membership was sold during the last six months was $51,000, which equaled the twenty year low set in 1938. The high was $70,000. Viewing the lack of business which forced membership values down, brokers recalled that a "Big Board" seat commanded $625,000 in 1929.

Three New Stock Exchange Advisers

These three men yesterday were appointed "public advisers" of the Chicago Stock exchange. Left to right, they are Newton P. Frye, Herman Waldeck, and Sewell L. Avery.

CHICAGO STOCK EXCHANGE HAS 3 NEW ADVISERS

Avery, Waldeck, and Frye Appointed.

The appointment of three new "public advisers" to the board of governors of the Chicago Stock exchange was announced yesterday. The appointees are Sewell L. Avery, chairman of Montgomery Ward & Co.; Herman Waldeck, president of the Chicago Clearing House association, and Newton P. Frye, president of the Central Republic company, investment bankers.

Sheldon Clark, vice president of Consolidated Oil company, was reappointed one of the advisers. The appointments were announced by Arthur M. Betts, chairman of the exchange board, at a luncheon at the Chicago club given in honor of the retiring and new advisers.

Names of Retiring Advisers.

The retiring advisers are Britton I. Budd, president of the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois; Lawrence A. Downs, president of the Illinois Central railroad, and Robert C. Schaffner, president of A. G. Becker & Co., and E. Cloud Wampler, president of Stern, Wampler & Co.

The practice of naming advisers to the exchange board from outside the membership ranks was started two years ago. Chairman Betts said that the experiment had proved to be beneficial.

In accepting his appointment Avery expressed the belief "the worst is past" in the securities business.

Supports Exchange System.

"We have been passing through what may be called an educational period that has demonstrated the importance to us all of facilities we have established for the transfer of property," he said. "I believe it will become increasingly apparent that organizations such as the stock exchanges have an important function to perform. In this day of corporate organization they provide the means by which we transfer property; that is, participating ownership units in these organizations."

Edison to Pay Usual Dividend for Quarter

Directors of Commonwealth Edison company yesterday declared the usual quarterly dividend of 40 cents a share on its stock. The disbursement will be made Aug. 1 to stockholders of record July 14.

The Transamerica corporation reduced its semi-annual dividend today to 25 from 37½ cents. The 25 cents will be paid July 31 to stockholders of record July 14. Directors said unusual expenses in defending the corporation against charges of Securities and Exchange commission occasioned the dividend cut.

Two large chain grocery stores, Jewel Tea company and Kroger Grocery and Baking company, declared extra common dividends in addition to regular quarterly payments.

Special Dividends Declared.

Directors of Jewel Tea voted a special dividend from surplus of $1. Payments will be made Aug. 1 to stockholders of record July 18. The regular quarterly dividend of $1 also was voted, payable Sept. 20 to stockholders of record Sept. 6.

COURT UPHOLDS TAX ON PROPERTY IN RECEIVERSHIP

Important to County, Says Attorney.

The efforts of Cook county to collect delinquent real estate taxes on property in federal receivership were upheld yesterday by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals. The court sustained tax assessments made against the 168 Adams Building corporation, in which the Midland club was housed.

The taxes were assessed against the property for the years 1928 to 1938, inclusive. The delinquency amounts to $750,000.

Francis S. Clamitz, assistant state's attorney, said the decision was a great victory for the county. He said that the status of several other similar cases in which the county is trying to collect delinquent taxes on properties in federal receivership depended upon the outcome of the case.

History of Case.

The action grew out of a claim filed by the county collector against the building corporation while it was in federal receivership. Federal Judge Evan A. Evans, before whom the case was pending, upheld the assessment "as a matter of law," but said that in his opinion the assessment was too high.

He criticized the methods used by the assessors, but said it was not within the court's jurisdiction to revise them. The building corporation then appealed the case.

Court States View.

"We believe, as did the District court, that the court does not have the power to revise taxes 'legally due and owing' by reassessing the value of the property," the Appellate court ruled. "We cannot conceive nor do we see the necessity for a construction of the present bankruptcy act which would empower the court to scale down valid taxes purely for the purposes of relieving delinquent debtors."

The decision was made by Judges Otto Kerner, Will H. Sparks, and J. Earl Major.

Rogers Park Bank Opening Delayed Again

Rogers Park business men who had invested much time and money in preliminary promotion to celebrate the opening of a neighborhood bank were perturbed yesterday when plans for the July 1 opening were abandoned.

R. H. Brunkhorst.

There was no parade last night. There will be none today. The bunting hung from lamp posts is coming down; also the posters at elevated railroad stations.

When it became evident that there would not be time to obtain a charter for the Rogers Park State bank as planned, Rudolph H. Brunkhorst, who had arranged its organization and was named its president, was asked to explain.

"Delayed by Technicalities."

"Don't ask me any embarrassing questions," he replied. "The opening date has been delayed by legal technicalities. You may say that the bank will open July 22. Perhaps you'd better call me a few days before then."

Later, Brunkhorst, a former loop banker, explained the delay.

"The chairman of the board left for New York and left his check for his stock subscription with his attorney," said Brunkhorst. "The attorney is out playing golf and we can't locate him. The bank is all set to operate. All the other stockholders have subscribed for their shares. We have twenty-two employés."

Brunkhorst said the chairman of the board is Harry C. Watts, a La Salle street broker.

When asked what would be done about the big celebration, Brunkhorst referred his questioner to H. J. Blomgren, head of a committee of neighborhood business men who planned the parades and other activities.

Reveals Celebration Plan.

"I guess this is just one of those things," said Blomgren, who is manager of the Great Northern laundry at 7059 North Clark street. "It seems the Rogers Park-Clark Street Business Men's association is out $500. We spent that amount in planning events to celebrate the opening.

"We were going to have a pot of gold to hand to the holder of the lucky number among the first depositors. That was going to be $25, and we were going to have a little girl pick the number out of a pot. We spent a lot of money in advertising the bank's opening, and we hope it will open on July 22 so that this expense will not be a total loss.

"I guess we'll just have to let it slip. It's one of those things."

Capitalization of the bank, at Clark street and Lunt avenue, was previously announced as $250,000. The opening date was originally set for June 24. The state auditor's office issued a permit to organize the bank, but up to the close of business yesterday had not issued the necessary charter.

SHORT SALES IN WEEK ARE 3.8 PER CENT OF TOTAL TRANSACTIONS

Washington, D. C., June 30.—[Special.]—Short sales in round lot [100 shares] transactions on the New York Stock exchange in one week were 3.8 per cent of the total sales, the Securities and Exchange commission reported yesterday. The report was the first covering short sales for a full week which the SEC has ever published. Short sales by members of the exchange for their own account represented about 69 per cent of all the short sales in round lot transactions.

This would tend to bear out impressions that short selling may be found to be a largely professional activity, but SEC officials said that they would draw no conclusions from any limited sample.

The figures made public today were for the week ended June 10. They showed that total short sales in round lots were 119,400 shares. Short sales in round lots by members for their own account involved 82,970 shares. Total round-lot sales for the week were 3,091,929 shares.

Drive for Fund to Aid Chicago Will Continue

With their $625,000 goal in sight, leaders in the Greater Chicago campaign announced yesterday that their drive for funds will be continued until the entire amount is collected. The $625,000 is the sum set by the Chicago Association of Commerce as necessary to finance its program to boost the city. It was originally planned that the main fund drive would end June 30.

Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the campaign and executive vice-president of Sears, Roebuck & Co., announced at a meeting of volunteer workers at the Hotel Sherman that $504,000 had been collected, the executive committee is practically assured of another $50,000, and many of the workers have yet to report.

"Chicago Can't Be Stopped."

"Chicago cannot be stopped," Nelson declared. "We will not cease until our objective of $625,000 is reached. After the July 4 holiday it should be easy for us to get the remainder of the money. Business in Chicago by its contributions has shown us that it wants the association's plan."

Oscar G. Mayer, president of the association, said that the promotion drive in the last few days just started to hit its stride.

"The soil in Chicago for an enterprise of this type has been tilled as never before," Mayer said. "The many business clinics which we held demonstrated that Chicago feels the need for improving itself. Let us not miss the opportunity we now have."

Persistence Is Essential.

Joseph Magnus, one of the leaders in the drive for funds, told the workers that persistence is essential to getting prospective contributors to sign. He urged the workers to put "heat" on the home offices of companies that have branches or representatives in Chicago.

Among the objectives of the association's Greater Chicago program are:

1. Bring more industries to Chicago.
2. Establish an All-Chicago council to solve problems affecting the entire Chicago area.
3. Correct the tax muddle.
4. Wipe out the blighted areas.
5. Improve Chicago's highway system.
6. Bring the aviation industry to Chicago.

Of this total $119,362,000 is from the industrial group, $91,794,000 from the utilities, $18,928 from the railroads and $43,136,000 from financial firms and others. JONES LEAVES RFC, HEADS NEW LENDING AGENCY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 30.—At midnight tonight Jesse Jones will leave his old job as chairman of the Reconstruction Finance corporation to become chairman of the newly born Federal Loan agency. He is expected to be succeeded in the RFC job by Emil Schram, formerly of Illinois and now a director of the RFC.

President Roosevelt was asked at his press conference today if he has chosen a successor to Jones. Despite his negative reply, Schram is believed to have the job clinched.

Under the President's reorganization plan, aproved by congress, the new federal loan agency, which comes into existence at midnight, will consolidate and supervise lending activities of the RFC, Home Loan Owners corporation, and the Federal Home Owners Bank board.

Jones said he would endeavor to coördinate activities of the various spending agencies with a view to eliminating any overlapping, and that there should be no difficulty in making savings.

SEC GETS FOXY OVER SELLING OF FUR FARM FOXES

New York, June 30.—[Special.]—Fortified with a background of experience in oyster beds and frog ponds, the Securities and Exchange commission is now tussling with the economics of silver fox pups.

This excursion into the family life of Mama and Papa Silver Fox came to light today when the government's "stock market policeman" filed a complaint in federal District court against Louis Payne.

It developed that Payne is engaged in the business of finding customers who buy one or more silver fur foxes on a farm at Lynxville, Wis. The customer may take them away from the farm, bus usually he leaves them there and waits for them to have pups. Mama and Papa may have as many as seven pups a season. Their furs are sold and the customer receives the proceeds.

The SEC contends the contracts between Payne and the customers are securities within the meaning of the security act and should be registered. Payne says they aren't.

Tax Warant Holders Ask School Board Accounting

Four holders of 1929 tax anticipation warants yesterday sued the board of education in the Circuit court for an accounting and the payment of principal and interest on a pro rata basis. The action consisted of two suits. One was filed by Attorney William A. Rogan, coal man, 80 East Jackson boulevard. The other was filed by Attorney Joseph A. Ricker on behalf of Margaret Chinberg, Dorothy N. Alstrin and Robert O. Nelson, whose addresses were not disclosed.

Union Pacific's Profits Increase in Five Months

The Union Pacific railroad's net income for the first five months of 1939 was $1,562,251, compared with $643,271 a year earlier, the road announced yesterday. Net income of the Pennsylvania for the first five months was estimated at $1,467,448, compared with a deficit of $4,791,759 in 1938. Net income is income after bond interest and other fixed charges.

Business Books

"Capital Goods and the American Enterprise System," by the Machinery and Allied Products institute, 221 North La Salle street. [Single copies free.]

Recent trends in federal policy indicate a lack of understanding of how the American system of private enterprise functions, the Machinery and Allied Products institute says in this booklet. Moreover, there exists a misconception of the part played by saving and investment in capital goods.

To clarify this misunderstanding, the institute outlines the technological character of economic life and stresses the importance of replenishing and expanding capital goods used to produce, distribute, transport, and communicate.

The institute condemns the federal government for attempting to control economic activities and to divert national income from investment in capital goods. Progress, it asserts, is retarded unless there is a constant expansion of capital goods to produce new and different merchandise.

WORK IS BEGUN ON ADDITION TO BIG WARD PLANT

Preliminary work has been started on a four story and basement addition to the big Montgomery Ward mail order plant at Chicago avenue and the river. The estimated cost of the new unit is $1,500,000.

Included in the project is the moving of a three story brick factory building on the site of the new addition. This is being jacked up and will be moved to the north end of the company's property.

According to an official of the company the additional warehouse space provided by the new building will increase the floor capacity of the plant about 25 per cent. At present Montgomery Ward has 1,546,800 square feet.

The new building, designed by the company's architectural staff, will be of the same type as the original building. It will be of reinforced construction, and will front on the river at the north end of the present building.

DOUBLE LIABILITY FIGHT GOES TO SUPREME COURT

Washington, D. C., June 30.—[Special.]—Five groups of stockholders of the Central Republic Trust company of Chicago, liquidating shell for the old Central Republic Bank and Trust company, have appealed to the Supreme court of the United States to escape double stockholders' liability, it was disclosed today.

The Central Republic Bank and Trust company, once known as the "Dawes bank," closed in October, 1932, after it had arranged to borrow $90,000,000 from the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

Through their attorneys the stockholders asked the Supreme court to review a decision of the Circuit Court of Appeals for the 7th [Chicago] district made on Feb. 20, 1939. The Appellate court's decision affirmed a ruling by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson that the stockholders were subject to $14,000,000 of double liability. The five groups include about 1,500 stockholders.

Marks in Municipal court today by Norman C. Norman. Justice Marks entered judgment of $45 against the railroad. William Zuckerman, attorney for Norman, said it was possible the road may elect to appeal the case instead of paying, because similar action could be taken by other bondholders.

HITLER CONTROL OF REICHSBANK WINS APPROVAL

BERLIN, June 30.—(AP)—The annual meeting of the Reichsbank today accepted unanimously the government's reorganization plan which places the bank directly under the control of Chancelor Hitler.

The meeting also approved a plan for eliminating foreigners from holding Reichsbank shares. Present foreign holders are offered two 4 per cent shares in the Gold Discount bank for each Reichsbank share they possess.

Walther Funk, president of the Reichsbank, announced that it would pay 5 per cent dividend for the last business year. He said 5 per cent henceforth would be the maximum annual rate.

Funk dissolved the Reichsbank central committee and said that a new advisory council of about 70 business and industrial experts would be formed shortly. He explained that Hitler had given orders to the bank to "open up the capital market for private business."

NEW CENTRALIA FIELD OIL WELL BIGGEST IN STATE

Centralia, Ill., June 30.—(AP)—W. C. McBride, Inc., announced today its No. 10 Lee well in the Lake Centralia-Salem field produced 7,334 barrels of oil in 24 hours, making it the largest producing well in Illinois.

The second largest producer was the No. 6 Lee, also a holding of the McBride company, which had an initial output of 6,000 barrels. The company has ten wells on the forty acre Lee tract, producing 16,000 barrels of oil daily.

An official of the Gulf Oil company disclosed that Gulf's No. 1 Blockley well in Posey county, Ind., found four feet of oil saturation in a sandstone formation at only 397 feet.

The city of Centralia had a new municipal officer to superintend production of its ever growing oil holdings. The city council employed Earl C. Jupin to measure the crude oil output of the thirty-odd wells drilled on the city property in the vicinity of Lake Centralia, the municipal reservoir.

Air Line Plans Nonstop Chicago-Washington Run

American Airlines, Inc., yesterday was granted authority by the Civil Aeronautics Authority to start a nonstop service between Washington, D. C. and Chicago. The service will supplement the company's regular operations between the two cities. The company hopes to start a nonstop flight about July 5. The westbound flight will be made in 3 hours 14 minutes and eastbound it will be somewhat faster because of the prevailing westerly winds. The present time, including several stops, is 5½ hours. The distance is 667 miles.

Stocks, Bonds

New York Bonds.

New York, June 30.—(AP)—A late recovery in bonds failed to erase a decline in the first half of the session and closing prices were mixed. The rally enabled some corporate loans to climb a point or two above the low levels, but others closed much lower.

Some of the selling seemed traceable to fears the new tension in Europe may reach a breaking point over the week-end, it was said. As the trend underwent a reversal in the final hour, however, the "war scare" appeared to wane.

United States government loans finished with some losses running to ¾ of a point, but dealings were small.

A number of foreign loans tried to come back after yesterday's sharp setback. Italian municipals edged up a bit but the government 7s lost ¾ at 59½. The list generally was uneven.

Chicago Stocks.

Stocks continued under selling pressure in trading on the Chicago exchange yesterday. Commonwealth Edison receded ¼ point to 28⅝ on a turnover of 3,300 shares. Marshall Field and Central Illinois Public Service were among those closing fractionally higher.

Arrangements were completed for the sale of a membership for $1,600, down $200 from the preceding sale.

Bank Stocks.

Chicago bank stocks showed little change yesterday. Continental Illinois closed 50 cents a share lower. Trading remained light.

TAX REVISION BILL IS SIGNED BY ROOSEVELT

Changes Planned as Aid to Business.

Washington, D. C., June 30.—[Special.]—The revenue act of 1940 became law today after months of wrangling and debate that several times brought relations between the White House and congressional leaders near the breaking point. President Roosevelt signed the measure yesterday, but only today was his action revealed.

Intended originally to remove tax "irritants" and otherwise encourage business and industry recovery, the measure eliminated the remaining stump of the undistributed corporation profits tax and substituted a flat 18 per cent income levy on corporations earning more than $25,000 a year. It also granted other tax concessions.

Not Informed on Effect.

Asked to comment on the new law, Roosevelt said that it presented a number of administrative problems in each of its sections and that the treasury was now working on them. He added that he had no information as to whether removal of the so-called "irritants" would result in an improvement in business.

It was only after senate finance committeemen threatened to take measures in their own hands that the President reluctantly consented to revision of the business tax structure and conceded the possibility of ending business deterrents without much loss of revenue to the government. Treasury experts estimated today that without increased business volume the new law would net the government $5,000,000 less than its predecessor.

Some of Chief Provisions.

The new revenue measure included the following additional chief provisions:

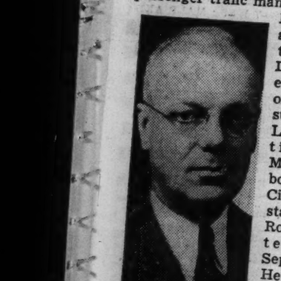
1. It re-enacts for two years the "nuisance" or manufacturers excise taxes currently yielding about $500,000,000 a year, and the present 3 cent postal rate during the same period.

2. Repeals the $2,000 limitation on capital losses chargeable against ordinary income.

3. Grants permission for corporations, individuals and partnerships, after January 1, to carry over their net business operating losses for a two year period to be applied as deductions from gross income.

4. Permits corporations in unsound financial condition to retire their bonds at market prices without being taxed on the transactions.

Business Bits



A. D. Martin.

Appointment of A. D. Martin as passenger trafic manager of the Rock Island Lines was announced yesterday by E. M. Durham Jr. chief executive officer of the road. He succeeds W. J. Leahy, who retired yesterday. Martin, who was born in Grant City, Mo., in 1885, started with the Rock Island as a telegrapher in September, 1908. He was promoted to ticket agent at Iowa City, Ia., in April, 1914. After holding positions in the trafic department in various cities, he was promoted to general passenger agent at Chicago in June, 1926. He was made assistant passenger trafic manager in March 15, this year.

Secretary of Commerce Ickes yesterday appointed Dan H. Wheeler, formerly of the Public Works administration, as assistant director of the bituminous coal division which today will take over functions of the old bituminous coal commission. Wheeler will be in executive charge, Ickes said, and responsible to Howard A. Gray, the new director.

Harry B. Munsell of Chicago has been elected vice president of American Light and Traction company. Munsell, an attorney, was formerly assistant to the president of the company.

A Chicago Mercantile exchange membership has been posted for transfer to Arthur W. Doell, associated with Swift & Co., Chicago.

John A. Revelle, plant sales manager of Swift & Co., has been elected president of the Chicago Sales Executive club. Other officers elected were A. H. Jaeger, Edison Electric Appliance company, vice president; Lee E. Maxwell, Standard Brands, Inc., vice president; Milton G. Crume, Butler Brothers, secretary; and H. A. Malcom, Westinghouse Electric Supply company, treasurer.

Ralph J. Cordiner will become president of Shick Dry Shaver, Inc., on Aug. 1. Cordiner, who has been identified with the electrical appliance business for the last seventeen years, will resign as manager of the appliance and merchandise department of General Electric to accept his new position.

Morton D. Cahn was recently elected president of the Chicago Stock Clearing corporation, a subsidiary of the Chicago Stock exchange.

James M. Elliott, vice president in charge of sales of Carstairs Bros. Distilling Company, Inc., has been appointed general sales manager of Seagram-Distillers corporation.

The New York Curb exchange has retained Albert Frank-Guenther Law, Inc., advertising agents, as public relations counsel, George P. Rea, president, announced recently. A program will be undertaken to publicize the Curb exchange as a national institution.

GUM TO BISCUITS.

Investors' Guide: Will you please give me some idea of the variety of the products of Beech-Nut Packing company? Where are its plants? What do its sales amount to every year? What about its profit or loss? Is this stock a good one?—G. S. W.

Its line includes such diversified products as sliced bacon and beef, bulk hams, peanut butter, baked beans, catsup, tomato juice, cooked spaghetti, chewing gum, mints, fruit and candy drops, coffee, biscuits, and strained foods. CHICAGO LIVE STOCK

The range of hog prices widened abruptly yesterday as a result of the sharp decline in the market for heavy stock, which has been losing money for packers because of the relatively low level of lard prices.

Buyers sought to reduce these losses and succeeded in buying the majority of the heavy butchers over 300 pounds, as well as sows, at reductions of mostly 25 cents for the day. Light hogs were in good demand at steady to 10 cents lower rates.

Most ovine stock met good demand at strong to slightly higher prices yesterday. Best grades of steers and yearlings sold readily at firm prices, but cheaper grades were neglected and weakened.

[All prices are in dollars per 100 pounds.]

BADGER OIL SUES FOR $1,684,583 ON TRUST CHARGES

St. Paul, Minn., June 30.—(AP)—Damages aggregating $1,684,583 were asked by the Badger Oil company of Wisconsin against nine petroleum corporations in a suit filed in United States District court today. The Badger company asserted it was injured as a result of anti trust law violations by the corporations.

The suit was filed against the Phillips Petroleum company, Standard Oil company of Indiana, Shell Petroleum corporation, Pure Oil company, Sinclair Refining company, Socony Vacuum Oil Company, Inc.; Skelly Oil company, Cities Service Oil company, and Barnsdall Refining corporation.

The complaint set forth that the defendant corporations were guilty of a "jobbers squeeze" in which amounts of guaranteed margins to be allowed to jobbers in the sale of gasoline were regulated and "fixed" in restraint of trade and commerce.
